'5-Percent' Probers Hear Waitt Concede He's Tops for His Job

Chemical Corps' Suspended Chief Says Gen. Vaughan Encouraged Him

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, who admits he's good, told a Senate committee yesterday how he engaged in a go-getter's campaign to hold on to his job, and how Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan "encouraged" him.

General Waitt acknowledged he was the man "best qualified" to be chief of the Army Chemical Corps. He said he couldn't bring himself to recommend anybody else as his term was running out.

"I must confess that I felt my leadership should continue," he said, laughing nervously and granting it was a "conceited idea."

He said that General Vaughan, the White House military aide, with whom he was on a first-name basis, agreed that he was the best-qualified. He added that Vaughan told him at a social gathering, perhaps a cocktail party, that he should succeed himself.

Says Vaughan Asked Memo

Waitt, testifying before the Senate's investigation of 5-percenters or influence peddlers, said it was on this occasion that Vaughan asked him to prepare a memorandum giving his opinion of Chemical Corps officers most likely to be considered for the No. 1 job.

The memorandum, which was delivered to Vaughan's office, was described last week by Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) as an attempt by Waitt to "cut the throats" of his potential rivals.

Waitt also prepared an estimate of himself, but phrased it so that another would appear to be the author.

"World Leading Authority"

A highlight of yesterday's hearing was that moment when Senator McCarthy (R., Wis.) read from the evaluation that Waitt had written of himself. The first sentence said:

"General Waitt is recognized as one of the leading authorities in the world on the subject of toxicological warfare."

"That is not very derogatory, is it?" McCarthy remarked.

"That is most embarassing," said Waitt.

"But you dictated it," said McCarthy.

"But it happens to be true," Waitt replied, and a roar of laughter swept the committee room.

"Really," continued Waitt, "you put me in a terrible position here, but I can only tell you that if you go to England, you go to France, you go to Holland, and if, in fact, you go to Russia—because Pravda has called me that 'Savage General Waitt,' and Radio Moscow has referred to me as a cannibal—but I did not . . ."

"Greatest General in the World"

Senator McCarthy broke in to say:

"I am not talking about what you say, whether it's true or not. You may be the greatest general in the world for all I know."

"I am certainly talking as if I thought I was," Waitt conceded, and added, "and I imagine the press tomorrow will certainly put me on the griddle for it."

Waitt said he prepared the sketch of himself in the office of James V. Hunt, a big-fee management counselor, who is the chief figure in the 5-percenters inquiry. He said he dictated it to Miss

Many Accepted Anything

Deep Freeze Mere Bagatelle To Gifts Made to Presidents

By the United Press

The deep freeze units of the current "5-percenter" investigation are small potatoes when stacked up against the gifts President Truman and other chief executives have received down through the years.

For many decades, every mail has brought a colorful succession of gifts for the man in the White House. Mr. Truman, for example, has received everything from a new car to a diamond-encrusted Arabian scimitar, from a bowling alley to a box of bow ties.

Some gifts come from friends, many from absolute strangers. The more regal gifts come from heads of foreign states.

There are certain legal restrictions on what a President can accept. He is not supposed to receive gifts from a foreign nation without congressional approval. But this doesn't mean a President cannot receive and give presents on a personal basis.

Presidents vary greatly in what they will accept. Andrew Johnson would accept little or nothing. Jefferson tried to pay for what he got. Andy Jackson took about everything anybody sent him, as did Lincoln and Hayes. Grant accepted everything from a luxurious carpet sent by the Sultan of Turkey to elaborate silver services and leopard skins from Mexico.

The present White House swimming pool was a gift to the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt by the school children of the Nation. The expensive bowling alley under Mr. Truman's office was the gift of a group of anonymous friends.

In 1946, a friend of Mr. Truman donated two historic crystal chandeliers, valued at more than $15,000, to the White House.

Many gifts that come to a President are touching—a little boy's best Barlow knife, a pipe from an old man, a garish, patriotic tapestry that took mother all winter to make. Some of the gifts are unique—a watermelon wrapped in an American flag, a gold wheelbarrow and a talking bird.

Every administration in the White House gets a certain number

Miss Mitchell, Noted Author, Dies of Injuries

Atlanta, Aug. 16 (U.P.).—Margaret Mitchell, who shrank from the fame that came her way when she wrote "Gone With the Wind," died today, the victim of a speeding automobile.

The 46-year-old author died on a hospital operating table at 1 p. m. before doctors could begin exploratory head surgery to discover what had made her take a sudden turn for the worse less than an hour earlier.

Miss Mitchell suffered a fractured skull and a crushed pelvis when she was struck by an automobile last Thursday night.

The funeral will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday at Patterson Chapel here, with retired Episcopal Pastor Dean Raimundo de Ovies officiating. Miss Mitchell's family came out of privacy long enough to ask that floral tributes not be sent. They suggested instead that friends send memorial gifts to Grady Hospital, where Miss Mitchell died, or to some worthy charity.

"Peggy" Mitchell always minimized the fame which stemmed from her only novel because, she said, she wrote it by accident.

Injuries from an earlier automobile accident forced her to leave her job as a newspaper feature writer, and while she was recovering she began the novel to help pass the time.

Hospital Superintendent Frank Wilson said her death was probably due to the "massive head injuries" inflicted upon her when the automobile struck her.

The driver of the car, 29-year-old Hugh D. Gravitt, admitted he had been drinking before his car struck Miss Mitchell as she crossed the street with her husband, John Marsh, on their way to a neighborhood movie.

The Peachtree st. where Miss Mitchell suffered the fatal accident was the same street she wrote about with love and familiarity in her novel.

The little 4-foot 11-inch author and her 1037-page book had become national institutions in the 13 years since "Gone With the Wind" was published.

Gov. Herman Talmadge ordered a period of State-wide mourning until the funeral is over, with all

Group Votes Retroactive Pay Money

Money to pay 18,000 District employes their long-delayed retroactive pay increase was voted yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee.

Senate approval of this item will clear the way for the city workers to receive an estimated $265 lump sum, after taxes are deducted. It represents a $330 pay boost retroactive to July, 1948, when all Federal employes won the same increase. District workers were not voted the raise until last month.

The money was included in the first supplemental appropriations bill which the committee reported to the House floor yesterday. It carried a total of $4,205,850 in District funds.

Denies Hospital Fund

In two surprise actions, the committee:

Denied a $103,065.95 sum owed by the District government to three Washington hospitals for contract care of indigent patients, and Reduced from $100,000 to $50,000 an appropriation to operate the city's six day-care centers for children of working mothers.

The committee also:

1. Refused the Corporation Counsel's Office its requested $11,660 for extra personnel needed to handle legal work resulting from the sales tax.

2. Approved $225,000 for alterations and additions to Bell Vocational High School. This item was not included in the regular District appropriations bill passed last month.

3. Turned down an appeal for $3474 for relocation of positions in the District Public Library.

Refusal Explained

In commenting upon its refusal to grant funds to cover outstanding District accounts with the three private Washington hospitals, the committee report said:

"The total amount available for such services (care of indigent patients) was fixed at given rates by the annual appropriation, and there was no authority to incur obligations in excess thereof."

District budget officials had explained to the committee that the excess expense was incurred during the year ending in July 1948 because the number of emergency patients who were furnished hos-

House Group Votes 3 Million, Full Request for Sesqui Fete

Reversing itself, the House Appropriations Committee yesterday voted to appropriate President Truman's full request of $3,000,000 to finance the Washington Sesquicentennial celebration next year.

On two separate occasions last spring the group flatly refused to advance any funds to underwrite the proposed Freedom Fair, commemorating the 150th anniversary of the founding of Washington as the Nation's Capital.

The sesqui fund was carried in the first supplemental supply bill, which may be taken up on the House floor today or Thursday.

After an earlier House refusal of the celebration request, the Senate voted a two-million-dollar sesqui item, which was rejected in conference by the House.

The committee report justified its changed attitude on grounds that "revised plans more recently submitted to the committee reflect a sounder approach to the program than those submitted earlier in the present session of Congress . . . while the committee is desirous of at least a solvent operation, it now appears that there may be even some slight profit to the Treasury of the United States."

Carter T. Barron, Sesquicentennial Commission chairman, disclosed to the House group that the proposed site for the Freedom Fair buildings had been shifted to the foot of East Capitol st. behind the National Guard Armory. A 5000-capacity outdoor amphitheater is

Pacific Dive Of 4500 Feet Sets Record

Smuggler's Cove, Calif., Aug. 16 (AP).—A man in a steel ball saw weird and wondrous marine life 4500 feet down in the Pacific Ocean today, the deepest descent in history.

But Marine Explorer Otis Barton, 48, Harvard-trained engineer from Boston, thought undersea creatures were more interesting at 2000 than at 4500.

He made the record-breaking dive, after several false starts and three days of mechanical troubles, in a benthoscope. It is a cast-steel sphere 57½ inches in diameter dropped from a crane on a barge by a 5/8-inch steel cable to which were fastened power and telephone lines.

Down 2 Hours, 19 Minutes

Barton's goal was 6000 feet and although he didn't make it, he broke the deep-dive record of 3028 feet which he and Dr. William Beebe of New York established off Bermuda in 1934.

He began the successful descent today at 11:53 a. m. (PST) and returned to the surface at 2:12 p. m., an interval of 2 hours, 19 minutes.

Upon stepping from the sphere in which he could only sit or kneel, he said he felt fine.

"A scientific study of the marine life in the Pacific, at least in this vicinity, is probably more interesting at 2000 feet than at 4500," he said. "There is more life at 2000 feet."

Here are bits of Barton's running conversation today with his topside associate, Dr. Maurice Nelles:

Seventeen minutes after he started down: "There was a flashing light going by . . . It's getting cold down here."

At 1750 feet: "The headphones are getting cold. In this cramped position the chill makes me feel very stiff."

"Unbelievable World"

At 2500 feet: "I see a barrage of luminescent, spiraling shrimp beating against the window. They seem to splash when they hit . . . It's getting colder by the minute . . . A long, thin, brilliantly lighted fish went by. It looks like an eel."

After passing the old record of 3028 feet: "This is an unbelievable world down here. I wish Dr. Beebe were down here with me. He might know what some of these things are. I don't recognize them."

Observers above could hear Barton's teeth chattering.

At 4000 feet: "Let's hold up here awhile. There are so many things going by that it kind of makes me dizzy . . . I think it is rather pointless to go any farther at this time, with so many things against us. The ball is jumping up and down."

Luminous Sea Life

Barton's lights went out at 4100 feet, but he decided to drop to 4500 in the inky darkness.

At 4500 feet: "I'll say it's cold down here. There goes a big white jellyfish. I never saw anything like that before. There's a little spot of light with a circle around it . . . Everything I see seems to be about the same as I saw a little higher up . . . I see all forms of luminous sea life. I am amazed to see so many luminous things at this depth. The water is beautifully, unexpectedly clear, as clear as it was at Bermuda."

He obtained oxygen from a tank in the benthoscope, releasing the gas automatically. Carbon dioxide from his lungs was absorbed by soda lime screens.

Barton said today's dive ended his current attempts at a new record.

Congress Still Does Nothing In Pay Crisis

Congress, snarled up in weary feuding, yesterday ignored the payless payday problem facing 2,500,000 Federal personnel—both military and civilian—and took no action to break its appropriation log jam.

In brief, the situation is this: If funds for the military establishment and several civilian agencies are to be freed for use, the House, and then the Senate, must pass some sort of resolution permitting the agencies to act on credit until the appropriation bills get through.

But the House, its legislative work nearly completed, is anxious to go home and, irked by Senate delays, wants to use the appropriation log jam to speed the Senate.

Rules Group Balks Again

Further than that, within the House itself a partisan battle over just what type of extension resolution should be passed has developed.

The extension resolution must originate within the House Appropriations Committee.

The Rules Committee, again yesterday, refused to act on the joint resolution reported out by the Appropriations Committee.

Chairman Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.) said the committee still had the resolution "under advisement" but added the delay seemed to have had "a wholesome effect" on the other body—meaning the Senate.

Sources within the Rules Committee predicted flatly that the joint resolution which the Appropriations Committee asked would never get the green light.

Has No Time Limit

There are two major objections to the resolution as reported. The first is that it bears no time limit but extends the credit authority indefinitely. This is regarded as taking all heat off the Senate to act on appropriation bills it has not yet considered.

The second objection is, according to Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), ranking Republican on the Appropriations Committee, that one section of the resolution permits the Appropriations Committee to be by-passed on part of the Korean funds bill, and allows the Budget Bureau, rather than Appropriations Committee, estimates to be used.

Total net effect is that a rule apparently will not be granted unless a new joint resolution is introduced. The House Appropriations Committee did not meet yesterday to consider a new resolution which might get the Rules Committee green light.

Two-thirds Majority Out

Without a rule it will take a two-thirds majority to pass a resolution, and the House has already demonstrated such a two-thirds cannot be mustered.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) termed this the worst appropriation log jam in the history of the United States. He said he had "looked up the records way back" to check on the accuracy of that statement.

Furthermore, fumed Cannon, it's all partisan politics. He said the House Republicans not only wanted to take a slap at the Senate, but want to "make this Congress look worse than the last Republican Congress, although that's impossible."

Pinch Yet to Be Felt

Because there is a time lag of a week to 12 days in the payment of most Federal workers, most agencies, it is estimated, will have the funds available to pay salaries

Unfair to Women?

Unwed Mothers Spotlight Dual Standard Argument

(Nearly every tenth child born in Washington last year was illegitimate. Six years ago, one of every 14 was illegitimate. This, the fourth of a series of articles, is devoted to some of the problems of unwed motherhood, as related by local officials whose agencies deal with this growing social condition.)

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Nowhere does the argument over double vs. single standard wax hotter than in the problem of the unwed mother.

If a woman is cast out by society because she has a child out of wedlock, shouldn't the man be equally shunned?

Where do men get off, anyway, having sex relations that lead to pregnancy, and then leaving the woman to face the music—all the music—alone?

Contrawise: It takes two people to have a child.

The woman must know what she's letting herself in for. If she relaxes her moral standards, is it up to the man to bolster them?

But leave morals out of it for a moment. What kind of man is the unwed father?

There isn't too much known about him. If a U.M. comes to a social agency, she may shield the father of her child; refuse to identify him. If she does identify him, he may not be located by the agency.

It is known, however, that in general, the unmarried father is a man who is what he is because of emotional or psychological problems. He sought sexual relations as an escape from these problems, and when parenthood out of wedlock comes, he can escape that, too.

On the other hand, the social worker will tell you, in a large

Senate Kills Truman's Welfare Agency Plan With 11-Vote Margin

Roll Call Vote on Page 6

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman suffered another smashing defeat at the hands of Congress yesterday when the Senate voted, 60 to 32, to reject his plan to create a new Department of Welfare.

The Chief Executive's most ambitious attempt to reorganize the Government was defeated with 11 more than the constitutional majority of votes needed, despite strenuous eleventh-hour efforts by the President to rescue his plan.

Without Senate or House action, the plan abolishing the Federal Security Agency and putting all Government health, welfare and educational activities in the new department, would have gone into effect Saturday.

No House action is required now. Under the Reorganization Act passed earlier this year, presidential plans can be rejected by a majority vote of either chamber.

Democrats Aid GOP

Twenty-three Democrats, mostly from the South, joined the almost solid group of 37 Republicans voting against the President's plan. Only four Republicans, Senators George D. Aiken (Vt.), William Langer (N. D.), Henry Cabot Lodge (Mass.) and Margaret Chase Smith (Me.) voted with 28 Administration Democrats for the proposal.

A few hours before the balloting, Mr. Truman summoned six Democratic Senators to the White House to make a personal appeal for favorable action on the proposal.

They were Senators William Fulbright (Ark.), author of the resolution disapproving the plan; Lister Hill (Ala.), John Sparkman (Ala.), Burnet Maybank (S. C.), Lyndon B. Johnson (Tex.), and Clyde R. Hoey (N. C.). Only Johnson and Hoey subsequently supported the plan.

Second Intervention

This was the second time Mr. Truman had personally intervened. Last week, in a letter to Vice-President Alben W. Barkley, the President called the opposition "absurd, ill-founded and mistaken."

The name of Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security administrator, who was active in President Truman's November campaign, came up repeatedly in the debate on the resolution yesterday.

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, jr. (R., Wis.), said much of the opposition stemmed from word that Ewing was slated to head the new agency.

Ewing has been outspoken in favor of the compulsory health insurance program advocated by President Truman. Many Senators attacked that program as socialized medicine.

Taft, McClellan Opposed

Spearheading opposition to the plan—Reorganization Plan No. 1—were Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Chairman John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) of the Senate Executive Expenditures Committee, which previously had voted, 7 to 3, against the plan. Both insisted the reorganization would give "too much power" to the Secretary of Welfare.

Leading the fight for the plan was Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), who read a telegram from Herbert Hoover expressing support for the creation of a new "Department of Education and Social Security."

Taft promptly pointed out that Hoover, and the Hoover Commission, had urged separation of all health agencies from the new department. The commission had proposed a separate health service to consolidate various Govern-

Tabling of Home-Rule Bill Dims Hope for This Session

Survey Reveals Such Legislation Favored By Lower Chamber

An absolute majority of the present membership of the House of Representatives is on record for District of Columbia home rule.

A total of 217 of the present 433 members (there are two vacancies) either voted for home rule when it was on the House floor last year or have told The Washington Post they favor it.

In eight surveys, the latest of which is published today, the total for home rule sentiment is:

For: 175.
Against: 43.
Noncommittal: 29.
Not available: 1.

Adding to the 1948 record votes for the three remaining areas—New York State, the border States and the South—plus a partially completed poll of some of the new or unrecorded members from those areas, the over-all House totals are:

For: 217.
Against: 124.
Noncommittal: 32.
Not available: 1.
Not yet polled: 59.

Of the 105 members from the 11 States of the Solid South, 72 last year voted against home rule and 5 in favor. Thus the Southern opposition accounts for ex-

Effort Will Be Made To Bring Kefauver Proposal Onto Floor

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Progress of the Senate-passed Washington home rule bill yesterday was abruptly halted by the House District Judiciary Subcommittee.

Following a reportedly heated closed session, the subcommittee chairman, Oren Harris (D., Ark.) told reporters:

"The subcommittee voted to table the Kefauver bill and to report same to the chairman of the full committee. The action was by voice vote. That's all I am authorized to say."

Move for House Vote

The "pigeonholing" decision—besides erasing almost all chance of House floor action this session—brought an announcement by home-rule proponents of their intention to start a petition to discharge the House District Committee from further consideration of the measure and bring it directly to the House floor.

The action of the Harris group also dimmed hopes that the more sympathetic 25-member full committee might act soon to reverse the subcommittee decision.

Maine Potato Support Funds Line Canadian Pockets, Too

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Presque Isle, Me.—The 67 million bucks that Uncle Sam poured into Maine last year to maintain high potato prices was a Godsend to Canadian growers.

Plagued by loss of overseas markets due to currency difficulties, huge surpluses and plunging prices, our northern neighbors benefited in two ways:

1. A lot of New Brunswick potatoes crossed the frontier into Maine. Some observers assert that thousands of bushels of these found their way into the American purchase program. At least, they replaced in the market Maine potatoes that the Government bought.

2. Millions of bushels from Prince Edward Island and other Canadian potato areas moved into markets served for years by Maine growers. Favorable freight rates and the high prices due to price support purchases made Canada a gift of those markets.

Maine used to sell large quantities of potatoes to the Southeastern Seaboard States. Canada got much of that business last year. Pioneer potato men are worried over this loss. They point to the following sales figures as a warning:

In 1944, Maine shipped 2085 carloads of late potatoes to Florida; last year, only 389. A carload is roughly 1000 bushels. In 1944, it sent 1442 to Georgia; last year, only 310.

In 1944, Maine sent 4513 cars to Virginia; last year, 1518. In 1944, it shipped 1173 to West Virginia; last year, 785. In 1944, it shipped 1608 to North Carolina; last year, 323. It sent 1068 to South Carolina in 1944; last year, 126.

In 1948, Canada sent us, by train and ship, about 9000 carloads of potatoes. No figures are yet available on the amount that was trucked over the border. But

Direct Peace Talks Reopen In Hawaii

Honolulu, Aug. 16 (AP).—Striking CIO stevedores and Hawaii's dock employers today reopened direct negotiations to try to end the Territory's 108-day waterfront tieup.

Spurred by Gov. Ingram M. Stanback, officials of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union started peace talks this afternoon with spokesmen for the islands' seven struck stevedoring firms.

As negotiations started, the Territorial Attorney General's office prepared to take action against ILWU President Harry Bridges for personally defying a Circuit Court injunction prohibiting picketing under Hawaii's new dock-seizure law. The court ordered a contempt action started before noon Wednesday.

Bridges' union quickly went into Federal Court and asked an injunction against the dock seizure law which provides for government stevedoring operations. The union also asked three million dollars damage from Territorial officials and the seven struck firms.

Meanwhile, Government stevedores boarded a ship to test whether the Territory can unload cargo. Some crewmen walked off and no cargo was removed.

Government Bonds Unloaded By Britons; Some Go at 70%

London, Aug. 16 (AP).—British investors are shedding government bonds with frantic haste.

Some kinds can be bought in the London bond market for less than 70 per cent of what the government promises to pay when they come due.

The faith of the British people in their once-proud pound sterling is sorely shaken.

During the first 17 weeks of the government's fiscal year beginning April 1, they withdrew £22,250,000 (equal to 89 million dollars) more from their national savings accounts than they put in.

Vast sums are being taken out of government bonds and put into things like real estate and gold mine stock.

During one three-week period in July and August, the total value of British government bonds shrank two billion dollars on the London exchange.

One explanation given is what the British call the dollar crisis. The Labor government has been unable so far to give assurances that Britain can go on much longer earning, borrowing or obtaining American gifts of dollars it must have to buy food and raw materials. If the government fails, Britain faces privation, unemployment and a crippling drop in national income. All this would make it harder to pay off government bonds when due.

Arnold Denies Favoritism in B-36 Choice

San Francisco, Aug. 16 (AP).—Gen. Henry H. Arnold declared today "political favoritism and business relationship had nothing to do with the selection of the B-36 as long-range military bomber."

He added:

Arnold, retired chief of the United States Air Force, made the statement at Fourth Air Force headquarters at Hamilton Field after being informed a congressional subcommittee is on its way here to question him about the B-36 deals.

West Coast Aircraft Men to Be Quizzed

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Los Angeles, Aug. 16.—Top West Coast aircraft manufacturers will be quizzed Wednesday about reports they were subjected to "pressure" to join a huge airplane building combine.

A House Armed Services Subcommittee, which arrived here tonight, has called seven leading plane makers to testify in the congressional investigation into the Air Force's B-36 bomber procurement program.

The probers said the aircraft manufacturers will be asked:

1. Whether they were subjected to either Air Force or political pressure to enter into a big aircraft trust—as charged by Representative James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.). A House speech by Van Zandt reported "ugly rumors" of irregularities in ordering the giant Consolidated-Vultee B-36 bomber.

According to the Pennsylvania Congressman, Floyd Odlum, Consolidated-Vultee chairman and an alleged heavy contributor to President Truman's 1948 campaign, was behind the plan and Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington was to resign and head it. Symington has denied the charge and dared Van Zandt to repeat it off the House floor where he can be sued for libel or slander.

2. Whether other aircraft companies have submitted plans for intercontinental bomber and what happened to them.

3. What they think of the policy of putting great emphasis on intercontinental bombing and the B-36 as a weapon to carry it out.

4. Whether any "pressure" was put on Northrop Aircraft, Inc., when manufacture of their "flying wing" B-49 was diverted to the Government-owned Convair-operated plant at Fort Worth, Tex. The order later was canceled.

The bill sent to the President would permit the Secretary of Agriculture to set a cotton acreage allotment for the Nation as low as 21 million acres for 1950 and down to 18 million acres in 1951 if found

Debate on $1,450,000,000 Arms-Aid Bill Scheduled to Begin in the House Today

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Debate on the Administration's $1,450,000,000 foreign arms-aid program is set to begin today in the House where a bi-partisan group will make a strong bid to cut its size.

The House Rules Committee cleared the bill for floor action yesterday just 20 hours after it was reported by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

That speedy rule action, however, was preceded by two hours' debate on the measure, serving as a preview of opposition it faces on the floor. Nevertheless, Speaker Sam Reyburn predicted the bill will be approved in "substantially" the same form as reported.

Reversing a decision made last Friday, the combined Senate Foreign Relations-Armed Services committee considering the same legislation, voted yesterday to reopen its hearings today to hear opposition witnesses.

Senate Unit Revises Plan

In the announced interest of "saving time," the Senate group had previously decided to forego opposition testimony and invited opponents of the plan to submit statements in writing. This brought wide criticism, even though the House committee had heard numerous arms bill opponents.

First witness before the reopened Senate hearings will be Norman Thomas, frequent Socialist candidate for President, who is scheduled to testify at 10:30 a. m. in the Senate caucus room on portions of the measure which he opposes.

General Douglas MacArthur yesterday removed any lingering thought that he may return from Japan to testify on Far Eastern aspects of the arms aid plan.

Urged to testify, in a resolution passed last week by the joint Senate committee on a 13 to 12 vote, General MacArthur stated in a cablegram forwarded to the committee by Secretary of Defense Johnson, that his views on the Far East are already available.

Basis of Decision

He pointed out that China is not within his command area; that on March 3, 1948, he furnished his general views on the Far East to the chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, and that:

". . . My specific views with respect to the strategic potentialities of the area embracing my Far East command are fully on file with the Department of the Army."

While "deeply appreciative" of the honor of the invitation, an "impelling sense of duty" requires his presence in Japan at this critical period, he said. MacArthur has previously turned down several other invitations to return to this country.

The committee was also informed that Vice Adm. Oscar C. Badger, commanding U. S. naval forces in the Far East, similarly cannot return to testify at this time. He is due to return to Washington in early September.

Hearings To Last 2 Days

Proponents of new aid to Nationalist China had hoped that testimony from MacArthur and Badger would bolster their case.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.), who heads the joint committee, said the reopened hearings will continue for about two days.

Among those expected to testify against it, he said, is Henry Wallace, who also opposed the North Atlantic Treaty.

In reporting the arms bill to the House, the Rules Committee granted it an "open rule" with one full day of debate, to be followed by the offering of amendments under the "five-minute rule." Under this, any representative can then speak for that time.

As sent to the House, the bill would grant $1,160,990,000 worth of military assistance to Western European participants in the North Atlantic Treaty; $211,370,000 for Greece and Turkey, and $27,640,000 for Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

Half in Cash This Year

Slightly over hal fthe outlay for the over-all program would be in the form of cash this fiscal year, while the rest would be in contract authorization charged to next year's budget.

In addition to this amount, the program includes 450 million dollars' worth of "surplus" weapons "written off" at rehabilitation cost only. That "ceiling" on surplus was specifically written into the bill by the House committee.

The report on the bill, made public yesterday by the House committee, showe dsix dissenters—two o fthem Democrats—among the committee'es 25 members.

One minority report was submitted by Representative James P. Richards (D., W. Va.), second ranking Democrat on the committee, and Representatives John M. Vorys (R., Ohio), Walter H. Judd (R., Minn.) and Omar Burleson (D., Tex.).

Urging that the requested European outlay be cut in half, they pointed out that while the bill is technically a one-year program, weapons delivered would extend over two years.

"This European program," they argued, "is obviously not the minimum necessary to deter Russia armed aggression in Western Europe, for something else has kept from invading Western Europe since 1945.

"That deterrent has been American air power with the atomic bomb, and this will continue tao be the principal deterrent for some time to come."

In "90 days or so," said the four dissenters, the North Atlantic Treaty organization may be established and a European defense plan launched, but, "no such plan is now in existence."

"By authortizing half of the two-year program, we show that we mean business on implementing agreed plans for the united defense for Europe, but that we also mean business when we ask to see what the plan is before we go the rest of the way."

Reps. James G. Fulton (R., Pa.) and Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.) offered a different formula for limiting the plan to assure action on unity.

They proposed cutting the Western European cost of $1,160,490,000 by $234,760,000 to carry that part of the plan only to March 31, 1950, instead of June 30, to give Congress "another look" at it "early in 1950 when it counts."

Rules Committee Chairman Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), said that while he had not had opportunity to study the bill, this Nation launched the European Recovery Plan for "feeding hungry children."

"Now," he said, "we're going to feed them with ammunition and war materials. I was fearful then that it would come to that, and now it has come."

Bradley Sworn Under New Act As Chairman of Chiefs of Staff

By the United Press

Gen. Omar N. Bradley became the ranking United States military officer on active duty yesterday when he took the oath as the first statutory chairman of the joint chiefs of staff.

Gen. J. Lawton Collins was sworn in minutes later to succeed Bradley as army chief of staff.

The brief ceremony, formally installing the new military high command which President Truman has picked to plan national defense under the tightened unification act, was held in the office of Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson.

High-ranking Army, Navy and Air Force officers and top civilian officials of the Defense Department crowded around to hear Bradley swear to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic," Mrs. Bradley stood beside him.

Bridges Says He'll Quit Trusteeship Next Month

Concord, N. H., Aug. 16 (AP).—United States Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) said today he will resign next month his $35 000 a year trusteeship of the United Mine Workers Welfare Fund.

It was recently disclosed that Bridges and Ezra Van Horn, fund trustee of the coal operators, had been drawing a $35,000 a year allowance, while John L. Lewis, union chief and third trustee, had not been drawing from his allowance.

U.S. Agencies Leave Threatened Canton

White Paper Hit

China Claims Reds Violate 1945 Treaty

By Christopher Rand

Canton, Aug. 16 (N.Y.H.T.).—United States authorities here revealed a major policy shift toward Chinese Communists today when Alaska speed their home-made of evacuating American agencies before Canton's expected fall.

All official American personnel will be pulled out beginning at once. They number 70 or more, including a few dependents. Fifteen are in the American Embassy office, under Charge d'Affaires Lewis Clark. The office was set up when the Chinese government retreated here from Nanking last winter. Nineteen persons are in the American Consulate.

The balance are in American relief agencies currently functioning in China—the Economic Cooperation Administration and the Joint Committee on Rural Reconstruction.

[The State Department announced Tuesday that the U. S. Embassy in Canton will close in advance of occupation of that city by Communists, and will follow the Nationalist government to its new capital, probably Chungking. The announcement was the first definite assurance since publication of the Department's White Paper on China that relations with the Nationalists were not to be suddenly terminated.]

Hitherto American consulates have remained in Chinese cities—Mukden, Peiping, Tientsin, Shanghai, Nanking and Hankow—when they have come under Communist rule. It was hoped consular staffs would be allowed to function in behalf of local American interests.

Communist Troops Roll Along Road to Canton

Hongkong, Aug. 16 (U.P.).—The Communist armies rolled into the South China Province of Kwangtung today along a main highway that leaps straight to Canton, 165 miles to the south.

Red guerillas cut the Canton-Hankow railway, main government supply line, 70 miles north of the refugee capital as they intensified their activities to coincide with the new advances.

Government troops were reported falling back before the Communist drive, and Nationalist Gen. Feng Tien was believed to have moved his headquarters to Chihing (Nanhsing), 20 miles below the Kwangtung-Kiangsi border.

Pro-Nationalist reports said the Communists had smashed into Kanchow, refugee capital of Kiangsi Province, 217 miles north of Canton, and Feeng's former headquarters.

Wu Says Government Will Withstand Reds

Tokyo (Wednesday), Aug. 17 (NYHT)—The Chinese Nationalist government will hold out against Communist aggression indefinitely in Formosa and central China, even though its present capital at Canton may be expected to fall within the next three or four months, according to General Wu Teh-chen, an emissary of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

General Wu, here for conversations with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, said his government would oppose any proposal to put Formosa under United Nations trusteeship, since it has adequate military force to defend the island without outside help.

Canton, Aug. 16 (A).—The Chinese government today officially charged Russia had "violated both in letter and spirit the treaty of friendship and alliance between China and the Soviet Union concluded in 1945."

This was part of a statement which for the first time gave China's official reaction to the U. S. White Paper on China. The statement was issued by George Yeh, Acting Foreign Minister.

It took "serious exception" to the views and statements" on many questions contained in the recent White Paper, which said the Chinese government had failed in its civil war with the Communists and opposed further aid for the Nationalist regime.

The statement said the Chinese government found a "source of satisfaction" in noting the U. S. Government now shared two fundamental views "which the Chinese government consistently has maintained."

These were given as:

"First, the Chinese Communists are thorough Marxists and tools of Moscow, and secondly, the Soviet Union has violated both in the letter and spirit the treaty of friendship and alliance between China and the Soviet Union concluded in 1945."

"At the same time, the Chinese Government declare that it takes serious exceptions to the views and statements on many other important questions contained in the White Paper.

". . . The Chinese Government in consideration of its stand and obligations will state more fully at an approximate time its position and relevant facts with regard to various complex subjects dealt with in the voluminous White Paper for information of the Chinese and American public so as to further the mutual understanding and cordial relations between the two peoples."

Syria to Rule On Pipeline

Damascus, Syria, Aug. 16 (AP)—Hasem Bey Atassi, premier of the new temporary government here, today said Syria's future parliament will have the final say on the United States oil pipeline concession.

The late Syrian president, Marshal Husni Zayim, who was executed in Sunday's military coup, recently approved the concession for a trans-Arabian pipeline outlet in Syria.

Atassi, 87-year-old interim premier, said in an interview: His government is functioning as a temporary cabinet; it will neither confirm nor deny actions taken by the Zayim regime, such as pipeline agreements; such responsibility will be in the hands of the future House of Representatives.

Atassi stressed that the chief aim of his cabinet is to restore constitutional government.

The aged former President said his country will retain close and friendly relations with the "greater democracies," such as the U. S. Syria also will maintain close relations with the United Nations and the other Arab states, "because the Arabs are one nation whatever their political division might be," he declared.

(A dispatch from Cairo quoted the Damascus radio as saying the Syrian-Turkish frontier has been closed.)

The new civilian cabinet, representing most shades of Syrian political opinion, issued a statement saying it would retain power only until a constitutional government can be set up. The cabinet communique set no time limit for establishing such a regime.

'False Polio' Virus Suspected Of Increasing Case Reports

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

An unnamed virus disease, much like polio but without paralysis, may have hoisted last year's polio case reports to their near-record high, it was reported yesterday.

And the same virus may be acting up again this year to falsely swell polio case totals, one of its discoverers said.

The "fairly common" but relatively harmless disease strikes, like poliomyelitis, during the summer season, causes illness of about 10 days' duration with polio-like symptoms, but leaves no crippling after-effect, a team of Yale scientists reported.

Its virus, they said, was isolated in their studies of last summer's polio outbreaks in southern New England, North Carolina and Texas.

Published in Journal

The findings were published in the current issue of the Proceedings of the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine, in an article written by Joseph L. Melnick, associate professor of microbiology, Ernest W. Shaw, National Research Council fellow in medical sciences, and Edward C. Curnen, associate professor of pediatrics and preventive medicine, all of Yale University.

"It is believed that this new virus was the cause of widespread illness last year during the poliomyelitis season, said Dr. Menick, in comment on the article.

"Last year there were 27,680 cases in the United States which were reported as poliomyelitis, the largest number since 1916. On the basis of this research at Yale, it is believed that a sizable percentage of these cases may have been falsely diagnosed as poliomyelitis and were actually attributable to this new virus."

Dr. Melnick told The Washington Post yesterday that it's still too early to state conclusively that the new virus is responsible for this year's high number of "polio" cases reported. But there's "every indication," he said, that the virus "is active" this summer as well as last.

United States Public Health Service statisticians yesterday said they did not know how many of last year's reported polio cases were accompanied by paralysis. But scattered reports, they said, indicate that a "high" percentage were nanparalytic.

By way of example, they pointed out that the Virginia State health officer reported that of his State's 1948 total of 568 cases, some 70 per cent showed no residual effects. And of the first 100 reported polio cases in last year's outbreak in the San Angelo district of Texas, 61 patients showed no degree of paralysis.

In contrast, they said, "practically all" of 1916's record polio year of some 30,000 cases brought paralysis in some form.

Origin of outbreaks of the polio-like disease is unknown, the Yale scientists reported. Isolation of its virus, they said, confirms observations originally made at the New York State Department of Health laboratories last year in investigation of illness diagnosed as mild poliomyelitis.

The Yale investigators, working on the New York lead, analyzed sewage of the cities of Hartford, Norwalk and New Haven, Conn., and Greensboro, High Point and Winston-Salem, N. C., and uncovered the virus.

It was also recovered from the excreta of human "polio" patients from all groups of patients except those with paralytic poliomyelitis, they said, and was recovered from flies trapped in polio epidemic areas.

"We have reason to think that this (new virus) disease may be a fairly common disease, and with this new information, physicians working in conjunction with virologists in poliomyelitis areas may have available a valuable new tool for specific diagnosis," Dr. Melnick said.

Two Counties Report 3 New Cases of Polio

Greater Washington's 1949 polio toll reached 79 cases yesterday, with two new victims reported in Montgomery County and one in Prince Georges.

Health authorities reported a 2-year-old boy of Route 1, Derwood, Md., and a 3½-year-old girl of the 12,200 block of Judson rd., Silver Spring, were stricken. The boy was admitted to Gallinger Hospital Monday. Hospitalization of the girl had not been reported to officials yesterday.

In Prince Georges, a 9-year-old boy of the 400 block Lincoln ave., Takoma Park, was admitted to Children's Hospital Sunday.

As of yesterday, 22 cases had been reported in Prince Georges County; 12 in Montgomery; five in Alexandria; eight in Arlington County; four in Fairfax and 28 in the District of Columbia.

Hoffman Directs Warning to Europe

By William Lowe

Paris, Aug. 16 (NYHT).—Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation Administrator, put delegates from 19 Marshall Plan countries on official notice here today that they were not doing enough to earn dollars in the American market. He clearly implied that unless they provided him with better proof of progress in unifying Western Europe economically, he could not hope for funds from Congress to finance European recovery next year.

Addressing a special session of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation, the ECA chief told of his difficulties during the past six months in selling the European Recovery Program to Congress even for the present fiscal year.

The Marshall Plan administrator said "I want to say again and again and again to you that now is the time when there must be proof of accomplishment in the direction of genuine cooperation by the European nations to the end that this become as rapidly as possible a single market."

Little Progress Seen In Europe's Economy

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 16 (U.P.).—French Socialist Andre Philipp declared today that "discouragingly little progress" has been made under the Marshall Plan and Europe is more divided economically than ever before.

Diverging from an impassioned plea for European unity, Philipp attacked selfish "national interests" for sabotaging Marshall aid, as the delegates to this embryonic parliament plunged into their first big debate.

Today's developments also included:

1. The formal proposal by Dutch Delegate Jonkheer van de Goes van Naters that Germany be admitted into the Council of Europe. He said he would not press for a vote now.

2. A report that Winston Churchill sometime this week will call on the European nations to forget their traditional rivalries and unite politically.

3. The disclosure of Britain's official view on federation, as laid down by Lord Layton, distinguished economist and newspaper publisher. He said it was out of question in the near future.

4. A blistering denunciation of Britain for "occupation" of Northern Ireland against the wishes of the majority of Irish, by Irish Vice Premier William Norton. Norton's speech was received in stony silence and he was ebuked by the presiding officer.

"The economic reconstruction of Europe must be completed in two or three years if we are to avoid the catastrophe that at present faces us all," Philipp said.

"What is necessary is to set up an international economic body with well-defined functions and authority and able to make decisions."

Turks Let American Seek Ark

Ankara, Turkey, Aug. 16 (U.P.).—The government has granted Dr. Aaron J. Smith, Greensboro, N. C., permission to explore Mt. Ararat for the hull of Noah's Ark, the explorer announced today.

Smith said his expedition will leave Thursday for Ararat. The government earlier refused European expeditions permission to search for the remains of the Ark in an area close to the Soviet Union border.

The expedition was prompted by a Kurdhish shepherd, who reported two years ago he had seen the prow of a ship at the foot of receding glaciers on Mt. Ararat's southwestern slopes. This is a virtually unexplored region.

Russian propaganda organs attacked Smith, as well as Egerton Sykes, British explorer, for wanting to head expeditions to the mountain, charging they were spies.

Tombstone Buying Lag Sends Cutter Digging for Business

Things are tough in the tombstone game, according to Vito Croce, a stone cutter with muscles as hard as the granite he carves.

Time was when Croce had all the business he could handle without leaving his workship at 1154 Bladensburg rd. n.e But today business is off 75 per cent from last year and a man has to hustle to make a living cutting stone. "People are more interested in eating than buying rocks," he said.

Croce was singing the blues yesterday in the auction parlors of Adam A. Weschler & Son at 905 E st. nw. and he was hustling business with a booming voice that had the auctioneer frowning.

The occasion was a United States marshal's sale of two gray Georgia granite tombstones, on the auction block to satisfy a Municipal Court judgment against two Washington monument dealers. Croce said he figures if he can't sell monuments, at least he can fight for the chance to engrave them.

He figured right.

One monument was sold for $210 to an elderly man who refused to give his name. The other sold for $70 to a young woman who also insisted on anonymity. With judicious use of business cards and perseverance, Croce got contracts from the buyers to engrave the stones.

Color is something a youngster can understand . . . he likes things bright and cheery. So paint those walls an attractive color, or paper them with a fairy-tale or cowboy design. And don't forget the fancy decals for the chests of drawers and the end of the bed.

Any youngster would be proud to call the room illustrated above his own. It has everything a child needs . . . yet, if you'll notice, the center part of the room is not cluttered up, but left free for much needed playroom.

Another good thing to remember in furnishing a child's room is this: Children prefer to play on the floor. So cover it with either wall-to-wall carpet or linoleum of a serviceable color . . . but be sure to keep the color of the floor covering in harmony with the rest of the room.

Gen. Waitt Admits to '5-Percent' Probers He's Best Man for Job

Mildred Ortmeyer, Hunt's secretary, who also took down his commentaries on eight other Chemical Corps officers and delivered them to Vaughan's office.

The sketch of Waitt never reached Vaughan. It was found in the files of Hunt's office.

Didn't Use Memo

"I didn't use that memo," Waitt told the senators yesterday. "My brass broke down at that point. I wasn't asked for it. It's just been a source of embarrassment to me."

At one point, just after testimony about the so-called throat-cutting memorandum, Waitt complained that a question by Senator McCarthy was "cruel."

The question had to do with Waitt's connection with the Garsson munitions scandal.

Waitt insisted he was an "innocent bystander" in that case, having done no more than to take a letter from former Representative Andrew May (D., Ky.) to General Eisenhower in Europe during the war.

Waitt is now under suspension as Chief of the Chemical Corps. He and Major General Feldman, the Quartermaster General, having been temporarily relieved of their duties July 16. Both men were claimed by James V. Hunt as close friends.

The Senate subcommittee was seeking yesterday to show that Hunt was boosting Waitt for reappointment and at the same time trying to get a contract from the Chemical Corps for a client—the Deering-Milliken Research Trust of Greenwich, Conn.

General Waitt, a short, wiry man with a New England accent, was wearing his uniform and four rows of decorations and campaign ribbons when he appeared on the witness stand.

Senator O'Conor (D., Md.), who for a time was presiding, asked Waitt what led up to his writing the memorandum on his fellow officers, which was delivered to Vaughan.

"Well," said Waitt, "the occasion . . . was a suggestion from General Vaughan that I give him my estimate, my personal opinion, of those officers most likely to be considered."

"Where was the conversation held?" O'Conor asked.

"It was undoubtedly at a social gathering of some kind; perhaps a cocktail party, at which time I talked with General Vaughan, and the question of my retirement came up. I do not know who mentioned it, but at that time General Vaughan did say that he felt that I was best qualified for the job, that I should succeed myself.

"He said I was only 56 years old, that there was still good service left in me, and that he knew of my abilities, and he thought there was a possibility that I might succeed myself."

Planned for President

O'Conor wanted to know how the memorandum Waitt prepared on the other officers would be used.

"It was my understanding," said Waitt, "that General Vaughan wanted my opinions on those likely candidates for the position, which he would use when the matter of my reappointment came up. I assumed that he would use them with the President."

O'Conor asked why, then, he used the third person, using such expressions as "General Waitt considers this officer" to have a particular virtue or demerit.

"I was preparing that for General Vaughan to present to the President," Waitt explained, "and that was the third person, which was General Vaughan speaking."

No Other Officer "Fit"

"So that it was dictated by you," said O'Conor, "but was intended to be handled by General Vaughan in presentation to the President. Is that correct?"

"That is correct."

"Well, did you in the preparation of the memorandum indicate that any other officer than yourself was fit and qualified for the appointment?"

"No, I did not."

"In other words, you considered that you were the only one qualified and capable to fill the appointment?"

"That is a most embarrassing question to answer, Senator," said Waitt, "but I am forced to answer it.

"I have fought for the Chemical Corps for 30 years. It has been my life. I believe in its great importance to national defense. I feel that we are in a critical period today and I must confess that I felt my leadership should continue.

MAJ. GEN. A. H. WAITT
Gives testimony . . .

"Shouldn't Have Done It"

"Now that is a conceited idea, perhaps, but may I go on further and tell you that I was not alone in that opinion . . . I would even be willing to have you call on Dr. Compton, the chief of the Research and Development Board, and ask him to form a committee of scientists and industrialists and ask them what they think."

"Well," said O'Conor, "if your competence and qualifications were so well known, why did you consider that it was essential that you take this course?

"Well," said the officer, "if anyone feels deeply in a matter and wants it, I feel he has to go and get it. I feel now that it is something that has happened."

Senator Mundt asked why he dictated the commentaries about other Chemical Corps officers in Hunt's office in the Barr Building.

"Such a Personal Matter"

"I did not want to dictate in my own office because it was such a personal matter," Waitt said. "I have complete confidence in my secretary — absolute confidence — but she had to be with these officers; she would be there after my departure, and I preferred to do it where it would be private, away from my own office."

He said it was a matter that "could be of embarrassment."

"It certainly has been," he added, "and I did not want to . . . have it in my own files."

"Did Mr. Hunt know that the memorandum was being prepared?" O'Conor asked.

"I think that he did," General Waitt said. "I would say that I did not discuss the contents of the memorandum with Mr. Hunt, but it is quite likely Mr. Hunt knew that I was preparing a memorandum for General Vaughan."

Admits Hunt Conversation

The questioning here turned to Hunt's quest of a contract for the Deering-Milliken people at the time Waitt was working for reappointment.

Waitt said he had no doubt that a conversation mentioned previously in the testimony took place. This was to the effect that he told Hunt, over the telephone, that the Deering-Milliken was being fixed, that it was all set.

He agreed, too, that he doubtlessly talked to Hunt over the telephone about "Tom"—meaning Judge Advocate General Thomas Greene.

He said he called the Judge Advocate General to determine whether, from a legal standpoint, he could succeed himself. He said that later he undoubtedly told Hunt there was no legal bar.

Knew Hunt 40 Years

Waitt also acknowledged he told Hunt the staff of the Chemical Corps would not like his seeking reappointment.

"What explanation have you for discussing these matters with Colonel Hunt?" O'Conor asked.

"Colonel Hunt was my very close friend," said Waitt. "I saw more of him, perhaps, than I did of any other of my friends in Washington."

He said later he had known Hunt for 40 years, explaining the friendship went back to boyhood days in Massachusetts.

Waitt, asked if he thought Hunt could help him win reappointment, said he assumed Hunt, as a friend, would do what he could.

"I knew he knew many people in high position," Waitt said. "I was not counting on Colonel Hunt to get me the job."

Says Hunt Encouraged Him

He said Hunt did encourage him to seek reappointment. Asked if Hunt mentioned any steps he might take, Waitt said he could not remember any specific suggestions. He then added:

"He knew, I am sure, that I had been in conversation with General Vaughan and that General Vaughan had encouraged me."

Waitt said he was also encouraged by American science and industry to believe he should continue in office.

Senator McCarthy questioned the general on his two commentaries on Col. Charles E. Loucks, one the official fitness report and the other estimate given to Vaughan. The first was full of praise, the second said he did not have "sufficient drive."

Report Made in 1947

Waitt said the fitness report was made out in 1947, the commentary that went to Vaughan in 1949.

"Did he lose some drive during that time?" McCarthy asked.

"He had not lost any drive," said Waitt. "He had the same amount of drive that he had had, but it is too bad to have to discuss one's close friends here in public and openly.

"If you insist that I develop this, I can only stand on what I said there . . . I wanted an officer with more drive to take that job (chief of technical division). I thought I was not getting the—the national defense was not getting the results that they needed, and here I had to find another officer to take the place of a man who is, perhaps, the best friend I have in the service."

Fair to President?

Waitt, in response to a question, said he dictated the estimates of Colonel Loucks and the others in such a way it would appear Vaughan had done the dictating.

Senator McCarthy asked:

"Do you think it was fair to the

Only 2 Red Envoys Left in Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Aug. 16 (U.P.).— Moscow's recall of Soviet Ambassador Anatoli Lavrentiev has left only two out of seven Communist Bureau of Information countries represented by ambassadors in this capital.

A survey today showed that only the Romanian and Polish ambassadors are in Belgrade. Lavrentiev, and the ambassadors of Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Albania, "relieved of their duties" months ago, have not been replaced. The Bulgarian embassy said its chief, also absent, was expected back "in four days."

Russia's charge d'affairs insisted a new ambassador would be sent to replace Lavrentiev.

But Western diplomats were skeptical. They called the withdrawal of Lavrentiev a "deliberate slap" at Marshal Tito.

Moscow announced early today that Lavrentiev had been relieved of his duties here, and made a deputy foreign minister.

of pets. Mr. Truman is no particular pet fancier but that doesn't keep dog, cat and bird lovers from sending him a steady stream of their favorite animals. These usually are relayed to friends.

Every President receives a lot of free clothing. The late Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman, both men with an eye for bow ties, got a lot of their favorite neckwear in the mail.

Many edible gifts come to the President. The first Maine salmon reaches him every year, the first Maryland strawberries. Every Thanksgiving, turkeys come in by the dozen.

Back before the Civil War, Presidents received cheese by the ton. Congressional committees regarded these gifts as proper tribute and thought nothing of it, except to drop in at the White House, along with hundreds of Washingtonians, on the nights the big cheeses were cut.

What happens to the gifts today? Some of the food goes into deep freeze units installed in the White House several years ago by the Government. The more perishable food goes to hospitals.

Many unusual gifts are stored away as curiosities. Some of the smaller ones turn up on the President's desk. The new car Mr. Truman got in 1946 is now in Independence.

Waitt Admits He's the Tops

President, the man who has the job of picking men to run the defense establishment, do you think it was fair for the President to have Vaughan present something to him as his evaluation, when actually it was the evaluation of one of the candidates for the job? Was it not a very unfair thing, unfair to the President and unfair to the country?"

"Senator," said Waitt, "you are putting words in my mouth and asking me a leading question."

McCarthy then broke the question down and asked it "piece by piece."

"Let me ask you this now," he said. "Am I correct in this, that the task of the President's aide, of Mr. Vaughan, was to advise the President in this matter; was to make his own independent investigation and then give the President a clear picture of the capabilities of these men, so that the President could make an intelligent decision? That was Vaughan's task, was it not?"

Question Unanswered

"Yes, I think so," said Waitt.

"If you were in the President's position, and you were submitted this document, you would assume this was the result of your aide's own personal investigation, would you not?"

"All I can tell you," said Waitt, "is that General Vaughan did not tell me how to couch the document. I presented it to him in the way that I did."

A minute or so later, Waitt was being asked whether he had called himself one of the world's leading authorities on toxicological warfare, and had given the answer that evoked the outburst of laughter.

At the end, General Waitt read a statement in which he said Hunt had never asked him for any favors, and there was no agreement whereby he would assist Deering-Milliken, the organization for which Hunt was trying to get a contract from the Chemical Corps.

The hearing will be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning in Room 357 of the Senate Office Building.

Experts Differ On Waitt as Toxicologist

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Toxicology: The science which treats of poisons, their effects, antidotes and recognition.

Whatever else may se said of Maj. Gen. Alden H. Waitt, he is (1) no shrinking violet and he is (2) a man the question of whose expertness in his field arouses the fiercest sort of controversy.

The latter fact was established last night by a poll of Washington chemical scientists, who variously described the general as a man whom "you'd have to go outside the service to find his equal" to "honest to God, if he's any kind of toxicologist, I've never heard of the gentleman."

General Waitt's claim to being one who doesn't hide his candle under a bushel was established incontestably yesterday in his Capitol Hill testimony in which he described himself as the man "best qualified" to head the Army Chemical Corps. This added to his previous self-evaluation:

"General Waitt is recognized as one of the leading authorities in the world on the subject of toxicological warfare."

Here is the reaction given here last night to these matters by various chemical scientists and toxicologists, all of whom fiercely demanded anonymity:

"That statement about himself is absolutely 100 per cent true," said one, a retired chemical warfare officer. "The only thing is, he showed lack of judgment. Being head of the Chemical Corps is a fighting job, in which you've got to damn them up one side and down the other in the Pentagon, instead of sneaking around the back door to people like General Vaughan."

Said another chemical scientist and former chemical-warfare officer: "I feel definitely he is the best-qualified man for the job, both in the scientific and field-application parts. He wrote one of the leading books on the subject. It's a book with a green cover, 'Chemical Warfare' I think is the name of it, I've got an inscribed copy."

A toxicologist had a different view: "If being unknown makes you an authority in a field, then he's an authority in toxicology."

Another said a toxicologist might well never have heard of the general, however brilliant the latter might be, unless he had specialized in chemical warfare.

Money Orders

Virginian Linked to Huge Theft

New York, Aug. 16 (NYHT).—A 22-year-old Virginian was arrested last night and held today in $15,000 bail by United States Commissioner Edward W. McDonald, who linked the prisoner with the theft last April of $340,000 worth of money orders from the American Express Co. in Philadelphia.

The man was Robert Lee Robertson, formerly of Rectory, Va., who was taken into custody by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in his furnished room at 306 West 99th st. The tall blond youth, who recently served two months in the Marine Corps, was charged specifically with transporting in interstate commerce a "falsely made or altered $50 draft of the American Express Co., which he negotiated in Richmond, Va., on August 10."

John C. Hilly, assistant United States attorney, told Commissioner McDonald that burglars broke into the Philadelphia offices of the express company last April 8, and stole $340,000 worth of money order blanks. Between $30,000 and $40,000 worth of the blanks have since been cashed in the United States and Canada, made out either to Joseph Preston or Joseph Walters at non-existent addresses on West 47th st.

At the time of his arrest, Robertson was at liberty on $1000 bail on an indictment charging him with the theft of an automobile at Quantico, Va., and its transportation to New York. When he was arrested, a blank $50 express company draft was found in his room, for which he could give no accounting. Three other arrests for passing the stolen drafts have already been made, Hilly said.

The amounts owed are: Children's Hospital—$1227; Casualty—$50,382 and Emergency—$51,256.

Grant Should Equal Fees

The blow dealt to operation of the District day-care centers was supported by the following committee justification:

"The committee is of the opinion that appropriations for this work should be on an equal basis with the fees paid by those using the centers. These fees are estimated at approximately $48,000 for the fiscal year 1950. Therefore, an appropriation of $50,000 is recommended."

Other funds approved for Disrepair the Municipal Fish Market, damaged by fire last month; $23,266 for cost of District patients at St. Elizabeths Hospital; $41,116 to the Collector's Office to refund erroneously collected taxes; $5000 to the License Bureau to administer the new cigarette levy; $122,186 as the District's share in administering the United States Courts here; $19,500 to the Traffic and Vehicles Division to install a new system of registering autos; $32,700 to the Superintendent of Buildings for operating expenses; $32,125 to the Parole Board and $8500 for settlement of claims.

Senate Kills Welfare Plan

ment-owned hospitals and medical programs.

After the vote, Taft issued a statement that the defeat should serve "as a warning to the Administration that plans submitted must be in substantial compliance with the Hoover Commission recommendations."

He suggested that the President submit a new welfare plan which would conform with the commission's outline.

Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) told the Senate a large part of the opposition appeared to be based on personal dislike of Ewing.

Lodge, supporting the plan, said he shared the dislike for Ewing but added, "We can't decide Government reorganization on the basis of like or dislike of one official."

After rejecting it, the Senate agreed to vote at 5 p. m. today on Plan 2. This, also disapproved by committee, calls for transfer of the unemployment service and unemployment compensation functions from the Federal Security Agency to the Labor Department.

The Senate also agreed to vote, at 6 p. m. today, on Reorganization Plan 7. This would transfer the Bureau of Roads to the Commerce Department. Since the plan was submitted, however, Congress has transferred the bureau to the new Federal Services Agency.

No Action Yet On U. S. Pay

due within that time. In other words they have funds available to meet debts incurred before last night's deadline, but it is after that week or 10 days the real pinch will be felt, according to the Budget Bureau.

Twice already this year Congress has passed stop-gap appropriation bills. The first one gave emergency financing up to midnight July 31; the second ran until last midnight, although the House wanted it to run until the end of this month. It was the Senate that cut it back two weeks.

Meanwhile, Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) said after a meeting of the policy committee that even a 10-day breather recess over Labor Day would be quite impossible.

The Senate, he said, would receive only a Friday-to-Tuesday Labor Day weekend.

Lucas said the Senate will act on the foreign-aid program, minimum wage and reciprocal trade legislation, repeal of oleomargarine taxes, and a displaced persons measure. He refused to promise that would be all.

Senate Republican Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) accused the Administration of filibustering. He said the Administration wanted Congress to stay in session to serve as "a sounding board for the Truman welfare state and to get votes for the next election."

House Democratic leaders have already scheduled a two-week vacation beginning August 22.

$13.03 Collected In Sales Tax for Each Marylander

Baltimore, Aug. 16 (AP)—Comptroller James J. Lacy figured out today that $13.03 was collected in sales tax for every person in Maryland during the past year.

Lacy's figures are based on total collections for the year ended June 30 of $28,000,914 and an estimated population of 2,148,000.

Baltimore merchants turned in more than half of the total.

City taxes amounted to $16,338,234, an increase of 14.4 per cent over the first year's collection. The 23 counties produced $10,539,538, 21.16 per cent more than the previous year.

ITU to Hold Convention Here in 1950

Oakland, Calif., Aug. 16 (AP).—After selecting Washington, D. C., for its 1950 conclave, the International Typographical Union today swept aside a convention move to abandon its embattled two-year-old policy for bargaining with employers.

Selection of the Nation's Capital for next year's session was by unanimous vote.

Delegates shouted down a proposal by the St. Louis delegation to repeal the contract guiding provision in ITU laws. The resolution drew some support from the floor—but none at all in the voting.

ITU President Woodruff Randolph announced the decision as unanimous.

"Abandonment of our policy," Randolph told the convention, "means complete surrender."

Delegates also:

Defeated without debate a proposal to call a general labor holiday until the Taft-Hartley Act is repealed.

Urged a 35-hour work week to include all Government employes.

Several speakers declared the collective bargaining policy had not been successful.

In the background of the convention debate was a string of ITU strikes throughout the country; its biggest dispute against Chicago newspaper publishers, now in its twenty-first month; a Federal District Court order that the ITU live up to Taft-Hartley provisions, and 410 management complaints to the NLRB.

Fred Berlemann, jr., St. Louis, argued that many of the clauses in the ITU form contract had been ruled illegal under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Randolph took the microphone to defend his policy. He said, "All we have asked the employers to do is accord us the things which have been ours for years and not outlawed by the Taft-Hartley Act."

An overwhelming majority of the speakers sided with Randolph in the two-hour debate on the issue.

Jesse B. Manbeck, for five years president of the Washington local and an announced candidate for ITU president to succeed Randolph, told a reporter his 12,000-mile campaign tour convinced him the ITU membership was "receptive" to a change in leadership.

$100 Gaming Charge Fine

Douglas Vance, 37, of 1186 Morse st. ne., yesterday was fined $100 and given a 60-day suspended jail sentence on a charge of possessing numbers slips after a hearing in Silver Spring Police Court.

London, Aug. 16 (AP).—British leaders are developing their arguments for the September 7 meeting in Washington of American, British and Canadian finance ministers on the sterling area's dollar problem.

Government sources said the top argument will be this: That unless a quick, long-term settlement of the dollar crisis is found, communism cannot be held back in the Middle East and the Orient.

They added the agenda will allow the dollar crisis to be examined together with the big Western powers' political and strategic need to contain communism on all fronts.

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin will leave for Washington August 27 on the Queen Elizabeth. Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will leave a day or two later. Traveling with Bevin will be United States Ambassador Lewis Douglas, who will join the Washington talks.

The Government informants said Cripps and Bevin will stress that Britain will be better able to resist communism in regions under her influence—like the Middle and Far East—if she is assured of a regular dollar flow.

They pointed out that one way in which that flow could be maintained was for the United States to agree:

1. To undertake a big-scale program of capital investment in the British Commenwealth and in the colonial (non-self-governing) empire.

2. To join the commonwealth in fixing prices and markets for such basic commodities as cocoa, rubber, jute, wool, tin, copper and various ferrous and nonferrous metals for some years ahead.

that the official rate of about $4.03 for the pound must and will be cut—despite government denials. To the people, bonds represent pounds.

Two other theories are less widely cited. One is that the government has issued too many bonds in payment to former owners of nationalized industry. The other is that "bear selling" upset the market.

The Labor Party newspaper, the Daily Herald, blames "bear raiders" who sell government bonds for deferred delivery with the hope of buying them at a lower price when actual delivery is due.

number of cases the unmarried father doesn't ever know he is one.

The girl doesn't want to tell him; she doesn't want anyone else to tell him. Because of her own motives in seeking what was actually not a normal love relation, she feels degraded. She feels a great guilt, a need to suffer.

In cases where the male partner is told that he is to be a father, he may offer marriage—if he is single. But to the girl, who either has never heard this offer before or who, if she has, has turned it down, marriage is seldom the solution.

If the first offer of marriage comes on this "shotgun" basis, she may withdraw simply because she feels the man would only offer marriage as an emergency measure. Her reasons for refusal may be more deeply lodged in the need to "suffer."

The "unmarried" father who has a wife—and perhaps a family—is a different story. He may have a happy home life. He may keep his own wife on a pedestal. But because of a division in his personality, he may consciously or subconsciously feel the need to degrade for the extramarital relationship.

Dangerous as generalities are in dealing with the unwed father, most social workers believe that in a number of cases where there is an unhappy relationship between husband and wife, the husband may go outside the home to form a fairly permanent relationship with "another woman."

If this relationship leads to pregnancy, he probably will help finance the childbirth, and try to provide both for the woman and her child.

The relatively few cases of unwed fathers which come to the attention of social agencies illustrate the theory that unwed fathers usually are emotionally unstable.

There was a case of a young law student, who carried on a half-friendly relationship with a girl already out of school and holding a responsible job.

The law student was working, part-time at a job which supplemented scholarship funds. It would be a narrow squeak for him to get through the next three years of college work, provided he maintained sufficiently high grades to keep his scholarship.

As time went on, the law student became determined to marry the girl. She thought their relationship was pleasant. But she was convinced they were temperamentally unsuited for marriage.

The girl became pregnant. She did not tell the law student. He only learned that she was a U.M. when she decided to offer the child for adoption, and the question of the "putative father" came up.

The law student angrily refused to allow the child to be adopted. Again he proposed marriage. This time, he promised he'd even "dig ditches" to support the girl and child.

But this meant giving up his law career. The girl still could not consent to marriage. The law student eventually was persuaded to permit the child's adoption.

In another case, marriage did follow a pregnancy out of wedlock. The couple concerned had known each other over a long period.

Whenever they were together for any length of time, they quarreled. Sometimes it was over a little thing; sometimes it was a difference of opinion over some issue both considered vital.

By the time the baby came, the man had decided that his responsibility was so great that he must marry the girl. She had held a good job, and had saved enough money to see her through her pregnancy.

He moved into her apartment, and they got married. Even at the time the marriage was performed, the man in the case expressed doubts that it would work. But, he added, it was his "responsibility."

The marriage didn't work, and after two years of trying the couple separated. In subsequent interviews with the man in the case, the social worker found at least one reason that particular marriage had gone on the rocks.

The man had a strong "responsibility" but he had never backed it up with earning power. He had been more supported than supporting.

The woman kept her child, and at last contact with the social worker seemed to be making a good adjustment to life.

Navy Urged Superliner, Witnesses Say

By The Associated Press

A congressional committee heard last night that construction of the $70,373,000 superliner, on which the Government is granting $42,285,000 in subsidies, was urged by the Navy as an important unit of national defense.

Moreover, the committee was told that the ship, being built at Newport News, Va., will be the fastest commercial ship afloat. Its exact speed potential has been kept secret.

The information was given by Maritime Commission witnesses at a stormy session of the House Committee on Expenditures that is investigating an assertion by Comptroller Lindsay C. Warren that not less than 25 million dollars the commission granted in subsidies for the superliner and five other ships is excessive.

Warren said the excess, in Government contributions of about 80 million dollars toward the construction of the ships—to cost a total of 150 million dollars and delivered to private operating companies at about 70 million dollars—is "due to various irregular procedures, inaccurate calculations and unjustifiable liberal interpretations of statutory language."

As the committee delved into the subsidy figures for the superliner, Huntington T. Morse, a Maritime Commission official, said that there seemed to be "collaboration of the committee and the comptroller's office, to throw things out of the blue at the commission."

He said the comptroller's office has used "excerpts and culls" from Maritime Commission files to reach conclusions.

Capitol Press Gallery Group Bars Labor Unit

By the United Press

The Standing Committee of Correspondents, which governs the Congressional press galleries, announced yesterday it had denied, by a 3 to 2 vote, gallery membership to the Labor Press Associates.

The organization is being sponsored by the AFL, CIO and independent unions to provide a labor-sponsored press association of union publications.

Specifically, the committee denied the application of Alvaine Hamilton to represent the organization in the House and Senate press galleries.

The committee reported that the majority felt the organization was barred by the gallery regulation excluding representatives for associations or publications of "special economic, labor or business interests."

The minority was said to regard the association as representing "a general labor interest and not a special labor interest in the meaning of the proviso."

Voting to admit Hamilton were William S. White and William F. Arbogast. Voting against were David Botter, Philip W. Dodd and Robert D. Byrnes.

On Byrnes' motion, the committee agreed to consider revision of rules governing admission to the galleries.

Spud Money Lines Canadian Pockets, Too

ased on previous years, it can be stimated that Canadian imports eached at least 10 million bushels.

In 1947, Canadian imports were nly 3,500,000 bushels—and many ere attracted that year by th- igher prices made possible by our rice support program.

94,000 Before War

In prewar days, from 1937 to 1941, the average annual shipment f Canadian spuds into the United tates was only 994,000 bushels.

In addition, last year many truckloads were smuggled across he border. Border patrols pick p loads constantly along the laine frontier, and many more are eing trucked to other points, officials admit.

In fact, certain types of trucks re referred to as "smuggler rucks." They are old timers—models earlier than 1939. Old machines are used because they re forfeited if caught.

In other words, Canada sold an stimated 10 million bushels of potatoes in our markets last year pore than normally. If those potatoes didn't find their way into our Government purchases, they at least replaced an equal amount of United States grown tubers that did. Those 10 million bushels cost the American taxpayer about 18 million dollars.

These same potato experts fear too many growers have been content to take the high prices paid by the Government and have neglected their traditional markets. It was easier to sell to the Government. There is only one inspection—when they are shipped. In commercial markets there is also an inspection at the buyer's end. If the shipment doesn't pass there, it is turned down. Government inspection, when buying for price supports, is notoriously haphazard.

Now Ship By Rail

In the old days, Maine shipped its winter potatoes south by coastwise steamer. That transportation disappeared during the war. Now it must ship by rail.

Freight rates from Maine to Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, etc., average about $1.24 per 100 pounds, plus tax, or about $1.27. The Canadians ship by boat from Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, to those ports for 55 cents.

Under the reciprocal trade agreements, Canada may export 2,500,000 bushels of seed potatoes to the United States at 37½ cents duty; above that it is 75 cents. It may send us only 750,000 bushels of table potatoes, on which the duty is 37½ cents.

The difference in freight rates just about equals the duty.

Those Southern States plant northern grown seed potatoes. That accounted for most of prewar imports. All the Canadian spuds are still shipped as seed. The price is the same as table stock. The Dixie buyer can plant them or eat them, as he wishes. They ate more than were planted.

Hit by Dollar Shortage

The dollar shortage abroad cost Canada, a hard currency country like the United States, most of its former potato export business, particularly in the United Kingdom and Argentina. If it wasn't for our price supports they would be in real difficulty now.

Every potato man here complains about this Canadian competition. But they themselves are encouraging it. Here's what Kingdon Harvey, editor of the Fort Fairfield Review, told his readers in the heart of the Maine potato country last month:

"A paradoxical (and rather amusing) situation is that of the Aroostook grower who has been hollering blue blazes about how the importation of Canadian potatoes has injured the American market.

"In many cases he is the same person who went into Canada to buy his own seed this spring. The excuse was that it cost about $1 a hundredweight less.

"There are those growers in Aroostook who sold their own seed to the Government at support prices and went across the border to buy some of the New Brunswick stock." He added that about 20 per cent of the seed planted in Maine this year came from Canada.

"The most flagrant angle of the Canadian seed racket," Harvey says, "has been the selling of Canadian potatoes to the United States Government under the price support program.

Maine Bags in Truck

"One truck that was examined by border patrolmen, when support prices were at their top, was found to contain about 350 sacks of Canadian 100s, plus enough Maine bags to repack the whole load." Such incidents, he asserted, are too common to be ignored.

Aroostook County is absolutely dependent on its potato industry. It hasn't anything to take its place. Potatoes make up more than half Maine's entire agricultural income. The result is that much careful thought is being given to the effects of the price support program on the permanent economy of this section. There is a common feeling that price supports are not the answer.

Allen W. Manchester, extension economist of the Agriculture Department here, is one of those concerned about the future of Maine's potato business. He points out that of Maine's 73-million-bushel crop last year, nobody wanted 40 million bushels at the fixed price—90 per cent of parity.

Manchester feels that the recent tremendous drop in consumption may be due in part at least to the high prices maintained by Government supports. "It's going to be tough sledding for the potato industry if per capita consumption doesn't stop going down," he warns.

"Last year's figure was an all-time low, 108 pounds a person. It had never been below 120 pounds before, and it had got down to that only lately. Americans used to eat around 180 pounds apiece when a lot of us were young."

Manchester says that if prices this year remain around the lower, 60 per cent price level, "we will have a chance to find out how much last year's low consumption was the result of consumer resentment against the price."

Distribution Is Factor

Another factor hurt Maine's permanent potato industry. That was the Government's distribution of potatoes it bought. Maine's harvest came at the tag end of the national price support buying. CCC distributed potatoes from other sections to school lunches, State and Federal institutions, charities, etc. Such outlets were exhausted when the Maine crop was ready. Outside of deliveries to the local starch mills, Government purchases went almost entirely to the Publicker Industries, liquor distillers, in Philadelphia. There it was made into commercial alcohol or potato flour.

The Government got virtually nothing for these potatoes—and Maine spuds have no superior. There was some minor benefit through added internal revenue alcohol tax. There was a very small return from potato flour bought by the Army for relief feeding in occupied areas abroad.

Not only did the Commodity Credit Corp. take almost a complete loss on the 67-million-dollar Maine purchases, but it took an additional loss for shipping the potatoes to Philadelphia or other destinations.

Maine growers contend that this distribution prevented them from developing a permanent market such as much have been aided through direct distribution to schools, and other public institutions.

The operation of the price support program kept these superior potatoes out of the commercial markets, while inferior types that would have been just as good for industrial use went to the retail trade. Potato men see in this one explanation for the sudden abrupt drop in per capita consumption.

At least 31 Aroostook farmers get more than $100,000 apiece in support cash. See John W. Ball's fourth article Thursday.)

California Potato Area Fails To Vote Marketing Agreement

Kern County Calif., one of the most concentrated potato-growing areas in the country, recently failed to vote a marketing agreement for the 1950 crop.

It is the first negative vote registered by any major area against such an agreement. The vote puts Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan on the spot. He must decide whether to punish Kern County by removing the benefits of price supports.

Brannan last November 9 threatened that any area refusing such agreements would be denied price supports. However, many price-support experts, both in Congress and out, declare the law does not give Brannan such authority.

The result of the Kern election has not been made public by the department. Reports yesterday were that it was held up to give Brannan a chance to decide his course.

The law provides that marketing agreements, to be enforceable, must be voted by 66 2/3 per cent of all growers. The vote in Kern County was reportedly only slightly more than 40 per cent.

Aroostook County, Maine, the Nation's biggest potato county, this year is operating under a marketing agreement that (1) cut its potato acreage 23.6 per cent under last year, and (2) provided that all potatoes sold in commercial channels should measure 2¼ inches in diameter. The Government grade is only 1⅞ inches.

Kern County grows mostly early potatoes. Because of unusual growing conditions, and a special type adapted to that area, it has greatly increased production in recent years. By rushing its crop to Eastern markets by special trains, it has taken markets formerly held by early growers in Virginia, the Carolinas and Georgia. The California spuds, known as White Rose, have outsold the others, although at a premium because of higher transportation costs.

Kern County in 1947 produced 21 million bushels; in 1948 24 million and this year so far 30 million. Acreage increased from 47,000 in 1947 to 60,000 in 1948. It then dropped to 50,508 this year.

Last year the Government bought three million bushels at a cost of about four million dollars to hold prices up.

Many of the growers are members of a religious sect that came from Canada years ago, drained some swamps, and now raises as much as 600 bushels an acre. They are opposed to Government restrictions, but are willing to accept Government funds for their surplus spuds.

Adenauer Rules Out Red 'Collaboration'

Bonn, Germany, Aug. 16 (AP).—Dr. Kenrad Adenauer, probable chancellor of the new West German Republic, today said he will not collaborate in any way with the Russians.

The 73-year-old chairman of the victorious Christian Democratic Party declared in his first interview since the count of votes in Sunday's election:

"Eastern Germany (the Russian zone) constitutes for us the foremost and most difficult question. We must move very cautiously. We ought not to give the impression, either in Germany or in the United States, that we shall collaborate in any way with the Russians."

"It is impossible," he continued, for the West German state "to collaborate with any area dominated by the Russians."

Not Pessimist on Unity

The veteran political leader was not pessimistic over the chances of eastern and western Germany becoming "a unified state" eventually, but he indicated such unity is not around the corner.

"We cannot allow the people of eastern Germany to feel that we have given them up," he added.

"The first real duty" of the republic, Adenauer said, will be "to make every family a home-owner"—to solve the housing problem.

He added that the new government "will have to reexamine" the touchy problem raised by Allied dismantling of German industrial plants.

"We must try to solve this question without too much narrow-mindedness and too much stubbornness," he said.

Leaders Called to Parleys

The new West German government, dominated by conservatives, will be created in Bonn next weekend. Leaders of the Christian Democratic Party were called today to a series of conferences, the goal of which are:

1. To form a coalition of right-wing groups and establish an unchallenged majority over the Socialists, who still are a major party.

2. To choose the first chancellor in Germany since Hitler and recommend a candidate for the Presidency.

Adenauer's party won 139 seats in Sunday's balloting. The free Democrats, a right wing group likely to join in a coalition with the Christian Democrats, got 52 seats. The socialists, led by Kurt Schumacher, got 131 seats and represent a powerful minority. The Communists, with only 15 seats, are a negligible factor. More than 100 seats went to candidates representing various minor parties.

The United States high commissioner for Germany, John J. McCloy, said in Frankfurt today he would favor steps to include the new republic in the Council of Europe now in session at Strasbourg, France.

planned on a site in Rock Creek Park.

Commission members said the "revised plans" consisted primarily of the new site location and a more convincing argument that the returns from the celebration would more than equal the three million dollar Federal outlay.

In testimony before the committee, Barron estimated that the Government stood to gain a total direct return of $13,861,000.

Barron explained that his figures were based on the Freedom Fair running two seasons, beginning next April 15—the anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the District of Columbia.

He estimated the fair would draw 15 million visitors over the two-year period.

In the course of the sesqui hearings, Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.), who has always been fearful the Freedom Fair might become a "honky-tonk" affair, pointedly asked Barron:

"You have to have a hurdy-gurdy to make it go?"

"Yes, sir.," replied Barron. "But we think, Congressman, we can create bright and appropriate entertainment without having Sally Rand in a fan dance."

D. C. Official to Attend Falls Church Festival

More than 50 exhibits, games, entertainment acts and contests will fill the three-acre festival plot on Hillwood ave. opposite the Falls Church High School.

23,500 Workers Idle at Hudson, Chrysler Plants

Detroit, Aug. 16 (AP).—Hudson closed its plant and two Chrysler factories remained shut down today as auto industry labor disputes idled 23,500 workers.

Of the total, 15,000 were sent home by Hudson. The dispute there concerned the size of the working staff in the materials handling department, according to a company spokesman. There was no comment from CIO United Auto Workers Local 154.

Another 8500 employes at Chrysler's Jefferson and Kercheval plants here stayed out in a dispute that came to a head yesterday.

Officials of UAW Local 7 charged that a probationary employe fired last Saturday was thrown out of the plant bodily by plant protection men. A union steward who ordered a walkout to protest the firing was dismissed.

3-Week-Old Baby Said to Be Walking

Murray, Utah, Aug. 16 (AP)—The three-week-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. La Verl Benson hasn't a name yet but she is already walking.

Mrs. Benson's doctor confirmed it. He has cautioned her not to let the energetic infant walk too much.

The doctor said he had seen the baby "lift its knees and take four or five steps" while Mrs. Benson partially supported it. He added that the mother told him the baby had taken similar steps with less assistance.

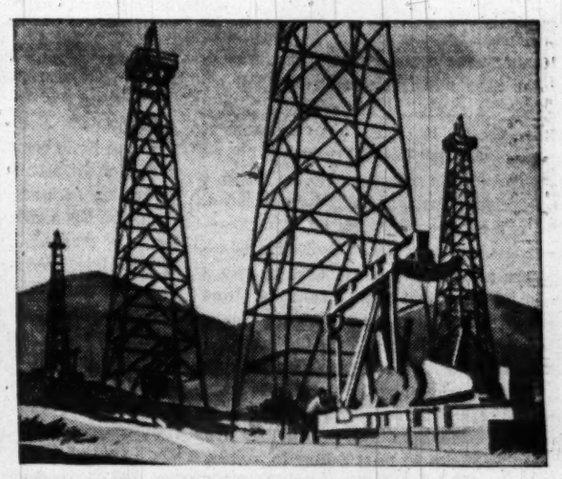
Your Biggest Money's-Worth in Oil...

Comes to You from Competitive Efficiency like this!

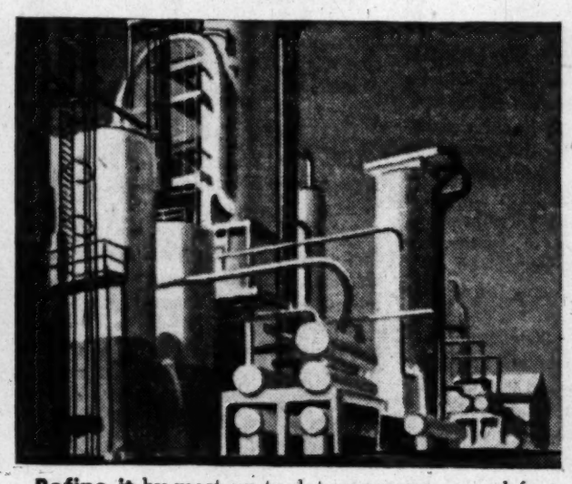
IN SOCONY-VACUUM'S OPERATION, these major steps—from exploration to delivered product—are carefully co-ordinated to assure maximum efficiency all down the line, maximum savings for you.

First, find the oil—To satisfy the growing demand, we must maintain a constant search for new oil. This in spite of the fact that we purchase large amounts of our crude oil needs from independent producers.

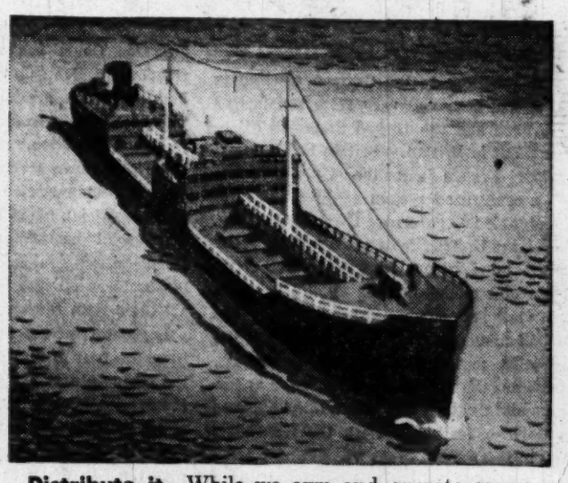


Then drill for it—Even after oil is found, development of the field entails great cost. New wells must be drilled constantly to replace depleted wells—and so maintain petroleum supply.

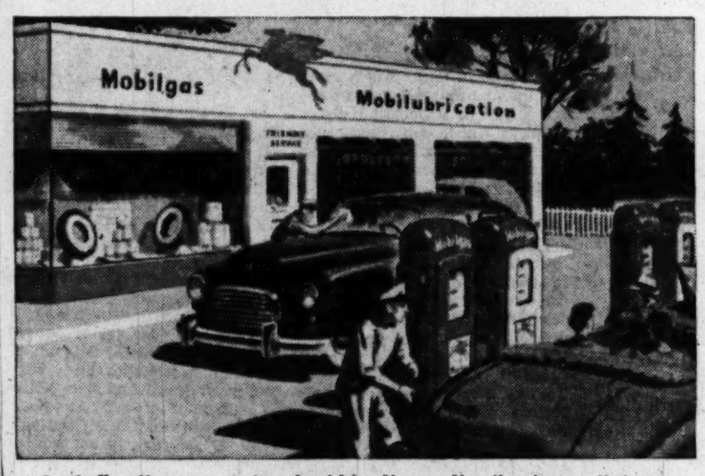
Get it to refinery—Although we use other common carrier pipelines, in 1948 Socony-Vacuum laid 3,000 miles of new lines needed to reach new fields and improve distribution.



Refine it by most up-to-date processes, geared for high output. Oil refinery equipment, by the way, which cost $500 a barrel of capacity before the war, now costs $1,000.



Distribute it—While we own and operate many ships, we also charter vessels and tank cars—rely on common and contract haulers. The combined result—top efficiency, lower cost to you.



And finally serve it—besides direct distribution, efficiency dictates the use of over 1,400 independent wholesalers and some 45,000 independent dealers to whom of course, we give expert technical and marketing counsel to help with their well-located, up-to-the-minute service facilities.

A STRONG NATION depends on strong Industries—strong Industries depend on strong Companies.

Socony-Vacuum—or any company in America—is only as strong as its ability to compete efficiently in serving you . . .

. . . with productive power to help build National Security . . . with quality products at low prices to make your dollars buy more.

Payless Payday

Year after year, Federal employes face suspensions of income, with no little inconvenience and sometimes at considerable cost, because of the failure of Congress to pass appropriation bills on time. This session is no exception. Some 2½ million Government workers have a bleak prospect for the August dog days, when many have been planning vacations, because final action has been stalled on several important money bills. In respect of the armed forces, the payless payday adds insult to injury, for the sorely needed military pay raise is also bogged down in the Senate.

The blame for the snarl cannot be laid wholly at any one door. The House generally has a better record than the Senate for expeditious handling of appropriations, but parliamentary shenanigans in the lower chamber have combined with windbaggery in the Senate to frustrate action. For example, the resolution in the House to continue credit to moneyless Government agencies was tied to the President's budget recommendation rather than to the probable appropriation limit, and this foredoomed it.

It is a sorry commentary on the cumbersomeness of Congress that the National Legislature seems incapable of dealing with a rank injustice that recurs annually. One partial solution is in sight when the war is officially terminated, for then the provision of the congressional reorganization act calling for adjournment by the end of July probably will speed up action. Meanwhile, it is the careless abandon with which they are treated that must be most galling to payless employes. Take, for instance, the calloused remark of Representative Taber that Government departments have been left without funds before and no permanent damage resulted. And then Congress wonders why employes leave the Government!

Reactions To Germany

The reactions to the German election in the Allied countries vary from satisfaction in France and the United States to disappointment in Britian. Britain had held out against France and the United States for a centralized system of government in the organic law governing the new Germany. It took the United States a long time to make up its mind before accepting the French thesis and moderating its application with the view of compromising French and British standpoints. Thus the victory of the federalist party, the Christian Democrats, vindicates the Franco-American stand as corresponding not only to wise policy but also to German feelings. With the federalists now in the saddle, there will not be a tendency to dodge the obligations of federation and to press for centralization, as there would have been if the nationalistic Social Democrats had been victorious.

The federalist party which topped the polls is one of the Catholic parties in Europe. The Christian Democrats are really a coalition of interests steeped in the locality and differing in degree in their religiosity. The church took an active part in the campaign in their behalf. The intervention, which was criticized by the Social Democratic Party leader, Kurt Schumacher, probably helped the Christian Democrats. Some commentators emphasize that this is a victory for the Right rather than for federation. Such a designation is no help to understanding. All German parties are devoted in different degrees to reform aimed at welfare legislation. The main cleavage in Germany, as we said yesterday, is over the issue familiar in American history, viz, the authority which should initiate social reform, federal or state.

The losing Social Democratic Party is an image of the Labor Party in Britain, and has been nursed by the British, though during the election Kurt Schumacher was critical of the Allied authorities, particularly the British. He was bitter, for example, on the dismantling program. If successful, the Social Democrats would have struggled to get more authority for the federal government so as to put the country in readiness for a program of nationalization of industry. The British looked upon this prospect with complacency. Mr. Bevin in his policy on Germany thought of the Germans as potential Socialists who would keep pace with Socialist Britain rather than as Germans who require to be fitted into the European community. The British mistake of backing a party was made by neither the United States nor France. But only the French sought to prevent the Germans from making their old mistake of elevating minor groups into a number of political parties the proliferation of which is inimical to operations by a representative government. They were the only Ally that refused to license minor parties for places on the ballot.

Thus without French action the turnout for the minor parties would have been greater than the figures show, and that would have meant even more embarrassment than will probably be experienced when the government starts to function. Except for this aspect of the election, however, the results are acceptable to the French. And that is supremely important, for the road to the Europeanization of Germany is through a French-German understanding. There is more hope of such a rapprochement now that the French have a Christian Democrat government to deal with—especially one headed by Konrad Adenauer, who happens to be on terms of close personal friendship with the Foreign Minister of France, Robert Schuman, a man of great sagacity and of European instincts.

Freedom In Maryland

No one who has followed the trend of Supreme Court opinions in civil liberties cases will be surprised that Judge Sherbow in Baltimore has held the Ober law to be unconstitutional. That statute, as we pointed out when it was under debate at Annapolis, was a dragnet intended to catch Communists but broad enough to sweep in vast numbers of innocent citizens who may be only cranks or nonconformists. It provided stiff penalties for mere membership in organizations deemed to be subversive. Sweeping beyond any reasonable control of subversive acts, it set up a sort of thought police resembling the systems maintained behind the iron curtain more than our own.

Judge Sherbow struck down the statute for a variety of reasons, any one of which would doubtless have been sufficient by itself. The Maryland Legislature had attempted to make Mr. Ober's brainchild an emergency statute without complying with the requirements of the State constitution. The statute defining the crime of being subversive was so vague that it failed to comply with the standards of "due process of law." The Supreme Court has often held that when a legislature makes any act punishable it must set up "ascertainable standards of guilt." No such standards could be found in the Ober law.

The dilemma confronting residents of the Free State stands out plainly from one of Judge Sherbow's illustrations. Some unions are accused of being subversive. If the union has a closed shop, workers cannot resign as members without losing their jobs. If they should remain in the union in order to continue making a living, are they for that reason subversive? Had the courts upheld this vague and indefinite license for witch-hunting, citizens in the predicament described would certainly have been in danger of prosecution.

Of course, the basic weakness of Maryland's venture into the suppression business was its encroachment upon the personal rights protected by the Fourteenth Amendment. Many years ago the Supreme Court held, with Chief Justice Hughes writing the opinion, that the Constitution protected the peaceful display of a red flag as a symbol of opposition to organized government. The Supreme Court has repeatedly held that freedom of thought—even the thought we hate—is elementary in the American system. "If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation," wrote Justice Jackson in striking down a West Virginia statute requiring a compulsory salute to the flag, "it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein."

Legislators of the Free State should have been the first to understand and appreciate the strength of the freedoms that the Ober law assailed. Their failure to do so has been costly to the State in terms of chagrin and loss of face, but Marylanders can be grateful with the rest of us that, thanks to our system of divided powers, the courts can step in to restore constitutional freedom when the legislature loses its sense of proportion.

Margaret Mitchell

If there is any quantitative measure of success in literature. Margaret Mitchell, who died yesterday at Atlanta, was the greatest author of her generation and perhaps of the twentieth century. Since its first publication 13 years ago more than 8 million copies of Gone With the Wind have been purchased. It has been translated into almost every language that possesses an alphabet, and the current annual sale in the various editions has been estimated at 120,000. No other book save the Bible has even approached it in popularity; perhaps the only analogy provided in the case of another novel is that of Uncle Tom's Cabin, which found its way into nearly 25 languages. The monetary return, however, that Mrs. Stowe derived from her book was utterly negligible compared to Miss Mitchell's. Within a year or so after its publication, the management of the various rights and royalties accruing from Gone With the Wind had become a big business in itself, and the details so absorbed the author that she never found time for another book.

Yet her tremendous achievement was in a sense almost accidental. The story of how Miss Mitchell and her manuscript were discovered by Mr. Harold Latham of the Macmillan Co. in one of his famous talent-scouting tours is well known. Even so, the critics have never been able to explain the fascination the novel has held for readers of every class and condition, and particularly women readers, in every part of the world. It contains, to be sure, all the ingredients of the familiar recipe for popularity—plenty of sex, high life, violence and blasphemy—but so have many other novels before and since. Nor are Miss Mitchell's gifts as a story-teller, though considerable, a sufficient explanation, for in this respect she was surpassed by many of her contemporaries. She was, for that matter, far surpassed by Tolstoy, from whose War and Peace she seemed to have borrowed her general narrative scheme.

One must search, therefore, in the theme and the characterizations for an answer. In respect of the first, Miss Mitchell may have managed to epitomize the atmosphere prevalent at the time her book appeared—a kind of weary decadence overlaid but not concealed by romantic sentiment. In respect of the second, Miss Mitchell's heroine, Scarlett O'Hara, seems to represent the type of ruthless female egoist characteristic of ages of decadence. This perhaps is why she has become under various aliases one of the staples of the more recent novels and of the Hollywood films.

Home Rule Tabled

The arbitrariness of yesterday's vote in the House District Judiciary Subcommittee to table the home-rule bill has seldom been surpassed. The measure which is thus being suppressed has been hammered out by the process of expert study, public debate, legislative hearings, committee study and floor action over the last three years. It appears to have the indorsement of an overwhelming majority of District residents and is in line with the platforms of both major parties. Two and a half months ago it passed the Senate without a record vote. President Truman has given it his warm approval and support, as have the majority leader and a great many members of the House. Indications are that the bill would be approved by the House if a vote could be taken. Yet Congressman Harris' subcommittee, after stringing out hearings and raising one petty objection after another, has finally voted to scuttle the bill. It is an outrageous performance, for it puts a little group of willful men in the position of denying the application of democratic principles to the Nation's Capital after a majority has shown its eagerness to correct the mistakes of the past.

Interest in this reactionary decision does not end at the District line. Restoration of home rule to the Capital and relief of Congress from its burden as a city council are national issues. They constitute a challenge to Majority Leader McCormack, Speaker Rayburn and President Truman. We do not suppose that these officials and the House itself will complacently accept this tabling order from a subcommittee. Probably it is too late to take the bill out of the hands of the subcommittee at this session, but that will certainly be necessary early next January. We think the situation demands the earnest attention of Messrs. Rayburn, McCormick and John L. McMillan, chairman of the House District Committee. The subcommittee is reporting the action to the full District Committee. If that body will not take the initiative, the bill will have to be dislodged by petition, which the House leadership ought to sponsor. The disgrace of disfranchisement in the Nation's Capital should not be compounded by minority dictation on that issue in Congress.

Even Gibraltar is now being granted home rule by Great Britain. If Congress doesn't hurry, Washington is likely to be the last spot this side of the iron curtain with no government of its own.

Flapper Specter

Several fashion trends of the day are raising specters disturbing to a public that wants to forget its economic wild oats. Chief of these is the return of the cloche in headgear. Already the fashion pacesetters are heralding fall hats reminiscent of the helmets, inverted flower pots and saucepans that thoroughly and severely covered women's short cropped heads in the later 1920's. Moreover, skirts are inching upward and some designers are tightening them to a hobbling degree. What is more, we have a revival of Rudolph Valentino via the films, renewed literary interest in F. Scott Fitzgerald, and a lot of talk about Babbitt. Does all this portend that the flapper, one of the chief social contributions of the 1920's, is to have a reincarnation? Heaven forbid! It is depressing enough to contemplate a possible reversion in fashion motif to the ugliest of all eras in feminine dress without having the flapper and her gin-drinking boy friend thrown in.

However, we are still betting on the cycle theory of fashion to save us from disaster. This holds that fundamental changes in feminine style (and to an extent in social attitudes) occur only every 30 to 40 years, the reason being that it takes approximately that long for a generation to become sentimental about anything in the past. And few if any of us are as yet sentimental about the 1920's. The decade, if you want to remember, which ended with a bang at the national pocketbook that caused one of the greatest reverberations in American history.

Syrian Coup

The exact circumstances of the coup d'etat in Syria are obscured by preliminary accounts that are both meager and conflicting. The underlying motivation, however, seems to have been disillusionment expressed in resentment. The dead Husni Zayim came in as a foe of corruption and mismanagement, but he seems to have turned out worse than his predecessors.

In Egypt there is mourning for his death, not because he was an honorable man but because he was toadying unashamedly to the ambitions of King Farouk to lead the Arab world. In the other Arab nations he will probably not be missed—least of all by King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan, who had been spurred by the Zayim-Farouk exchanges to seek a sort of league of his own including Iraq, Iran, and even Afghanistan.

Delayed Executions

I have often heard foreigners express horror over the way we Americans will keep a convicted murderer standing on the brink of eternity for years and then execute him.

The case of James Bostic, Negro, who has been waiting 13 years to be electrocuted in the District for a murder committed in 1936, is one in point.

Incidentally, in May, 1940, a District Court jury found him to be of unsound mind and 19 people who went to school with him said they had always considered him to be "cracked." Doctors estimated his mental age as being between 6 and 7 years and that his IQ was 41. They held that at times he was not responsible for his actions because of his mental condition.

James Bostic was placed in St. Elizabeths Hospital suffering psychosis. He was released a few weeks ago as cured. James Bostic is now waiting execution in the District's electric chair for a murder committed 13 years ago by a man found to be a mental incompetent. His execution date has been postponed 33 times!

In our country every man's life is supposed to be as important as everyone else's. That is why it is important to all citizens of our country that this Negro from Edgeville, S. C., should be given all the consideration due an American citizen.

Judge Holzoff knew this when in reply to Assistant United States Attorney Grace Stiles, who asked him to set a new execution date for James Bostic, he instead ordered a new lunacy hearing and set September 7 as the date. That is in the American tradition of fairness to all. But executing a man, who has been declared to be of unsound mind and a "moron," after 13 years and 33 stays of execution is not.

Language Of Poetry

I am afraid that you entirely misconstrued my argument in my August 10 letter about poetry, to which you appended an editor's note.

Much scientific work, by its very nature, cannot be communicated save in terms which most laymen find unintelligible or obscure, and to understand which requires considerable and specialized training. The social gains and the gain to knowledge derived from scientific research make such problems of communication relatively unimportant.

I believe that you would admit the necessity of such literature in science: I cannot see how you could deny it without being anti-scientific. Yet you condemn the difficulty of modern poetry on the ground that it caters to a presumably socially useless elite. To this I would reply that all serious and important poetry, Shakespeare's no less than Pound's, Keats' no less than Eliot's, is a mode of discourse subtle and supple enough to require from its readers a very high degree of attentiveness and complexity of response.

The kind of knowledge about man and his position which poetry can give seems to me important enough even when it happens to be complicated and uncertain rather than some Eddie Guest hand-me-down, to completely justify the poet in expecting that the reader perform at least half the work. The "elite" of possible good readers of poetry, it seems to me, is neither economic nor social, and the poetry I am talking about—which, I repeat, is all important and successful poetry—is not an article of conspicuous consumption.

I did not say, as this makes clear, that because you disliked modern poetry you disliked scientific writing. I did say that I assumed that you condoned the latter but abhorred the former, for reasons which I think unreasonable and unjust.

Hoover's Prophecy

In 1929 the greatest failure of private enterprise in all history was laid on Mr. Hoover's doorstep. He didn't know it was there, nor where it came from, nor where it was taking him. It arrived on the heels of a most outstanding achievement in Government economy and debt reduction. It caused him to yield only to the extent of creating RFC to lend a few hundred millions to railroads, banks and his Vice President. But to the pleas of the hungry he stood firm, with the gates of the White House locked and MacArthur on the bridge while his foot soldiers burned the bonus marchers off the flats by Anacostia.

Shall his words of anniversary be answered? Did not the sovereign voters of America answer him when in November, 1932, they unlocked the gates of the White House and relieved this bewildered statesman of responsibility?

True, the elephant forgets nothing, it learns so little to remember; and for Herbert Hoover the elephant is bosom pin.

Like parentheses this man precedes and follows Roosevelt, and by utterance before and after would make parenthetical a vision which he could never comprehend.

May be, as he says, that it is our last mile we are on, or it may be only his. But in either case, peace to our only living former President.

DONALD MONTGOMERY.

Loyalty Review

Several cases arising out of the loyalty program have recently been decided by lower and intermediate courts, and the decisions have generally been to the effect that the program is legal because (to quote from the most recent one) "no one has a constitutional right to be a Government employe" (majority decision in the appeal of the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee).

Loyalty "charges" alone, and dismissals arising out of them even more so, may and often do by their nature damage the persons "charged," in other respects than their status as Government employes: in respect to their general reputation and their employability, for example. It is for this reason that as a matter of due process there should be judicial review of loyalty cases, and that the procedures of loyalty boards should be brought into line with the concept of due process.

Transit Exploitation

The numerous protests against the nuisance of radio advertising in the Capital Transit Company's vehicles do not sufficiently stress the point that this is essentially the exploitation of passengers for private gain. The Transit Company does not install the radio equipment. It hires out to a broadcasting company the privilege of setting up in its vehicles the mechanical means of importuning passengers to buy advertised goods or services. This hiring is no part of the public transportation business which the Transit Company is licensed to conduct and should not be forced upon any patron.

Some passengers may tolerate and some may even enjoy the music which masks the mercenary purpose of the broadcasts. But the attitude of these people cannot justify the carrier in going beyond its function as a common carrier to participate for private gain in inflicting upon others of its passengers what is to them discomfort and sometimes actual nervous harm.

"Vaughan's Position"

Your editorial of August 12, "Vaughan's Position," shows clearly that you are fair minded, but not politically fair minded. After all, it is the President who appointed Col. Harry H. Vaughan his military aide, and the dignity of the position allows the President a major general. It is up to the President to determine General Vaughan's position.

Why should General Vaughan resign? Because he is active has a fine sense of humor, is loyal to his country, his family and his friends? And since when is it wrong for any American citizen to seek consideration? General Vaughan is not a percentage man. He always worked at an honest job and knows no other kind, and since World War I had done his best to promote the interests of his commanding officer, Capt. Harry S. Truman.

Surely no one who understands the sincere respect of General Vaughan for his chief will ever believe that he would do anything to embarrass President Truman.

E. B. GOODMAN.
Washington.

The so-called investigation carried on by the Senate committee of 5-percenters seemingly has turned out to be just another witch hunt, with certain members of the committee ready to gobble up and make political capital of the most remote rumor for the coming congressional elections.

Any fool can plainly see why so many people would be jealous of General Vaughan's position with the President. I would venture to say that the general is not surprised in the least, for "uneasy rests the head that wears the crown." But I imagine that he, like many other red-blooded Americans, is surprised when the investigation sinks to the level of bringing in the implication that a gift to the First Lady and the now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court had some sign of stigma attached to it.

Furthermore, it is quite obvious that the same newspapers and columnists that are ballyhooing this investigation, are the same ones who were left on the other side of the fence on November 3. It appears like a sounding board for all of these disgruntled elements to give off some of that pent up resentment as a result of the election.

If people are going to be persecuted just because they have friends that think enough of them to send them an occasional gift and just because some of the people are connected with the Government, then we had better wrap up this present Government, Congress and all, and dump it into the ocean, because there would be very few here to administrate, especially as long as the gifts have none other than friendly significance.

Something For Nothing

By Malvina Lindsay

Pot Versus Kettle

Scene—A meeting of the Association for Advancement.

CHAIRMAN—We have met to decide what Congress should do about gifts to public persons.

Mr. Mastodon—I demand that all Democrats be impeached!

Mr. Wadd—Wait! Don't be so general. We might include a businessman—that is, a small one.

Mr. Mastodon—Who cares!

Mr. Dare—Mr. Chairman, as president of Atomic Age Citizens, Inc., I insist that this thing goes deeper than party lines. It's all part of the growing mania of the American people to get something for nothing. Considering this infantilism, is it any wonder that men wanting favors, attention, good will, are busy thrusting dinners, liquor, groceries, hats, handbags, cosmetics, railroad reservations, ball game tickets, deep freezes, everything under the sun, at persons in high places?

Mr. Glibb—Mr. Chairman, we are making too much out of nothing. Sending gifts to important persons is merely part of modern up-to-the-minute merchandising. It's also a good old American custom dating back to the apple for the teacher.

Mrs. March—It's gone too far. Half the prominent people I know live on a barter basis sending gifts to each other that manufacturers provide.

Mrs. McAddle—Doesn't somebody have to pay sometime?

Chairman (rapping)—Order, please!

MR. DARE—Let's get some action here. My parking time is running out.

Mr. Ropes—Don't worry. If you get a ticket, I can get it fixed.

Mrs. Dashbutton—I can park anywhere any time. They all know my husband's number.

Chairman—Let's get back to the deep freezes—I mean the question.

Mr. Dare—Mr. Chairman, we should do something about this deep freeze obsession. Nearly everybody I know has a deep freeze loaded with enough dead cows, pigs, fish, poultry, vegetables, fruit—from heaven knows how long—to stock a store. What will become of the grocer and butcher? Who will eat all this? What would become of it in an atomic war? I tell you we're becoming a nation of squirrels!

Mrs. McAddle—Nobody ever gave me a deep freeze.

Mr. Ropes—I know where you can buy one wholesale.

Mrs. Dashbutton—I know a man who can get anything like that for you at a discount if you'll just say you're related to my husband.

Mr. Glibb—I think I can get her a free one——

Mr. Wadd—What's the use? The Government would take half of it.

Mr. Mastodon—I move we send some one to see that this congressional investigation isn't a whitewash.

Mrs. Dashbutton—I'll be glad to go. I'd be sure of getting a front seat. I always get front seats or box seats to everything because of my husband.

Mr. Ropes—I think I could get her a seat up with the committee.

Mrs. Preen—My husband can get any kind of a pass, any kind of a railroad or airplane reservation, any place any time.

Mrs. McAddle—I have a friend who got a mink cape on a give-away program.

Mr. Ropes—Say if you want a mink cape——

MR. DARE—Mr. Chairman, I insist we make this inquiry wider than the deep freezes. Let's have a listing of everybody public and private who's gettin' things the backhanded way.

Mrs. March—It's all in having the right connections. I know women who have all their hats and cosmetics given to them.

Mrs. Dashbutton—Well you can't insult people when they give you things.

Mrs. Preen—We might as well be realistic. You can't even shop without pull. You've got to know somebody who'll hold things back for you.

Mr. Dare—We should do something to make people grow up.

Mr. Mastodon—All we need is to turn the rascals out.

Mr. Dare—And get in some new ones who'll accept oil wells.

Chairman (rapping)—Mrs. Montclair St. Vitus wants the floor.

Mrs. St. Vitus—I'm sorry I have to leave to conduct a drawing at the Jinx Gadget Co. for an electric watermelon seeder——

Chairman—Wait, everybody! We're not adjourned.

Mr. Ropes—Say, I know a guy——

Mrs. Preen—My brother-in-law has some stock there——

Chairman—Wait, please——

Mrs. Dashbutton—I must call my husband——

Chairman—Wait! Wait! The meeting is adjourned.

COs In Jail

If Congress would like to save a little wasted Government money, it might put a stop to the practice of putting conscientious objectors in jail. At present no one is being drafted, but COs whose conscience will not permit them to register for the draft are prosecuted and thrown into jail. At present 47 COs who refused to register are behind bars, presumably to protect society from their conviction that war is wrong.

If the brutality of this situation or the senseless waste of human lives and abilities will not stir our Congress, perhaps the high cost of maintaining the COs in jail may strike a more receptive chord.

Nationalism In Germany

TO THOSE who know Germany best, it often seems as though a cruel fate has decreed that the grim pattern of the past should be repeated step by step. That foreboding has been stirred again by the results of the German elections.

Childs

The hope of those following the struggle for German democratization was for the emergence of two strong parties. The Christian Democrats would embody the conservative forces and the Social Democrats the non-Communist left.

Between these two would be a clear-cut contest and the victor would be able to form a stable government with clearly recognized objectives. But the election revealed, and there has been strangely little comment on this phase, the growth of splinter parties representing extremist elements.

Consequently, a coalition government becomes necessary. The junior partner in such a government can evade real responsibility and engage in the kind of sniping from the inside that makes for instability and uncertainty.

This was the pattern of the Weimar Republic that was proclaimed just 30 years ago. The Communist Party used the parliamentary tangles of the feeble republic to discredit and destroy democratic government. So, too, did the National Socialist Party as it grew from a splinter to the second or third largest party.

IN THE new West German Federal Republic the likelihood is that a minor party, the Free Democrats, will join with the Christian Democrats to govern. The showing of the Free Democrats was a surprise to almost everyone. Within this splinter are some of the violent nationalists bent on throwing off all restraints of the Allied occupation.

For the occupation powers, and particularly for the United States, that is the real significance of the German election. The new American High Commissioner, John J. McCloy, faces a task far more difficult than that of Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who was the boss of a military regime with definite orders to carry out.

Now with a German administration and a German parliament functioning at Bonn, the task of the occupation is one of supervision rather than direction. And the respective areas of power have not been too clearly defined.

This change-over, bringing with it new and trying problems, comes as Americans with knowledge and ability are extremely reluctant to fill essential jobs in the American administrative staff in Frankfurt and Berlin. Germany is an old story, and the American policy has too often been a battleground for competing theories.

RECENTLY McCloy had to fly back here for a 10-day interval, his chief objective being to persuade capable men that their duty was to serve with him. One goal was to find a deputy high commissioner, an office on which McCloy puts great stress since he feels one of his main tasks is to integrate West Germany with the rest of western Europe an dthis will mean frequent trips to European capitals, leaving the deputy in command.

McCloy begged, pleaded, cajoled. Two or three times, as he thought, he had someone lined up, the candidate's wife objected and the deal was off. He said in Frankfurt that he hoped shortly to announce his top staff.

At the same time that civilians take over in resurgent Germany, the State Department's chief German authority, Robert D. Murphy, is about to get a new assignment. Murphy, who has been head of the department's Division on Germany and Austria since he returned from Berlin where he was Clay's assistant, is in line to be Ambassador to Belgium.

Who will take Murphy's place at the head of a division that must now assume major responsibility on occupation policy is a question. Col. Henry A. Byroade, one of Murphy's assistants, on loan from the Army, is a possibility. Byroade returned with McCloy for his first visit to Germany.

It is fortunate, of course, that so able and courageous a man as McCloy was persuaded to take the top job. The importance of the assignment can hardly be exaggerated. Through his policy of integrating Germany into the western European family, McCloy may be able to counter some of the more vicious trends now finding open expression. That may be one way to prevent a recurrence of the desperate past.

Matter Of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

The High Price Of Doing Nothing

LONDON.—Thoughtful American officials are now talking seriously of the time when the United States will be forced by the pressure of circumstances to offer the British something like common citizenship—at least a common currency and a free exchange of population. The parallel is obvious—Winston Churchill's desperate eleventh-hour gesture to the French in 1940.

That intelligent and informed men can talk seriously of such an offer being made is in itself a measure of the meaning to the United States of the British crisis. For an Anglo-American union is not, obviously, practical politics. It is even less practical politics in England, which already fears being transformed into a "forty-ninth state," than in the United States.

It is probably not even practical economics. It is true that such a union would open up the vast continental market of the United States. But most economists—especially British economists—believe that in the free competition that would ensue, the gigantic American economy would soon strangle the weaker British economy.

Yet the offer may some day be made, as it was made by Churchill in 1940, in sheer desperation, when it is already too late. If this is not to happen, some new and bold approach, which is both practical politics and practical economics, must be found to deal with the economic sickness which is weakening and splintering the Western world.

A PLAN which is at least new and bold is being widely discussed here by wise and powerful men. This plan is worth describing, if only because the ideas on which it is based are obviously influencing the thinking of men, including Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Stafford Cripps, who are trying to grapple with Britain's desperate crisis.

This plan is designed to deal with the two factors which are seizing up the machinery of world trade. One factor is simply that you can buy more for dollars than you can for pounds or for any "soft" currency. This creates a single-minded world-wide thirst for dollars. And—this is the second factor—this thirst is accentuated by the fact that the soft currency economies, and especially the sterling area, have too little in reserve. Because there is so little left in the British kitty, people rush to get pounds for dollars, by hook or by crook, before it is too late. This "leakage," mostly illegal, accounts in very large measure for this summer's economic crisis.

The first step in the plan would thus be to call an International Monetary Conference to devalue all European currencies down to their real purchasing power in terms of dollars. The pound, for example, would be reduced from $4 to $3.

This would pull down the standard of living in England, because the British people would get less from abroad in exchange for what they produced at home. But both the ECA and the British Treasury have made independent studies of how great the drop would be, and both came up with the same answer—only about 4 per cent. And this is better than the real misery which otherwise seems inevitably in prospect for the British.

This cut in living standards would be the British and European contribution to the plan. The American contribution would be far less painful. The American Treasury would raise the price of gold from $35 to $45 an ounce. This would automatically, and without touching a hair on an American taxpayer's head, raise the value of the huge American gold horde by about eight billion dollars. This great sum would then be earmarked as backing to permit the free exchange of currencies and the freeing of trade.

With the pound and the European currencies at their real dollar value, backed by this great, confidence - inspiring reserve, there would be, it is argued, no "run" on the eight billion dollar bank.

Most if not all of the gold would remain in holes in the American ground. And the terrible process which is slicing the economy of the whole Western world into bits would be reversed.

SO RUNS the argument. Whether or not this scheme provides a real way out (and to the layman it sounds too neat, too painless), neither this nor any other really bold attack on the crisis is likely to be proposed by Cripps when he comes to Washington next month. This is partly because the British planners are tired and lack their old confidence, and partly also because Cripps knows that Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, and the conservative bankers for whom he speaks, would boil with righteous indignation if he proposed anything really far-reaching or unconventional.

Meanwhile, the facts to bear in mind are these. If nothing is done, it is wholly likely that by this time next year the entire economy of the sterling area will have begun to disintegrate. If this happens, the collapse of Britain as a world power will be inevitable. And if this happens also, the United States will be able to halt Soviet expansion in Europe and Asia in only one way—by going to war. This would be a high price to pay in the end for the luxury of doing nothing now.

Navy Defers Byrd Journey To Antarctic

By The Associated Press

An Antarctic expedition that was to have been led by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd this fall was called off by the Navy yesterday for "compelling reasons of economy."

Plans for the expedition have been underway for more than a year. It had been given the code name of "Operation High Jump 11." It was to be the second phase of the expedition which took Navy explorers and scientists to the South Polar region in 1946.

The Navy had been reluctant to discuss the plan, but it was understood that some 3500 men and eight ships had been marked for the expedition. Had the plans materialized, the first ship would have left in October to set up an advance base in New Zealand.

Objectives would have included a study of the behavior of cosmic rays, weather research, and additional mapping of the frozen area.

The Gallup Poll

High Minority Vote Is Cast For Aid to Catholic Schools

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 16.—Although the weight of sentiment is against general Federal aid to parochial schools, many observers will be surprised at the high proportion of voters who do favor it in a Nation-wide survey just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

The recent controversy between Francis Cardinal Spellman, Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York, and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt over the question of Federal aid to Catholic parochial schools focused national attention on the issue.

The survey finds that 41 per cent, or four persons in every ten interviewed, think that part of the funds proposed for Federal aid to schools should go to Catholic parochial schools.

In view of the fact that members of the Catholic church comprise only 17 per cent of the population, according to recent estimates, and in view of the historic principle of separation of church and state, many observers may be surprised at the size of the vote in the survey.

Here are the national figures:

"If the bill in Congress is passed which would give 300 million dollars in aid to schools in the poorer States, should this money go entirely to public schools—or should part of it go to parochial (Catholic) schools?"

Entirely to Public Schools	49%
Part to Parochial Schools	41
No Opinion	10

Approximately eight out of ten voters in the survey who classified themselves as Catholic by religion favored aid to parochial schools. Approximately one third of the Protestants joined them in this view.

Here is the vote by Catholic and Protestant groups:

	Public Only	Parochial	No Opin.
Catholics	12%	79%	9%
Protestants	59	31	10

The greatest acceptance of the Catholic argument in favor of Federal aid to parochial institutions is found among young voters of all religions.

In the age groups 21-29 years, a majority of those expressing opinions were in favor of granting funds to the parochial schools, as the following table shows:

	Public Only	Parochial	No Opin.
21-29 years	42%	49%	9%
30-49	47	43	10
50 & over	55	33	12

Action in Congress on the Federal aid to education bill has been held up by the controversy over whether any of the 300 million dollars should go to parochial schools of Catholic, Protestant or other religious denominations.

Discussion in Congress has revealed three major points of view among the national legislators. Some would specify that no Federal funds may go to parochial schools for any purpose whatever. A second group, representing a compromise viewpoint, wants to leave it up to the States to decide whether any part of the Federal funds allocated to the States goes to parochial schools.

Still a third group has held that parochial schools should be included in Federal funds for such auxiliary services as bus transportation, school lunches and medical examinations.

Will Use Force to Bar Leopold From Throne, Socialists Say

Brussels, Belgium, Aug. 16 (U.P.). The Belgian Socialist Party announced tonight it would use force if necessary to prevent King Leopold III from returning to the throne.

The Socialists control the Belgian Federation of Labor, whose more than 800,000 members have threatened a general strike if the exiled King is returned.

The announcement was made in the Chamber of Deputies by Max Buset, Socialist Party president, who said his group would "oppose by force if need be any attempt to force the Royal issue."

He warned that "action committees" formed of Socialists and union members also would use force against any measures which would "jeopardize the rights and claims of workers."

Leopold, who surrendered the Belgian armies to the Germans in 1940, was barred by Parliament in 1945 from returning to his country, and went into exile in Switzerland.

Parliamentary observers regarded Buset's statement as a declaration of war on the Social Christian-Liberal (Catholic) coalition government formed by Premier Gaston Eyskens.

Eyskens shortly before had announced to both houses of Parliament that it was solely because of the royal problem that he had been unable to form a three-party government.

Yugoslavia Denies Aiding Greek 'Fascists'

Belgrade, Aug. 16 (AP).—Yugoslavia denied tonight charges that its armed forces are aiding the Greek government against the Communist-led guerillas in northern Greece.

The statement was made over the Belgrade radio a few hours after the Prague radio reported Yugoslav troops had engaged in conflict with the guerillas.

A resolution passed at a meeting of soldiers and officers was quoted, in part:

"Yugoslavia always gave great help to the Greek (guerilla) movement more than any other country and gave more publicity to its fight than any other country. We soldiers and officers know that nobody from our army ever had any contact with the Monarcho-Fascists."

The statement added that many Greek rebel soldiers had crossed into Yugoslavia. The Yugoslavs asked why and the rebels replied: "There is no Markos, there is no freedom, there is no bread."

This was a reference to Gen. Markos Vafiades, the deposed former leader of the guerillas. Reputedly he was a sympathizer with Marshal Tito's campaign for "equal rights" for countries under Communist rule. The Yugoslav press has charged that Vafiades was removed at the order of the anti-Tito Cominform.

German Magazine Says Yanks Go Out With 'Cheap' Girls

Berlin, Aug. 16 (U.P.).—The Western German magazine Picture World today depicted the "typical American" after four years of occupation as a tippler whose female companions are streetwalkers and whose home life revolves around comic books and built-in bars.

The article, entitled "Americans Are Humans Just Like Us," gave this picture:

Americans go out with "cheap" girls who are attracted by American money. They also date streetwalkers, as "American sweethearts."

They make only a few changes in German homes they requisition but immediately add a bar, decorate the walls with pin-up girls and spread comic books around.

The American "frailty" for alcohol poses a major problem for American military police who "are feared by Americans and Germans because of their rough manners."

Business Outlook

Keady Belies Avery's Theory Why Chiefs Quit at Ward's

By J. A. Livingston

AT THE annual meeting of Montgomery Ward & Co., Sewell Avery, chairman, patiently explained to the 400 shareholders present the mass resignations of vice presidents which had recently occurred were to be expected in a merchandising establishment. Why, that wouldn't happen in a manufacturing company," he declared. "No changes occur at the top at United States Gypsum Co.," a company of which Avery was also chairman. "People stay there. But in merchandising people move about from store to store."

Livingston

So, the suave, dapper 75-year-old executive explained away a third exodus of Montgomery Ward vice presidents. Many stockholders were captivated by his charm, his persuasiveness. They accepted his argument that high turnover in executives was characteristic of merchandising. Avery's character was merely coincidental. That was on April 22—just four months ago.

But now, behold William L. Keady, president of the U. S. Gypsum Co., a man who had been associated with Avery for 25 years and whom Avery had raised from the ranks, has quit. Announced reason: "Mr. Avery had decided to reenter active management of the company."

KEADY STEPT OUT of a company which is just beginning to regain lost ground on its big rivals in the wallboard field, National Gypsum and Celotex. Sales of National and Celotex rose more sharply in the postwar period than U. S. One reason, perhaps, is that "Gypsum" or "Gyp," as it's called in Wall Street, did not expand in 1939, when Avery stopped Keady's plans to add to capacity. But at the end of the war, carrying his fight to directors, Keady got approval of his expansion plans. As a consequence, Gypsum's sales and earnings were off only 8 per cent and 12 per cent, respectively, in the first six months of 1949 from 1948 as compared with 12 per cent and 28 per cent for National Gypsum and 34 per cent and 85 per cent for Celotex.

Avery can offer no such evidence of managerial success at Ward's. Business Week magazine recently noted that Montgomery Ward, with a 155 per cent increase in sales from 1939 through 1948, ranked sixteenth among the country's 20 top retailers. Ward's was surpassed by Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea's 186 per cent, Sears Roebuck's 272 per cent, Safeway's 285 per cent, Macy's 227 per cent, National Tea's 375 per cent, Penney's 214 per cent, Gimbel's 233 per cent, and so on.

Avery managed to beat out only the variety chains—Woolworth, Kresge, Kress and W. T. Grant. And these companies were "afflicted" by inflation. They could not obtain merchandise readily in their usual nickel, dime, quarter and dollar price brackets, and so were squeezed both during and after the war.

AVERY CAN'T forget the 1929-33 depression. He likes to point to a chart which shows that after all major wars, prices drop. Prices, he says, will drop again. And he's not going to be caught. So his policies have been nonexpansionist. At Ward's, he keeps plant, inventories and men with big merchandising ideas down. Result: New stores have been opened sparingly. Further result: Sears sales rose 120 per cent, profits 280 per cent, between 1945 and 1948, Ward's only 85 per cent and 198 per cent. Furthermore, so far this year, when a depression policy ought to have panned out, Sears' sales are down only 7.2 per cent from 1948, Ward's 13.1 per cent. Thus, Sears' expansion seems to have been vindicated.

Keady's policy at Gypsum has been very much like that of Sears. Gypsum has spent 52 million dollars on new plant and equipment since the war. The company's property account less depreciation rose from 25 millions at the end of 1945 to more than 64 millions today. Sears' investment in plant, equipment, etc., rose from 90 millions to 160. All that while Avery held Ward's plant and equipment stationary at 40 millions.

AVERY'S THEORY is that by keeping his cash free, his company liquid, he'll be able, when business is in another depression, to expand cheaply. But so far, his wager on a depression has cost him Ward's position in the retail industry and a proved executive at Gypsum.

When Keady wanted to modernize and increase capacity in 1939, Avery kept putting him off, arguing costs were too high. Then the war came, expansion was out for the duration. When after the war, Keady brought the matter before the board of directors, Avery was overruled. Exit Keady—despite success.

Avery and his family own 15 per cent to 20 per cent of Gypsum stock. As chairman of the board and chief executive officer, he controls the proxy-getting machinery. And in a fight, stockholders being as indifferent as they are, he'd probably win handily, just as he did at Ward's, unless—and it's a big unless—the investment trusts, investment bankers, and large investors decided that maybe Avery, 10 years beyond the Social Security age, has demonstrated his right to a pension.

Washington Gas Light Co. yesterday reported record July sales of 7,437,299 therms, an increase of 379,309 or 5.38 per cent over the same 1948 month.

Braves Give Billy Southworth Leave of Absence

Practically Kinfolks

Hickman Knows All About Pistol Pete

By Red Smith

BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y., Aug. 16 (NYHT)—In the lobby of Jack Martin's cozy caravansary, Branch Rickey made with polysyllables, lecturing a spellbound group of football coaches.

He was explaining the T-formation. There have been few more blood-curdling sights anywhere, even in this sprawling playpen where bizarre spectacles are commonplace.

Smith

Somewhat earlier, Leo Durocher had impersonated an umpire and assorted members of the Dodgers had looked on, trying not to shudder openly, as two teams of baseball writers recklessly exposed their own athletic talents to the gaze of the young men whose play the authors criticize every other day of the year. Chances are baseball writing will never be the same again, and certainly the Dodgers won't.

Today Bear Mountain was shuddering back to normal after entertaining, at one and the same time, the annual outing of the New York Baseball Writers' Association and the bright young monsters of the Eastern College All-Star football team who are up here preparing to play the Giants in the Polo Grounds September 1 for the New York Herald Tribune fresh air fund.

The athletic writers had limped home, glowing with health and swathed in bandages. Rickey was gone. He had been fascinated watching the All-Stars at work. He had exclaimed over the systematic efficiency of the organization direced by healthy Herman Hickman, and he had sopped up ideas for use in his spring baseball foundry at Vero Beach, Fla. His soul was standing in his eyes when he sighed that if he had his life to live over again, he would devote it to coaching football.

NOW, WITH comparative quiet restored, you could come down to breakfast in the inn and enjoy a floor show on Charles Hansen memorial field just outside the window, where Mr. Hickman waddled about busily and his bright young monsters hammered dutifully upon one another's skull.

The job of creating a team out of material scraped together from more than a score of colleges is still in the early stages. Perhaps in the next fortnight some of the bright young monsters may weary of the work which their coaches demand every dawn and dusk.

There is, for example, Pistol Pete Williams, of Navy, who might be called the first guy to move in and assert himself boldly as a first-stringer, a guy whom everyone else must beat at his position.

Pistol Pete is relatively a little guy, 5-foot-10 and 170 pounds, whose fame at Navy was considerable and might have been far greater except that (A) he was everlastingly hounded by injuries and (B) Navy was not exactly a national championship threat in his time.

It is perhaps natural that Pete should put out lavishly in this camp, for he isn't a ball player who has been jaded by winning. Two years ago Navy nosed out Villanova at the start of the season. The Midshipmen never won again, in Williams' time. They did frighten Army in 1948, though, and last year they came up with a howling effort in the big game and played West Point to a tie. The swift, elusive Williams was a big guy in that big game.

IT TURNED out today that he and Herman Hickman were practically kinfolks. By some accident which might, in some circles, be called misfortune, Williams was born and grew up in Miami, but his roots are deep in Tennessee, the state which also gave Mr. Hickman to the world.

Pete's Grandpappy Kreis was a famous gunshot, a trapshooting champion. Herman knew about him. Pete's Uncle Pete Kreis was a celebrated automobile race driver. Herman knew about him. Pete's Uncle Hazen Kreis, former sheriff of Knoxville, weighed 300 pounds. Herman not only knew about him; Herman used to hang around the same scales as Hazen.

Herman, having got to know and respect Pete when Williams was carrying the ball for Navy and Hickman was coaching the Army line, would have picked the young man on the team he coached in the North-South game in Miami's Orange Bowl last winter. However, some amateur geographers put Annapolis in the South, with the result that Pete played against Herman's team.

EARLY IN the game, Mr. Williams broke off tackle and romped 65 yards for a touchdown. That run, and several others of 30 yards or so, helped the South beat Mr. Hickman's team, 24 to 14. Mr. Hickman has loved the young man, with a kind of aggrieved affection, ever since.

Tex Lawrence, who played center at Navy but is here as a tackle, mentioned a few items that Williams wouldn't. He pointed out that Pete was president of his class at Navy, was a six-striper for a while—that's captain of the Midshipmen, top guy among the undergraduates—and was graduated as one of the three five-stripers in his class.

"He's little," Tex said, "but he's mean as a snake."

"He's my kind of football player," said Mr. Hickman.

Lawrence, remembering that North-South game, has written Pete's father in Miami asking him to send up some Orange Bowl loam to rub on Pete's cleats for this one.

Macks Win, 7-4; Knock Bosox Out Of 2d Place

Philadelphia, Aug. 16. — An eighth-inning homer by Sam Chapman started a four-run rally that carried the Philadelphia Athletics to a 7-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox tonight.

The defeat snapped the Red Sox' seven-game winning streak and dropped them into third place, behind Cleveland, 3½ games back of the idle pace-setting Yankees.

The defeat, coupled with Cleveland's victory over Detroit, left the Red Sox in third place, just behind the Indians. At the same time the Athletics moved back into the first division ahead of Detroit.

Chapman's sixteenth home run of the season opened the winning attack against Maurice McDermott, rookie southpaw who pitched five-hit ball before he wilted.

McDermott was yanked in favor of Tex Hughson when two walks and Joe Astroth's single chased home another tally. Another walk and Wally Moses' single drove across the last two runs.

Boston staked McDermott to a 1-0 edge on Ted Williams' double in the first, but the A's scored three times in their half on Eddie Joost's two-bagger, three infield hits and a sacrifice.

Dom DiMaggio's double was the big blow as the Sox counted again in the third. Two more markers came across in the fourth on Birdie Tebbetts' single, a walk and McDermott's two-ply blow.

A moment's silence in tribute to Babe Ruth on the first anniversary of the Bambino's death was observed before the game.

Yankees Beat Colts, 28-14

Baltimore, Aug. 16 (AP).—The New York Yankees broke out a rookie passing star, Don Panciera, to lead them to a 28 to 14 exhibition football game victory over the Baltimore Colts tonight.

An estimated 35,000 saw the All-America Conference teams in Babe Ruth stadium.

Panciera, up from San Francisco U., passed for a fourth-period touchdown, and his tosses set up two more. Otto Schnellbacher scored another Yankee touchdown on a twisting 65-yard runback of an intercepted pass which tied the score at halftime, 14-14.

Both Colt scores came as the result of fumbles by Buddy Young in the second period.

The Colts recovered one on the Yankee eight after which Stormy Pfohl rushed over. Young fumbled again on the New York 27. Y. A. Tittle's four-yard pass over the goal to Lamar Davis provided the score.

Two Japs Top World Record Twice in Day

Los Angeles, Aug. 16 (AP).—Two amazing Japanese swimmers took turns at breaking the world's record for 1500-meter free style today in the preliminary of the National AAU men's swimming and diving championships.

After Shiro Hashizume won the first heat in 18:35.7, Japanese champion Hironoshin Furuhashi lowered the mark to 18:19 in the second heat. The listed world's record is 18:58.8.

Indians Blank Tigers, Take Second Place

Cleveland, Aug. 16 (AP).—Big Al Benton baffled the Detroit Tigers today with a six-hit whitewashing as the Cleveland Indians closed their current home stand by winning 5-0.

The victory gave the Tribe a sweep of the two-game series, a record of 6-2 for the home stand, and moved them to within 3½ games of the league-leading New York Yankees, whose scheduled game tonight with Washington was rained out. The Tribe also went second place by 2 percentage points whe nthe Red Sox lost to the Athletics.

It was Benton's first start against the Tigers who released him unconditionally last fall. The Indians returned him to the majors from Sacramento in the Pacific Coast League.

Al gave no walks and allowed no Tiger batter to reach third. Only three got as far as second. The six hits he yielded all were singles.

Cifers Fired By Steelers; Breaks Training

Cambridge Springs, Pa., Aug. 16 (U.P.).—Halfback Bobby Cifers, the Pittsburgh Steelers' leading ground-gainer last year, was fired today for repeatedly breaking training rules.

Coach Johnny Michelosen said Cifers had been warned about breaking the 10 p. m. curfew rule and when Cifers came into camp at 2:30 a. m. today he fired him.

President Art Rooney said in Pittsburgh that he backed Michelosen "to the hilt" in the case.

"Certainly we need Cifers," Rooney said, "and he knows it, but we absolutely cannot tolerate this kind of thing in training camp."

Cifers was a holdout when training camp convened. He practiced with the team but would not agree to take a salary cut. He finally pulled out of camp but changed his mind when he got part way to his home in Tennessee and returned and signed up.

Heintzelman Beats Dodgers 5th Time, 2-1

Brooklyn, Aug. 16 (AP)—Lefty Ken Heintzelman spun his fifth straight triumph over the Brooklyn Dodgers tonight as the Philadelphia Phils eked out a 2-1 victory in 12 innings. Heintzelman himself carried over the winning run, scoring on a triple by Richie Ashburn.

The loss reduced Brooklyn's lead over St. Louis to one-half game.

Mike Goliat opened the Phils' 12th with a walk, and after two successive force plays, Ashburn drove to deep center, batting in the winning run.

Heintzelman's victory was his first since July 23, and his fourteenth against six losses. Don Newcombe went the distance for the Dodgers and was tagged with his fifth loss against 11 triumphs.

Yankees Eagerly Await Nats' Aid in Battle for Pennant

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

New York, Aug. 16—With their once healthy lead now reduced to little more than a pimple, the pace-setting Yankees were forced to wait until tomorrow night for their chance to get fat at the expense of the pushover Nats.

A late afternoon cloudburst drenched Yankee Stadium, washing out tonight's series opener which the Yankees hoped to use to regain their winning ways.

Saving the game for the stretch drive they now foresee between themselves, the surging Red Sox and Cleveland Indians, the New Yorkers very wisely carded the game as part of a September 10 double-header.

That the league leaders would have preferred to play the Nats than to remain idle is easily understandable. They've won 8 out of 12 from the Nats this season and were eager to get a crack at softer opposition after losing two in a row to the Athletics.

For that matter, all three contending teams breathe a sigh of relief when Washington is the opposition. A quick look at the standings tells why. The Nats have lost 30 out of 43 games against the Yankees, Red Sox and Indians.

IN SHORT, unless there's an unforeseen improvement, the gaudy 11-game losing streak the Nats compiled in July will probably be bettered within the next 10 days . . . The club has already lost six in a row, faces the Yanks twice here, Boston fourtimes in Washington, and then to Cleveland for two games with the Indians. Poor Kuhel. . . . Ray Scarborough (8-9) and Tommy Byrne (10-6), teammates at Wake Forest College, are the opposing pitchers for tomorrow night's battle . . . Mickey Harris will probably face Bob Porterfield Thursday afternoon. . . . Financially, the Nats were a tremendous success in their losing stand against the Red Sox in Boston over the weekend . . . More than 100,000 saw the six games, with Washington's end of the loot being $30,000—not bad for a seventh-place team. Eddie Robinson is probably lost to the team until next Monday. The big first baseman returned to Washington from Boston suffering from an accumulation of bruises and an allergy to penicillin. Sam Mele and Mark Christman will divide the first-basing job.

Only 1730 See It

Dawson Wins Easily Over Ratford

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

In the lonely stillness of nearly empty Griffith Stadium, Freddie Dawson, No. 1 contender for the lightweight championship, last night punched out a smart unanimous 10-round decision over Doug Ratford.

Only 1730 customers paid their respects at the turnstiles and they were rewarded with a first class fight.

Gross gate was $4105.12, and the net $3070.98, a bad financial loss for promoter Florence Turner.

Dawson behaved like the 11-5 favorite he was and clearly outpointed his foe in five rounds. He also had the third and tenth in his favor but his aim went bad and Referee Charley Reynolds penalized Freddie two points in each round for hitting low.

Ratford's Eye Cut

There were no knockdowns, and Ratford's cut left eye, sliced by Dawson's right in the fifth, shed the only blood.

Dawson took it easy in the first four rounds, hooking and jabbing with his left, just enough to win points. In the fifth Ratford got frisky and whipped in a few short rights, which served only to get Freddie riled, and he split open Doug's eye, with his first good right.

The seventh was Ratford's best round. Dawson went on the defensive, and was perfectly willing to take Doug's rights to the body and head. But Freddie was unhurt, and gave Ratford his worst beating near the end of the eighth, sending him into a corner with a two-fisted flurry.

He coasted in from there. Ratford weighed 140½, the Chicagoan 142½.

Stonewall Jackson, 142, of Washington won an eight-round semifinal over Billy Patterson, 147½, of New York.

Clayton Wins Decision

Marshall Clayton, 136½ transplanted here from New Orleans, was the star of the preliminaries, sharpshooting his way to a four-round decision over Chink Williams, 139½, of Washington. It was body puncher Clayton's first appearance here since he won the Army world-wide lightweight title at Fort Myer last spring.

In other four-round preliminaries, Roy Hutchins, 131½, won on a fourth-round TKO over Sam Cochran, 136, and Ralph Gonzales, 141, decisioned Warren Hudson, 145. All are local boys. The all-District five-rounder which preceded the main event was called a draw between Holly Mims, 158, and Sonny Boy Bunn, 153.

Giants Blank Braves, 4 to 0

Boston, Aug. 16 (AP).—Left-hander Monte Kennedy scattered five Boston hits tonight in pitching the New York Giants to a 4-0 decision over the Boston Braves.

Kennedy also wielded a timely bat, driving home the first run of the game by lining a single into left field in the fifth inning.

That was the only score until the ninth when the Giants put together a walk, two singles, a force play and Bobby Thompson's triple off the left field wall for their other three runs.

The shut out was the ninth of the season for the Giants and the fourth for Kennedy. Only one earned run has been fashioned against New York in the last 28 innings.

Cincinnati Beats Pirates in 10th, 2-1

Cincinnati, Aug. 16 (AP).—Lloyd Merriman's single in the tenth inning today gave Cincinnati a 2-1 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Howard Fox, the Reds' pitcher, helped win his own game by leading off with a safety, advancing on Harry Walker's sacrifice, and dashing home when Merriman shot the ball to left. Bob Chesnes was the losing hurler.

Move Laid To Illness; Cooney Gets Job Pro Tem

By Joe Levine

Boston, Aug. 16 (U.P.).—Manager Billy Southworth, who led the Boston Braves to their first pennant in 34 years, was sent home for the rest of the season tonight after his health cracked under the strain of defending the National League championship.

Team President Lou Perini disclosed he talked the 56-year-old manager into taking a leave of absence to regain his "failing health" so that he might return to the club next year. Coach Johnny Cooney was named to fill in as acting manager.

The unexpected development meant for Southworth a premature end of a season in which the nickname "Billy the Goat" frequently replaced the "Billy the Kid" soubriquet he earned winning three successive pennants for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Reports of Dissension

Repeated reports of dissension among players, injuries, failure of stars like Johnny Sain to equal form and defeats that tumbled the Braves to fourth place made Southworth earn all of the $50,000 a year he gets under a five-year contract that runs through 1952.

Braves publicity director Billy Sullivan said Southworth was a victim of "overwork, lack of sleep and nervous strain."

"He's a 24-hour-a-day worker, you know," Sullivan said. He added that, as far as he knew, Southworth had not consulted a doctor.

Though some observers professed to see the leave of absence as a handy device for easing Southworth out of the Braves' picture after a disastrous season, the club took pains to say it wants the manager back next year.

"It is the Braves' owners' feelings that it will be better to have a healthy Billy Southworth managing the Braves in the Spring than to have him so tax his physique and nerves now that he might never recover," a statement to the players said.

"Deep Attachment"

The statement spoke of the "deep personal attachment" between Southworth and the Braves management and added:

"President Perini and General Manager John Quinn feel that in insisting that Southworth take a leave of absence now they are stacking six weeks of the 1949 season up against many years in the future and that . . . this is a worthwhile move."

Perini said worry over the club's poor showing and strenuous efforts to overcome injuries to key players by juggling his lineup plagued Southworth with recurrent headaches, loss of appetite and sleeplessness.

The statement was read to the players by Cooney shortly before tonight's game with the Giants. Cooney, a former Braves outfielder who wound up his major league career with the New York Yankees in 1944, took over the reins of the team immediately.

Won Two World Series

Southworth also was a former Braves' outfielder who went on to earn a reputation as baseball's master magician, guiding the Cards to three pennants and two world's championships.

Perini and the two other Boston contractors who own the Braves lured him here after the team wound up the 1945 season in sixth place, its eleventh consecutive year in the second division.

Given open-handed financial support by Perini and the rest of the "three little steamshovels," Southworth led the Braves into fourth place his first year, third place in 1947 and to a pennant last year.

Bogley and DeWitts Eliminated From National Doubles

Bill Bennings . . .

AT BEL AIR

DEAR FOLKS: I'm told that Richard Lawless is the most improved rider on the minor circuit hereabouts. The 17-year-old Brooklyn, N. Y., boy who nas only a taste of saddle action at Charles Town took on a lot of polish at Cumberland and Hagerstown, it seems. Since coming to the Maryland tracks he has piled up 18 winners while under the direction of Jockey Agent Pete Peterson who, by the way, also has under his wing Jockey Carty Meyerhoffer, the Washington boy. Carty lost his apprentice allowance at Charles Town and then suffered a broken collarbone. He resumes action on the opening day program here. A good judge of pace and a strong finisher, he should play a big part in the meeting. He has been working horses for two weeks and is reported shipshape and rarin' to go.—BILL.

Girls Enliven 'Rassle' Show

Turner's Arena will take on a bit of daintiness tonight, when four gal rasslers take the mat in the double-header main event. Nell Stewart meets Helen Hild and Violet Viann takes on Cecelia Bevins in the two one-hour features. All but Nell are making their first appearance in Washington.

Michele Leone, the long-haired Italian meanie who deglamorized the Golden Superman here two weeks ago, gets another chance at the latter in the third one-hour match on the all-star card.

Fleet Tagel Favored to Take Inaugural Purse at Bel Air

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bel Air Race Track, Aug. 16.—Maryland's only 6-furlong track, affording racing close to the standard of the State's four major tracks—Bel Air—opens tomorrow here in Harford County.

The plant, which grew from a half-miler, is situated on Route No. 1 and is the third stop on the swing around the Free State's minor circuit.

With the exception of Sunday, the meeting will operate 10 days without a break, ending August 27. Post time is 2 p. m.

While Bel Air will have in action many of the horses which performed at Charles Town, Cumberland and Hagerstown, there also has been an influx of thoroughbreds from major ovals, mostly from New Jersey, lured by the fact that the book of conditions calls for races of a higher value than ordinarily found on minor tracks.

Despite the fact that other of the small plants have been off in their wagering, Bel Air has installed the large totalizator, making it possible to handle crowds with greater convenience and the mutuel plant has been revamped toward this end.

The major improvement to greet the eye is the new paddock, located in the rear of the clubhouse and grandstand with the entrance to the track for horses between these two buildings.

Although steeplechase events are scheduled, the opening day program is confined to the flat with the main event, the Bel Air inaugural purse, a test of 7 furlongs.

A. W. Messersmith's Fleet Tagel, a frequent winner this season, is the expected favorite. Among his eight rivals wil be P. J. MaGuire's Blue Nobleman, an improved and hard-hitting horse, and L. Pondfield's Silver Money, an invader from the big time.

The day's card is equally divided between sprints and distance affairs, opening with a 5-furlong sprint for 2-year-olds and concluding with two tests of a mile-and-a-quarter for older horses.

Officials who will govern the sport are: Stewards representing the Maryland Racing Commission, Joseph H. Flanagan, H. Conklin and Edward M. Staylor; placing judges, Henry J. Carroll, Edward Dennison and F. G. Farrell; patrol judges, William Doyle, Roy C. Gordon and J. T. Sadler; clerk of the scales, Henry Erickson; paddock judge, William Jennings; timer, A. E. Abadie; starter, Edward Blind; racing secretary and handicapper, W. C. Shea.

The Puett starting gate will be used at all starts and the Precision Camera, Inc., will photograph the finishes.

Bunker Hill, Baltimore Tie

Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 16 The Bunker Hill Post of Washington, D. C. and the Clifton Post 205 of Baltimore battled to a 3-3 tie in a game called at the end of eleven innings because of darkness in Region 3 play of the American Legion Junior Baseball Tournament here today.

The two teams play again today at 1:30 at City Park, with the winner meeting unbeaten Wheeling. Both Washington and Baltimore have lost once, so a Wheeling victory would mean the end of the double-elimination tournament.

Wally Campbell and Lou Johnson, two of the leading point scorers of the American Association, are hopeful of snapping back into stride after being upset in the last two 20-lap features at Lanham. Overton, Cole Also Qualify For National

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Ralph Bogart, Chevy Chase Country Club, and Marvin "Bubby" Worsham, Bethesda Country Club, yesterday won the right to represent the Middle-Atlantic section in the National Amateur Golf Championships at Oak Ridge Country Club, Pittsford, N. Y., August 29 through September 3.

Also representing the Mid-Atlantic section, will be Eddie Johnston, Country Club of Maryland, Spencer Overton, Rolling Road Golf Club, and William Cole of Mount Pleasant, all qualified yesterday.

Bogart Sets Pace

Bogart's 72-73—145 led 24 area golfers and one from Rochester, N. Y., in the sectional qualifying at Congressional Country Club. Bogart will be playing in his fifth National Amateur.

His business partner and Chevy Chase club teammate, Bobby Brownell, carded a 72-74—146, good for second place, but will be unable to compete in the National because of sickness in his family.

Edward Johnston, 76-72—148, Country Club of Maryland, gained a qualifying place for the fifth time in six attempts.

Worsham's First Attempt

Worsham, 75—75—150, brother of former national open champ, Lew Worsham, placed in the qualifying round on his first attempt.

William Cole, 77—73—150, filled the fifth qualifying spot, and Ray Swearingen, Columbia Country Club 77—74—151, gained the first alternate spot.

East Potomac Qualifies Six

East Potomac's junior golf clinic yesterday qualified six entries for the city-wide tournament to be sponsored by District public parks courses next Tuesday. Four boys in the 13-17-year-old class and two in the 10-12-year-old bracket survived the final eliminations at East Potomac.

Jim Bridgett, 17, of 3220 G st. se., turned in a card of 40 for the nine holes to win top honors in the 13-17 year competition. Walter Reilly, 16, 4226 7th st. nw., was runner-up with a 46, while Kendall Lorenz, 16, 3938 Livingston, nw., and Mark Spies, 15, Arlington, Va., tied for third and fourth with 49.

Ronnie Baxter, 14-year-old son of the Washington baseball club's assistant trainer, Frankie Baxter, barely missed qualifying when he turned in a 50.

Kirk Williams, 12, of Arlington, Va., won the 10-12 year event with a neat 47 while Robin Ehlert, 12, of Silver Spring, placed second with a 50.

Mrs. M. Gordon, Indian Spring, won low net in Class B with an 88—16—72. In Class C, Mrs. F. Helan, Congressional, was low net champ, with a 92—23—69.

Mrs. H. Dineen, Washington Golf and Country Club, putted the least times—26—and Mrs. Gus Sasscer, Indian Spring, won the driving contest with a 235-yard swat.

House Favors Home Rule

actly half of all the opposition expressed thus far in the surveys.

Latest Survey

The latest survey covers the Midwest States of Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Nebraska and Wisconsin. The totals for this area are:

For: 20.
Against: 10.
Noncommittal: 7.

Of eight new members from the area, six favor home rule for the District, none are opposed and two are undecided and noncommittal.

Here are the opinion of the new members as given to The Washington Post:

H. R. Gross (R., Iowa): "I'm open to conviction and haven't made up my mind yet. I think I'll wait to hear the debate."

Roy W. Wier (D., Minn.): "I'll vote for it. I'm going to vote to give you as good home rule as we have back in Minneapolis. I didn't have any reasons to be for home rule when I came down here but I've got a lot of them now."

Eugene J. McCarthy (D., Minn.): "As far as District home rule is concerned, I favor it. It would free Congress of a lot of details I don't think we should be concerned with."

Fred Marshall (D., Minn.): "We've been so busy with other things I haven't had much time to consider it. In relation to my district, I don't feel it would make much difference one way or the other. I'm undecided—not any more favorable than unfavorable, or unfavorable than favorable."

Burden Cited

Eugene D. O'Sullivan (D., Nebr.): "I can see nothing wrong with the Kefauver bill. If the bill does no more than I think it does, I'll support it. Nebraska like other States has a right here and no State should give up its rights to create a fortyninth State. But I believe Congress should be relieved of the burden of local government.

Gardner R. Withrow (R., Wis.): "I rather feel as though they ought to have home rule here. I'd be inclined to be for a home rule bill."

Clemente J. Zablocki (D., Wis.): "As far as the principle is concerned. I'm very much committed to home rule. I was very much surprised when I got here to find they didn't have home rule. I've glanced at the Kefauver bill and I'm for that, too."

Andrew J. Biemiller (D., Wis.), a member of the Seventy-ninth Congress: "I'm for home rule. Get it out of our hair fast. But I'm not familiar enough with the various bills to be committed to any one of them."

Four other House members from the area served in the Eightieth Congress but did not vote on either of the two 1948 home rule roll calls. These are their current opinions:

James I. Dolliver (R., Iowa): "I'm rather neutral on the subject. I want to look at whatever legislation is offered and will view home rule proposals with sympathetic interest."

Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), a member of the House District Committee: "I'm non-committal."

Albert M. Cole (R., Kans.): "I would vote for it today."

Reid F. Murray (R., Minn.): "Things have got to be divided up so a Congressman doesn't spend half his time working for the District. I'm for the principle of home rule, of course."

Three other House members who did vote on the two 1948 roll calls split their two votes—one for home rule, one against. These are their current opinions:

A Moot Point

Charles B. Hoeven (R., Iowa): "It's a moot question at this session of Congress. I don't know what kind of bill will come up and I would want to see what kind is reported before committing myself."

Carl T. Curtis (R., Nebr.): "I wouldn't say I wouldn't vote for some sort of home rule. But there are some proposals I wouldn't favor."

Karl Stefan (R., Nebr.): "My mind is wide open on the thing. I hate to see anybody taxed without representation but the problem here is somewhat confusing. I would like to see the District have a voting member, or members, too. I do think there ought to be a city council with a city manager—they seem to work out very well."

Here are the sentiments of other members from the Midwest area, based on their 1948 home rule votes:

Home Rule Bill Tabled

McMillan (D., S. C.) said last night that he would call the full committee at some future date to receive Harris' report. The next regular meeting is scheduled for the first Monday in September.

McMillan, who previously pledged that no District legislation would be "bottled up" in committee, declined to give his personal views regarding yesterday's subcommittee action.

"I don't want to make any statement until I talk things over with Harris to find out what he wants to do," McMillan added.

The Harris Subcommittee action was a turnabout of last week's 5-2 vote against tabling home-rule legislation, and represented the first outright move to shelve the issue since it first came before the group last May 31 after Senate membership.

Home rule advocates yesterday saw two major advantages in bringing the issue to the floor by petition. It would assure at least a majority vote committed to home rule and put leaders favorable to suffrage in charge of the measure during floor debate.
approval by voice vote.

Immediately following the meeting, Representative Buchanan (D., Pa.) brought the discharge petition talk into the open.

He said he hoped the full committee would now move to send the bill to the House floor in spite of subcommittee objections.

"But failing this," he said, "there is no other recourse except to start a discharge petition.

This seldom-used legislative device, to succeed, requires the signatures of a majority of the House

A clamp of secrecy was placed on all subcommittee members regarding how the voting went and details of the closed-door discussion.

Abendroth Acts to Oust Nevitt From Guard Post

New Commander Feels Departure of Old Timer Will Do District Unit Good

The new commander of the District National Guard, who, when he was sworn in last July, made it plain he planned to be "the boss," yesterday made good at least part of his promise.

Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, appointed from outside the area to stop "feuding" between guard colonels, yesterday became the first full-time, active-status commander of the Guard. He immediately put in motion machinery for the relief of his adjutant, Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, target of many Guard attacks.

General Abendroth said he had requested the Department of the Army to relieve Colonel Nevitt "not for personal reasons, but as a result of thorough study of the situation and his belief that Nevitt's departure would serve the best interest of the Guard."

Not Voluntary With Nevitt

The move was made, the general added, after several conferences with Colonel Nevitt. In these the adjutant was asked to request a transfer, and was told that if he did not, his relief would be asked.

Colonel Nevitt, commenting on the general's statement, admitted the conferences, and added that he "did not voluntarily desire to request relief," and didn't plan to do so. He said that he is subject to Army orders, as he is on active duty.

General Abendroth said a former National Guardsman now holding a reserve commission in the Washington area had been selected to take Nevitt's place, but declined to give his name until all arrangements had been cleared.

During the interim period Capt. Stewart G. Cook, the assistant adjutant general, will take over the post.

With D. C. Guard Since 1912

Colonel Nevitt has been attached to the District National Guard either as a civilian, an enlisted man or an officer since 1912.

Meanwhile, the general, continuing his study of Guard problems and reorganization needs, said he was working on a program to have the Armory Board designate him to manage the armory for civilian as well as military activities.

"This would aid in cutting expenses," the general said, pointing out that he would be there on full time now. He would be in the position to take over the work of coordinator of military and civilian activities, and would be able to cut $27,000 allocated for civilian personnel, he said.

Appointment of General Abendroth, to the Guard command, came after several months of well-publicized feuding within the organization. He replaced Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, a part-time soldier, practicing law during the day. Cox had reached the retirement age of 65.

Trouble Started Last Fall

Difficulties arose first in the fall of 1948 when General Cox was away and subordinates began quarreling over who should be acting chief in his absence. Court-martial proceedings were threatened by the rival candidates.

Eventually President Truman discovered that the District Guard was directly under him, and that any court martial proceedings would involve him. He therefore delegated the responsibility to Secretary Forrestal who, in turn, asked Army Secretary Royall to recommend to him a name to send to Mr. Truman as successor of General Cox. That was in the spring. Abendroth's appointment was announced on July 16.

Jerry Klutz is on vacation. His column, the Federal Diary, will be resumed next Tuesday.

Women Give Figures, Get No Lingerie

Alexandria police—and a good many irate women—would like to get a line on an elusive telephone caller who needs certain measurements before he can pass out free samples of lingerie.

Trouble is, the anonymous caller gets the measurements, but the girls never receive the underthings.

Because this has been going on for several months, police estimated yesterday that the telephone artist now has detailed knowledge of the bust and waist sizes of several dozen Alexandria women. At least 25 formal complaints have been made, police said.

The caller, they reported, phones a woman and says he represents a large mail firm, which is named. The firm has "just put a new fabric on the market," the voice purrs, and is handing out free samples for advertising purposes.

"And you, madam, have been selected to receive one of the samples," the caller continues.

Then follows detailed inquiry into feminine size, shape and measure. Oddly enough, none of the complaining women have been able to tell just what they were to receive.

The mail-order house has received numerous inquiries from women wondering why their lingerie hasn't arrived.

Police can't figure out the motive of the telephoning questioner. One officer said he believed the man either is a 'sex bug" or has a curious sense of humor.

"He either gets a kick out of it or a big laugh—one or the other," the policeman said.

2 Streetcars Crash, Jolt Passengers

Scores of home-bound passengers were jolted but none apparently injured when two street cars collided at 15th st. and New York ave. nw. at 5:49 p m. yesterday.

Heading east on Pennsylvania ave., a Cabin John car jumped the track as it swerved to go south on 15th st. The right front door was whacked by the front of a northbound Potomac Park streetcar.

Driver of the Cabin John car was Leonard R. Thornton, 33, 2907 1st st. se. The other driver was William F. Engel, 34, 222 Randolph pl. ne.

Police said one woman in the Cabin John car said she suffered a bruised finger but refused treatment.

The streetcars were soon moved off under their own power. Police said faulty switching was the apparent cause of the accident.

Two passengers in an auto suffered minor cuts and bruises yesterday when it collided with an Alexandria, Barcroft and Washington bus at the intersection of Columbia Pike and S. Quincy st., Arlington.

None of the 30 passengers in a bus, driven by Jerry Edward Gough, 42, 1668 Avon pl. nw., was injured in the accident about 7:30 a. m. The car hit a telephone pole and overturned, police said; when the driver made an improper right turn.

Treated at the scene by the Clarendon Fire Department Ambulance were: K. M. Plott, 23, of 328 Pennsylvania ave. se., and Edward J. Schoenuetter of 1806 S. Abingdon dr., Arlington. Police said they were passengers in a car driven by Elmer W. Fisher, 30, of 3735 East ave., Suitland, Md.

D. C. Man Arrives In Warsaw With Seminar Group

Clifford H. Pruefer, 1629 Newton st. nw., arrived yesterday in Warsaw, Poland, with a group of some 24 college professors and associates representing San Francisco State College's "Seminar in Europe."

The seminar is a privately-financed group organized to study political, social, economic and religious conditions in Europe. It has already visited London, Paris, Rome, Trieste, Vienna and Prague.

Plans call for the group to leave Saturday for Stockholm. Five of the group are ministers and eight are women.

Board to Try 3 Policemen in Beating Case

Officers Are Accused Of Manhandling in Hotel Arrest June 9

Three District policemen will go before the Police Trial Board shortly on charges of beating and manhandling a man while making an arrest at the Dunbar Hotel on June 9, the Commissioners decided yesterday.

The city heads authorized the trial on a recommendation of the Complaint Review Board, which heard from James J. Witherspoon, 33, resident of the hotel at 2015 15th st. nw., charges that he received scalp lacerations and contusions of the right wrist at the hands of the policemen.

According to the reports and testimony submitted to the Review Board, Miss Jean Elizabeth Cain, 21, also a resident of the hotel, complained to police that Witherspoon had taken her pocketbook containing $14.20 and cosmetics.

Pvts. David H. Gould and Delbert D. Brill of the Thirteenth Precinct, and Pvt. James A. Hansbrough of the Tenth were summoned, and, according to Witherspoon, injured him with a blackjack. The police furnished statements to Inspector Clarence H. Lutz, who investigated, that Witherspoon had resisted arrest and in so doing had assaulted two of the policemen.

The policemen found the missing pocketbook in Witherspoon's closet. A charge of robbery was lowered to petit larceny on the advice of the U. S. Attorney's office and this was later dismissed by Judge Armond W. Scott on the ground that Witherspoon should have been charged with "taking property without right."

Inspector Lutz told Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett that his investigation "has not brought out anything which we feel justified our sending the case to the trial board." Barrett noted, however, that B. Dabney Fox, attorney for Witherspoon, said additional evidence was available and asked the Complaint Review Board to study the case.

Yesterday the Commissioners adopted the board's recommendation that the case go to Police Trial Board.

In Falls Church

Stray Horse Has Stroll, Gums Traffic

A surprised Falls Church policeman nabbed a full-grown stray horse early yesterday as the animal casually strolled through the streets of the city's downtown business section.

Pvt. James Adams said he noticed the horse in the 1000 block of W. Broad st. while on patrol. The horse was creating a traffic hazard, Adams said, so he brought it to the station house.

Last night as Police Chief E. H. Howe was beginning to worry about stabling a horse in his tiny station house—not to mention the problem of food and water—its owner claimed it.

The owner, 15-year-old Betty Barrett, 1106 Railroad ave. said the horse had slipped his tether during the night and had wandered off. The girl had looked elsewhere for it before coming to the police station.

Work of Optimist Clubs in Country Receives Praise

Optimist Clubs over the country are doing a splendid job in their particular object, work for boys, their international president told members of the Silver Spring Optimist Club and their wives last night.

He spoke at a meeting of the group at the Hot Shoppe at Georgia ave. and the District line. He is Franklin A. Steinko, 5017 Tilden st. nw.

The "Opti-Mrs." group, auxiliary of the club, presented the club with a check for $125 to be used in boys' work here. Charles A. Garies, Baltimore, governor of the 16th District of Optimist International, also attended the dinner meeting.

Slot Machine Case Goes to High Court

Prince Georges Files Papers Which Are Expected to Get Final Legality Rule

The way apparently was cleared yesterday for a final Appeals Court decision as to whether cash payment slot machines are legal in Prince Georges County.

Attorneys for the county commissioners filed in Prince Georges Circuit Court two documents which are expected to complete legal formalities for carrying one case to the higher court. A second case already is scheduled to go there.

Though citizens of the area voted on June 2 at a referendum to legalize the machines, under a special act of the Maryland Legislature, Judge Charles C. Marbury in Circuit Court, on June 23, held that the special law is unconstitutional.

His decision came in an action brought by C. Walter Hendrix of Silver Spring, Montgomery County. He had been refused licenses for machines in Prince Georges County, because he did not qualify under the resident provisions of the special Prince Georges law. Hendrix filed an appeal on August 2.

Later Application Refused

Later, Hal Bell, of 3424 Rhode Island ave., Mount Ranier, a Prince Georges resident, was refused application papers for machines in the county. He sought a writ of mandamus to force the County Board to issue the papers and consider his application. The board refused, on the basis of Judge Marbury's decision.

Yesterday, Jerrold V. Powers and Robert W. Mathias, attorneys for the Commissioners, filed an answer to the petition for the writ, asserting that the slot machine law is unconstitutional and void, under the Marbury decision.

They also filed a motion for a declaratory judgment, dismissing Bell's application for the writ. Then, Robert W. McCullough, attorney for Bell, filed a demurrer to the motion.

Action Expected Today

Judge Marbury probably will act on both suits today. If he follows his previous decision, which was a sweeping one outside the issue of residential qualifications, then the way will be cleared for Appeals Court action on the entire special law.

At a meeting at the Court House at Upper Marlboro, yesterday, the County Commissioners:

1. Received a petition from 62 residents of Lanham asking that a Pennsylvania Railroad grade crossing be kept open there until an underpass is built.

2. Received a letter from W. Waverly Webb, clerk of the Circuit Court, making a similar request regarding the Melrose crossing in Hyattsville, over the B & O tracks. A number of accidents have occurred there and the Hyattsville City Council has authorized construction of channelizing strips to relieve the situation.

3. Heard a report that Prince Georges County Police are now signing application papers authorized by the Commissioners to put them under the State retirement act.

Prince Georges Jury Will Meet Sept. 13

The Prince Georges County grand jury was called yesterday to reconvene September 13 to complete its probe of county gambling.

The call was the first order of business yesterday for State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie, on the job for the first time since he suffered a heart attack while visiting friends last May 29.

Bowie's illness caused a 12-week silence for the county grand jury, after it had indicted 15 persons on charges of operating a lottery, and heard a mass of charges including some of official corruption.

Bowie still faces a $200,000-plus damage suit filed against him by Washington Attorney James J. Laughlin, a reluctant witness before Bowie's grand jury.

Papers in the suit went unserved while Bowie was in a Washington hospital, but Laughlin has asked Bowie's brother and physician to inform him when they could be served without endangering Bowie's health.

Two Ceremonies To Mark Death Of San Martin

At least two ceremonies are scheduled today to commemorate the 99th anniversary of the death of Jose de San Martin, liberator of the Argentine.

Ambassador Enrique V. Corominas, Argentine representative to and president of the Organization of American States, will place a wreath on the San Martin statute at Judiciary sq., on E st. between 4th and 5th sts. nw., at 10 a. m.

Twenty-three "founder members" of the San Martin Institute of the United States, North American counterpart of an Argentine organization, will hold their inaugural meeting at 8 p. m. at 2300 S st. nw., home of the Argentine ambassador.

Among South and North American diplomats and officials included in the group are Senator Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.) and Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, military aide to President Truman.

'Old Ironlegs' Stahl, 67, Pauses at Capital On Current Stroll, Baltimore to 'Frisco

Ex-Postal Employe Claims 10,000 Miles Afoot in Ten Years

Col. John Francis (Old Ironlegs) Stahl, retired postal employe and the "world's walkingest man," stopped over in Washington yesterday on his current stroll—Baltimore to San Francisco.

The colonel, who is 67 and has a white beard that makes strangers greet him "Hello there, GBS," left Baltimore Sunday morning and walked 20 miles to Laurel.

He could have made Washington Monday but in order to arrive here in the early morning "coasted in" from Laurel, doing stints that scarcely flexed his thigh muscles—10 miles to Hyattsville, then next day 10 miles more on here.

Hike of 3600 Miles

Last April, Stahl related, he completed a 3600-mile walk through Central America begun the previous May. He has walked 10,400 miles, he figures, since he took up walking ten years ago as a "hobby."

"People are going to lose the use of their legs eventually if they don't start walking more and riding less," Stahl believes.

He walks for the same reason some people climb mountains—"the feeling of accomplishment," and because "you get to know people better" walking through the country.

Way to Meet People

"As I said on 'We the People' the other night," he remarked, "I've met more than 10,000 people while walking. I expect to meet 10,000 more in the next 10 years."

Stahl never accepts rides—"that's against the rules." He starts at 7 a. m., to beat the sun, does about 13 miles a day, once did 32. He carries a 20-pound knapsack and has to get his shoes re-soled about every three months.

He sleeps where night finds him, usually inside—hotel, barn or what-have-you—sometimes by the side of the road. Once in Nicaragua he was given lodging in a hut, which was fine except that a hog kept trying to crawl into bed with him. In Costa Rica he waded rivers and walked into the tail-end of a revolution.

A blue-eyed, quiet-voiced, 130-pound wisp of a man, Colonel Stahl sometimes prays as he walks alone along the way, and then he stops and talks with people.

Former Postal Worker

He was a postal employe for 25 years, retiring in San Francisco, but always a clerk, never a mailman—"I guess I'm a frustrated mailman." In the towns and cities he looks up postal clerks and is received warmly. Here he is staying with William Otte, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, and an honorary New Mexico colonel, like himself.

Colonel Stahl's last walk was 625 miles from Bellaire, Ohio, to New York City—leaving May 31, 1949, arriving July 27. From here he'll walk first to Williamsburg, Ky., to visit some people he met while walking in Mexico. His present plans are to walk on to San Francisco.

"It'll take me about 300 days," he said matter-of-factly, "weather permitting."

5 Receive Raises

Claims Aide Promoted to Legal Staff

J. Hampton Baumgartner, jr., assistant inspector of claims, yesterday was promoted to assistant corporation counsel by the District Commissioners. Five other legal aides were given raises.

Baumgartner

Baumgartner, who lives at 2008 16th st. nw., is a native of Baltimore. He graduated from Georgetown University in June, 1948, and previously attended Loyola College in Baltimore and St. Peter's College in Jersey City, N. J.

He is single and a veteran of World War II with service in the Southwest Pacific. His salary will be $3727 a year.

Pay boosts were given to five assistant corporation counsels as a result of the earlier promotion of Harry L. Walker and William S. Cheatham.

Those promoted were George F. Lynch, from $5482 to $6235; Robert C. Chalfonte, $4605 to $5232; Richard W. Barton, $4103 to $4479; Philip N. Brophy, $3852 to $4479, and George F. Donnella, $3100 to $3727.

Trench Diggers' Find

Abandoned Potter's Field At Gallinger Yields Old Bones

Bones of paupers buried on the grounds of Gallinger Hospital about a half a century ago when potter's field was located there, were dug up during excavation of a trench yesterday.

The digging, being done in connection with construction of the new crippled children's wing to be built at the hospital, was halted on order of Health Department authorities.

The bones were uncovered while workmen dug a 300-foot-long slit trench, about 3 feet deep, just north of the contagious disease ward and east of the District jail. The trench will accommodate a gas line for the new pediatrics section, to be erected nearby on the site of the old crematorium, now being razed.

Barely recognizable as human remains, the bones were covered with dirt and were found scattered along with crumbled fragments of wooden caskets, apparently of pine wood. Scores of still intact boxes were visible, imbedded in the sides of the trench.

The Washington Post

Proposed Amvets Merger Discussed At AVC Meeting

About 100 members of Washington's American Veterans Chapter heard National Vice Chairman Joseph Clorety last night explain the finer points of the proposed AVC-Amvets merger at the clubhouse, 1751 New Hampshire ave. nw.

Clorety said there were substantial areas of agreement between the two veterans groups which included taking over the Amvets' name if merged. Other points would include the Amvet organization absorbing all AVC chapters and individuals into a new group, and the national AVC officers becoming members of the Amvet national group.

The discussion which followed seemed to indicate that the merger would be acceptable if the roots of AVC aren't torn up in the process. The matter will be brought up before the Amvet national convention for approval. The Amvets claim 125,000 members; the AVC, 40,000.

August 1 Tax Returns Will Escape Penalty

A 20 per cent penalty on late District personal property tax returns will be waived on those postmarked August 1, the District Commissioners announced yesterday.

The Committee on Special Assessment Appeals informed the city heads it was difficult to determine whether envelopes postmarked August 1 were actually marked August 1 were actually mailed on July 31, the last day to avoid the penalty, or on August 1. The group therefore urged a blanket exemption from penalty for August 1 mailings.

Missouri Man Fights D. C. Car Tag Order

Commissioners Refer Matter to Keneipp, Director of Traffic

One morning recently Maurice W. Covert, member of the Senate Judiciary Committee professional staff, found a note on his car from the Washington police informing him he better purchase District license tags for his vehicle.

Whereupon Covert sat down and wrote a long letter to Traffic Director George E. Keneipp emphasizing that he considered himself a resident of Houston, Mo., paid taxes there, passed bar exams in the State, was active in the Lions Club and other groups in Missouri.

Later Keneipp received a letter from Senator Pat McCarran, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, seconding Covert's statement that he was indeed a resident of Missouri.

Keneipp flipped the matter over to Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West for an opinion and yesterday West told the Commissioners that since the District follows a policy of imposing the same requirements as would be placed on a District resident living in Missouri, tags must be obtained "immediately upon establishing residence" in Washington.

But as to whether Covert had established residence in Washington, West ruled it was up to Keneipp to determine "what construction that State places upon the word residence."

The Commissioners discussed the matter and agreed with West that the question go back to Traffic Director Keneipp.

D. C. Increases Condemned Land Award

The District Commissioners yesterday boosted from $2932 to $6861 a condemnation jury's award for a Northeast tract to be used as an alley, after the owner complained the verdict was unjust.

William Keller, builder of 808 North Capitol st., noted that Robert W. Savage, real estate expert for the District in the case, had submitted uncontested testimony during the condemnation proceedings that a lot near Evarts, Franklin and 10th sts. ne. was worth $6861.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West agreed with Keller's complaint, and declared he believed a court action would result in upsetting the verdict, and require additional expense in holding a new trial. He recommended that the verdict be amended to the higher figure.

The Commissioners adopted West's recommendations, and decided to notify the court that it had no exceptions to revising the verdict to the level recommended by the real estate expert.

Employe Seized At Walter Reed; Gaming Charged

A Walter Reed General Hospital laundry department worker was arrested yesterday, charged with operating a lottery among patients, and with possession of lottery slips.

Francis D. Evans, 43, of 2719 Georgia ave. nw, was arrested by Lieut. Roy Blick of the vice squad in Ward 38. Blick said Evans was telephoning a list of numbers which he had solicited from patients in the hospital. Evans had $47.75, the officer said.

Evans was held in lieu of $1500 bail for Municipal Court hearing today.

Marshall Heights Area Seeks Water And Sewers

Civic Groups Tell District Officials Residents Will Pay Extra Assessments

Eight representatives of civic associations in the Marshall Heights area yesterday assured District officials they still desire water and sewer facilities and will meet assessment charges.

Lieut. Col. L. E. Cox, acting engineer commissioner, and Lieut. Col. Carlin H. Whitesell, assistant engineer commissioner, explained that extension of the facilities will force residents to erect retaining walls, in many cases, or to purchase pumps for sewage lines where the houses are left on low ground. Assessment charges will be in addition.

Cox emphasized that no work will be started until an existing "freeze order" on all building in the area is revoked. First step in this direction was taken last week when the Commissioners asked the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to remove the order.

Then, the District government will begin gradual development of the subdivision using some funds each year until proper facilities are completed.

About a month after the building prohibition order is revoked, representatives of the Highway, Health, Inspections and Sanitation departments will meet with residents at the area to explain improvements which will be required on two sample streets.

Highway officials will explain how the roads will be graded, health inspectors will outline requirements to meet sanitation regulations, inspections spokesmen will point out needs for structural changes to meet city standards and the sanitation men will explain sewer and water line plans.

The eight representatives were from the Marshall Heights Civic Association, Federation of Civic Associations, Central Northeast Civic Association, Marshall Heights Self-Help Cooperative and the Northeast Council of Civic Associations.

Mason Seeks Talk On Slum Clearance

Guy Mason, acting president of the Board of District Commissioners, will seek an appointment with Senators John Sparkman (D., Ala.) and Ralph Flanders (R., Vt.) on Friday to discuss city plans for slum clearance and public housing.

The Commissioners discussed the plans at a meeting yesterday and are drafting a letter outlining the program for the two Senators. The program will be released on Capitol Hill, it was announced.

Arlington Critics Told Why School Site Was Bought

Arlington School Board Chairman Barnard Joy yesterday released another in his series of replies to 16 criticisms of the school board leveled at it by the Arlington Fact Finders Association.

The Fact Finders asked Joy to explain why a new site for the proposed 1000-pupil Vacation Lane Junior High was bought at Vacation la. near N. Military rd., when the old school board had previously purchased a tract for the school at N. 26th st. and Old Dominion dr.

Joy replied that the 7-acre Dominion road site was not large enough for the 33-classroom school, plus the 6 acres of playground space required under State law for 1000 pupils. He pointed out that the 8-acre Vacation la. tract adjoins the 5-acre Cherrydale playground, which will be available for high school use, thus more than satisfying the State requirements.

Arlington Hospital Will Launch Drive

Arlington Hospital will launch a $125,000 building fund drive among business and professional people Saturday, to raise money to purchase the building it now occupies, but which belongs to the Federal Government.

The 115-bed hospital was built by the Federal Government in 1944 with $661,000 of Lanham Act funds. It would cost more than a million dollars to duplicate the plant today, according to Hospital Director John J. Anderson.

Sponsors hope to raise a minimum of $25,000 in the first three weeks of the drive, in order to make the first cash payment on the hospital to the Federal Government. The Government has agreed to accept the rest of payments in five yearly installments at 3 per cent interest, Anderson said.

Anderson said an earlier mail solicitation, plus civic benefits given for the hospital, has brought in about $20,000 this year, which was used to help the hospital pay off all back debts.

All funds contributed in the new drive, under chairman Jack R. Jones, will be used for the building purchase.

Alexandria Hospital Gets New President

President of the newly organized Alexandria Hospital board of directors is M. H. Burchell, hospital authorities reported yesterday.

Burchell and other officers were elected Monday night at the first meeting of the enlarged board since its reorganization last week by which it expanded from seven to 21 members. The new president is head of Alexandria Dairy Products Co., Inc.

Alexandria Mayor William T. Wilkins was elected vice president. Charles M. Jones was chosen secretary and M. Edwin Barrett was elected treasurer.

The board also chose as trustees C. Fred Schreiner, A. Slater Lamond, and E. Guy Ridgely.

The resignation of State Senator Andrew Clarke, who said pressure of business prevented him from accepting membership on the board of directors, resulted in appointment of G. Wallace Carper of McLean, Va., to the post.

Carper is chairman of the Fairfax County Board of Superfvisors.

In other action, the board named a five-man group to study and recommend standing committees. Members are C. W. Eichelberger, William T. Wilkins, J. C. Gaines, Irvin M. Hufford and Miss Mary E. Switzer.

Health Board Plan

Rat-Proofing Law Urged in Alexandria

Passage of an Alexandria ordinance which would knock out the city's "large rat population" was urged yesterday by the Board of Health.

The proposed ordinance, which the board recommended be enacted by the City Council, calls for rat-proofing of buildings and elimination of garbage and trash throughout the city, according to Dr. Thomas F. McGough, health officer.

He said the ordinance is aimed particularly at food establishments. Public buildings and schools also would be included.

The recommendation is based on findings made in the recent insect and rodent control survey. One of the survey's conclusions is that "very little" is being done to control the "large rat population," he said.

The survey also noted an aggravated insect problem. It cited as a cause garbage scattered in alleys and poor garbage containers.

To carry out the proposed ordinance, once it is enacted, the Board of Health recommended hiring of a supervisor. He would be paid $3000 yearly. Mosquito control, larviciding and fly spraying also would be his responsibility.

Dr. McGough also reported that of more than 100 Alexandria restaurants recently inspected, 18 had qualified for the "Grade A" classification. The 18, he said, conformed in every respect to the city's sanitation ordinance.

Perry Cott Named Assistant Chief at National Gallery

Perry B. Cott, former associate director of the Worcester (Mass.) Art Museum, has been appointed assistant chief curator of the National Gallery of Art.

He succeeds Charles Seymour, jr., whose appointment to the faculty of Yale University was announced recently. Cott will assume his duties on September 1.

An overseas veteran of the last war, Cott received his doctor's degree from Princeton in 1938 and is the author of the standard work on Siculo-Arabic Ivory carvings of the Middle Ages.

Celebrate as Grandchildren Recover . . .

The Washington Post

GOOD NEWS—Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos Fries celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at a party last night at the Army and Navy Club—although three of their favorite grandchildren are in Children's Hospital with polio. The children—two sons and a daughter of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Robert Merritt—live with their parents and grandparents at 3305 Woodley rd. nw. When the children were stricken—all within the past two weeks—the grandparents wanted to postpone the celebration but the family insisted it be held. The retired general and his wife were cheered last night by the news that Keith, 4, will be released from the hospital today, 5-year old Carol on Thursday, and Robert, 7, a few days later. Mrs. Fries cut the anniversary cake with the same sword she used to cut her wedding cake in 1899 in Medford, Oreg.

Wreckers Ask Bonus to Raze D. C. Buildings

The District government, which used to receive cash from wreckers for the privilege of razing old structures yesterday found the situation has changed and now the wreckers want the city to pay.

Wreckers contend that the influx of new building materials has lowered the value of salvage items and labor costs have risen.

Yesterday bids were opened on proposals to raze five old schools and 46 other buildings on sites of planned school playgrounds and the lowest bid called for payment by the District of $21,477, according to Property Survey Officer Paul Chalupsky.

The city has no funds earmarked for such a project and before the contract may be let they will have to be procured, Chalupsky declared.

The five schools scheduled for razing are the Smallwood Elementary, I st. between 3d and 4th sts. sw.; Logan Elementary, 3d and G sts. ne.; Wallach Elementary, D. st. between 7th and 8th sts. se.; Tyler Elementary, 11th st. near G st. se., and Brightwood Elementary, Georgia ave. and Peabody st. nw.

Six Employes Sentenced in Store Thefts

Existence of a "ring" of shoplifting employes in the Hecht Co.'s Silver Spring department store was revealed yesterday with the conviction of six of its members in Silver Spring Police Court.

Five of those convicted pleaded guilty to theft, the sixth to receiving stolen goods. The pilfering took place over a three-month period, police said.

The six were accused of taking or receiving merchandise worth only $125, but Silver Spring police said they understood total thefts might run "as high as $15,000," and eventually implicate "three or four" more persons.

Police said they are continuing the investigation, and are watching for a former store salesman, implicated by the six.

According to William E. McGonigle, assistant operating manager of the store, light-fingered salespeople, when they wanted cash for their merchandise, took it to the company's main Washington store and returned it, unused, for the full retail value.

If salespeople desired merchandise sold in another department, McGonigle testified, they would "barter" goods in their own department. In one instance, he reported, a man's sport jacket was swapped for a pair of men's shoes.

List of Those Sentenced

Fined $50 and given 90 days suspended jail sentences in court yesterday were:

Robert Jordan, 21, of 1750 Q st. nw, charged with the theft of three pairs of women's shoes worth $23; Mrs. Joanne Metzner, 20, of 424 Missouri ave. nw, accused of the theft of three pairs of women's shoes valued at $23. In questioning her earlier, McGonigle said she told him she began pilfering after a saleswoman in the cosmetics department gave her, free, some lotion for a fever blister.

Dale Butler, 21, of 300 Maple ave., Takoma Park, convicted of taking a pair of shoes worth $11.87, turning them in for cash, and using $10 to pay a personal debt. McGonigle said Butler was the first salesperso to admit existence of the "ring" when store officials became suspicious after an inventory; Mrs. Katie McMillan, 39, of No. 7 Leighton Place, Silver Spring, convicted of receiving two pairs of stolen womens' shoes worth $16.74; Gerard Marx, 26, of 1621 Holbrook st, ne, accused of taking two pairs of men's shoes values at $23. Marx testified he was an honorably discharged veteran of the Air Force in World War II, married, and the father of a young child.

Joseph White, 32, of 2325 15th st. nw., not a store employe, who pleaded guilty to taking a $17 electric razor passed to him by a salesperson. White, a student of accounting, said Jordan told him to pick up the razor. He said he was a wartime Navy pilot who received the Distinguished Flying Cross and "several air medals" for "heroism in action" during the last war.

Judge William B. Wheeler said the six were to get suspended jail sentences "only if they make restitution" for the goods stolen. He said the sentences given were light because all six were first offenders, and young.

D. C. Pupil, 15, Is Arrested as Counterfeiter

A 15-year-old high school student was arrested yesterday for counterfeiting ten-dollar bills three blocks from the Treasury Building.

The boy signed a confession, Secret Service agents said, and was turned over to the Receiving Home pending Juvenile Court action. Two adults charged as potential distributors of the bogus money were held under $1500 bond each for grand jury action.

They are Clarence A. Jackson, 39, of 737 Howard rd. se., and David McDowell, jr., 24, of 1618 8th st. nw. Both waived preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

The bills were described as crude photostatic copies of a $10 silver certificate, series 1934 C.

The trio had planned, the agents said, to use the manufactured money during fast action of crap games here.

The boy had been employed for the summer at the National Canners Association, 1739 H st. nw., and one of his duties was photostating documents, the agents said.

He decided to experiment on his own, the T-men said, with the silver certificate, and managed to produce an estimated two dozen copies.

Blue crayon was used to color the serial number and seal. They were printed on high-grade photostat paper lacking the characteristic threads of the real thing.

McDowell was described as a dishwasher in a hamburger house with whom the boy struck up an acquaintance. McDowell, the agents said, figured he could pay the boy $5 for each bill that he distributed.

Police picked up Jackson early Sunday after an investigation of automobile tamperings. One of the counterfeit notes was found in his pocket and he implicated the others, the agents said.

Petrovitch, Yugoslavian Exile, Dead

Rastko Petrovitch, 51, exiled Yugoslavian diplomat who quit his job at the embassy here rather than to return to his homeland under Tito's rule, died Monday afternoon from a heart attack at his home in the Woodley Park Towers.

Petrovitch was a widely known Serbian poet, author and dramatist as well as being a career diplomat. Former Yugoslavian Ambassador Constantin Fotitch, under whom he served as First Secretary, paid tribute to Petrovich yesterday, calling him "a sincere patriot who died in exile because of his love for freedom."

Petrovich was also a contributor to many American magazines. He came to the Yugoslavian Embassy here in 1935, and resigned in 1945 after Tito came to power. He remained in Washington, working on books, and devoting himself to his literary associations which were both wide and numerous.

Funeral services will be conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Greek Orthodox Church of St. Constantine.

Hazel-eyed Mary Jane Hayes says being happy makes you prettier. She's Miss Washington '49, so she probably knows

Miss Washington Prefers Natural Aids to Beauty

By Sonia Stein

DO YOU WANT to know Miss Washington's beauty secrets? She's perfectly willing to share them with you, but don't expect the name of a face cream, a soap, or a lotion that will make you lovelier.

"If you want to be beautiful, be happy," says 19-year-old Mary Jane Hayes, who has just been named Miss Washington of 1949. "If you can be in love, that's even better," she adds, with a pretty blush. She wears the engagement ring of George Neumann, real estate man who used to go to George Washington University.

"If you're happy it shows in your face, gives you a light from inside, and makes you prettier," Mary Jane feels.

"I've been taught at modeling school that I should use just cleansing cream on my face, but I like a soap and water scrub," she admits. Any kind of mild soap is OK with her.

She Washes, Curls Her Own Hair

HER CURLY brown hair, which hangs well past her shoulder blades, and well past Dame Fashion's decree, is washed and curled by Mary Jane herself. After the shampoo she rolls the ends up on curlers, which she holds in place with bobby pins. It's a system all her own which seems to come out satisfactorily, though she'd hesitate to recommend it to somebody else.

For the occasional modeling assignments she's had, she puts her hair in buns. "I couldn't leave it like this," she says with a horrified toss of her heavy mane.

Although she knows she "should use a lipstick brush—I learned that at modeling school"—she doesn't do it. With her naturally pretty lip line, she doesn't need to touch up Nature's handiwork very much.

Although Mary Jane has done some modeling, was starred yesterday afternoon in the Lansburgh style show, she really wants to be a concert pianist. It was her interpretation of McDowell's "Polenaise" which convinced the local judges she had talent as well as poise and beauty. Between now and the Atlantic City contest September 5 to 11, Mary Jane will study some more with her music teacher, Miss Camille Allensworth, and rest and swim.

Mary Jane's waist measures 23, her bust 36 and her hips 36. She wears dresses ranging in size from 10 to 14, but has to have the waistlines nipped in if she buys a size 14 for the length.

Tough to Get Right Dress Length

AT 5' 7", SHE sometimes has difficulty getting dresses long enough to please her and is somewhat dejected over the fact that shorter dresses are becoming fashionable again.

Even with her lithe figure, Mary Jane sometimes wears a girdle. "Some dresses are cut so that you just wouldn't feel right without a girdle," she says modestly.

A great believer in neatness—a cardinal virtue she'd teach all her daughters along with an interest in clothes—Mary Jane recommends a natural but even eyebrow line. Her nails are short "My piano teacher used to meet me at the door with the scissors, I remember' but carefully shaped.

Noticing that the judges seemed to be most pleased with the girls who acted natural and not overly sure of themselves, Mary Jane advises other girls: "be yourself; be natural." This applies to clothing, too, she says. "It's important to choose clothes which suit you instead of clothes which look good on a model or in a magazine," Mary Jane cautions.

Calories Add Curves Underweights

By Ida Jean Kain

AN ultra-thin girl, weighing all of 94 pounds, argues that "eating is just habit anyway." That may be, but when undereating is a fixed habit, the thin girl is living on "borrowed" energy—which is risky business, for that method draws on body reserves.

If you skinny girls who choose to be far underweight could realize how much more bounce and verve you could have with another 10 pounds, you'd get right on a gaining program. Remember, food is what you go on. It is the source of energy.

Get up earlier and take time for a good breakfast. Just fruit, toast and coffee is not a good breakfast. Add either cereal with milk and cream, or eggs.

Lunch can be light, but nourishing. Have one hot food. A balanced lunch is less expensive in the long run than trying to get by on a sandwich and coffee.

If you have to eat dinner out, vary the places. Monotony can dull even a hearty appetite.

Boost the calories with a big glass of milk about an hour before bedtime. Try to drink a full quart of milk a day. And eat an extra slice of bread and butter or a roll with meals.

If you will step up the calories through better nutrition, you can pick up curves even in hot weather.

Suggestion for the Summer Bride . . .

WHISPER to your next shower hostess that hints to a homemaker would be welcome. If she's in-the-know she'll provide an "Idea Book," with the bride's name printed on the cover. Each party guest, in turn, will write out her favorite household trick and sign her name as a contribution and reminder for the bride for many moons to come.

AT THE reception, how about cutting the bride's cake amid the peal of drums, for excitement's sake, if there's a dance orchestra handy?

Fashion Notes For Fall

WHY not top the deep green of a watercress jersey skirt with a brash pumpkin blouse? You might ripen a watercress tweed suit with a purple plum shirt; or spike a velveteen evening skirt, the color of watercress, with a cranberry off-the-shoulder blouse, a shocking green scarf of a belt.

MRS. HARRY S. TRUMAN (left) and daughter Margaret say "bon voyage" to Mrs. Perle Mesta (center) at a farewell luncheon on board the liner America in New York yesterday. Mrs. Mesta sailed on the America for Europe where she will assume her post as United States Minister to Luxembourg

Mrs. Truman, Washingtonians Give Perle Mesta Gala Send-Off as She Sails for New Post

By Marie McNair

NEW YORK, AUG. 16.—Perle Mesta "launched" the America on its Atlantic journey today. At the same time some 100 friends—including Mrs. Truman and her daughter Margaret—launched Mrs. Mesta on her diplomatic career as United States Minister to Luxembourg. The double-barreled launching took place at a luncheon on board ship, given by Gen. John M. Franklin, president of the United States Lines, and, incidentally, a nephew of Washington's "Aunt Bessie" Merryman.

"Why, it's just like a party at home," someone remarked as they entered the gold muraled dining saloon, saw all the "old" Washington faces.

Yes, there were the First Lady, and Margaret, Mrs. Truman in a green-and-orange print, with a black-brimmed hat trimmed with soft black silk poppies. Margaret, who had joined her mother in New York, was in all black, a New Yorker's summer "habit" and a wide-brimmed black straw hat dipped becomingly over one eye. "Nobody recognizes me anymore," she said, as answer to her long absence from the Washington scene.

And there was Perle, looking excited and happy, in a dark-blue Adrian jacket frock, an off-the-face blue hat, pierced with a diamond pin, and wearing orchids on her shoulder.

Chief Justice Vinson There

THERE WAS Chief Justice Fred Vinson, and Mrs. Vinson. Her beige wool skirt was combined with a black jacket, pinned with a brace of white orchids.

Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the newest Supreme Court Justice nominee, came without her husband, but with Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Shears, who are her neighbors at 2101 Connecticut ave. nw.

Robert Butler, our Ambassador to Cuba, Mrs. Butler, and 17-year-old Catherine, who are on a European holiday, were also sailing on the America, had been invited to join in the farewell.

I went up on the morning train with Drucie Snyder, and Jane Lingo, Drucie telling me her father had been prevented from coming by a special hearing scheduled at the last minute.

'Perennial Bachelors' Add Their Good-bys

WASHINGTON'S "perennial bachelors" who had come up to say goodbye were Maj. Don Lowry and Fred Roy. In the group also were Mrs. Leslie Biffle, Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, Treasurer of the United States; Marvin Braverman, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, Mrs. Ray Henle, Mrs. Robert Olds, Miss Anita Pollitzer, honorary chairman of the National Woman's Party, and Mrs. India Edwards, chairman of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee. Also present was Mrs. Kenneth Royall, wife of the former Secretary of the Army, who lives in New York now, and is missing all of her Capital friends.

We sat down late to luncheon after cocktails had been served. At Mrs. Mesta's table were Mrs. Truman and Margaret; Chief Justice Vinson, good-looking Mrs. Allen Morton of Baltimore, with a dashing white-feather hat topping her slim black suit; General Franklin, Mrs. Edwards, Mrs. Boerge Rohde, white-haired now, and remembered in Washington as Ruth Bryan Owen, Representative in Congress from Florida, later American Minister to Denmark.

We hurried through mounds of caviar, then lobster Newburgh, and we skipped the soup course as the hands of the clock drew closer to 4 o'clock sailing time.

Farewell—With Mixed Emotions

WE SANK our knives into 2-inch-thick filets mignon, sipped three kinds of wines and forgot about the dessert course as General Franklin rose to make a short speech, with Chief Justice Vinson following.

"It is with mixed emotions," the Chief Justice began, bidding Mrs. Mesta goodbye.

"Perle Mesta is a unique person," he went on. "She's gracious and kind of heart; she's a good friend—and she is possessed with the desire to serve our country. The President of the United States is to be congratulated on making such a wonderfully fine choice."

A high-tiered cake came on—a confection covered with pale-pink and pale-yellow roses. But time was growing short and it was whisked away. "Good-by and good luck!" echoed through the foyer. A battery of cameras had lined up and flashbulbs popped amid the confusion of farewells. In the crowded cabin, Mrs. Truman, Margaret, the Vinsons, George Tyson, Mrs. Mesta's brother-in-law, and Betty Tyson, her favorite niece, were the last to leave. And there were tears in her eyes, a fought-for smile as Perle Mesta—Mme. Minister—faintly waved her white handkerchief, the gangplanks were drawn up and a blast came from the ship's whistle. And Perle Mesta was on her way!

Not Only Army

All Services Now Aided by Hostess Group

In keeping with the unification program, the Army Hostess Association has announced that it will be known in future as the Armed Forces Hostess Association, ready to offer all possible help to Army, Navy and Air Force newcomers to Washington.

A small group of wives of Army officers formed the organization six months ago. Its function is to advise wives of incoming service personnel about the particular section in which they are living. From a desk in the Pentagon, the association operates through a network of over 300 assistant hostesses, who contact newcomers to supply information about various facilities in their respective communities. Nearly all the work is done by telephone.

Mrs. James E. Moore, wife of Brigadier General Moore, is president of the association. She hopes to have 500 hostesses by the end of the year, and asks that women who have benefited by the association's efforts, will join the ever-growing group of assistant hostesses.

On August 1, the association moved its office in the Pentagon to Room 3A 486, adjoining the Armed Forces Housing Bureau. Officers' wives willing to serve in their immediate area are asked to telephone the Pentagon, Republic 6700, Ext. 7-3180, Mondays through Fridays, from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Ask Anne About Wedding Anniversary Gift

Would you please suggest a gift for my girl friend's first wedding anniversary? F. E. W.

By an agreement reached by several national jewelry organizations and the American National Retail Jewelers Association, the new list for wedding anniversary gifts which became effective January 1, 1948, states that clocks are the gift for the first anniversary. However, the older list which gives paper as the first anniversary gift is more familiar and usually followed. Among appropriate paper gifts you could give her monogrammed paper napkins, tablecloths or towels, writing paper, guest book, or an attractive calendar.

We have recently painted a concrete porch with a dark gray rubber base paint. Now, we find that every time we move furniture on the porch it makes a yellow mark which we have been unable to remove even with a brush and scouring powder. Do you have any suggestions for removing the marks, preventing future ones or for repainting the porch? B. E. R.

You didn't say so, but I suspect that the yellow streaks are coming from the legs of furniture which is painted yellow. If so, they can be removed by wiping with varsol. When completely removed, give the floor several thin well-rubbed coats of wax and keep it covered with wax to eliminate the trouble in the future.

We have three dozen record albums. They are about 20 years old in excellent condition. They are covered with an ugly brown material similar to the material used for covering inexpensive books. We would like to change the color of the end that shows, so that they will add to the decoration of our living room. Can we mask, paint or do you have any other suggestions? H. J. M.

There is a plastic coating available in many colors, black and white which can be applied as a paint over the album bindings. You may have to apply several coats to completely cover the dark brown. This coating can be purchased at a paint store which can be reached by calling District 1130.

To B. C. and "A Reader": We regret that we are not in a position to give information on the care, feeding and control of animals in the "Ask Anne" column.

In reply to the woman who requested a recipe for German Sour Meat Balls: Although I do not have exactly what she wants, I do have a recipe I think she might be interested in. This was handed down by my grandmother and is the German Saurbraten, made from chunks of meat rather than the ground meat.

In this case, you take the gravy, also left-over, add 2 teaspoons of mixed spices, 1 chopped onion, 1/3 cup vinegar, and your meat cut into chunks. Cook this for 45 minutes. Then, if your gravy is fairly thick, add six ginger snaps. If thin, add 10 ginger snaps. Cook until these have dissolved and gravy is the right consistency. We always had this served over noodles.

If you are preparing it from raw meat, allow about 1 pound of chuck for three persons. Brown thoroughly in hot fat with the 1 chopped onion, then add 2 cups water and vinegar and spices in the amount described above. Follow same procedure as above. M. J. H.

Is it correct to wear gloves without a hat? If only at certain times. J. B.

Although gloves indicate a certain amount of formality (and therefore are a bit more in harmony with a costume which includes a hat), it seems perfectly permissible to have your hands clad when your head is bare. In fact, in this day of going hatless in warm weather you can achieve quite a smart costume by wearing contrasting or matching gloves with your summer frock and carrying a good-looking pocketbook.

I have frequently seen inquiries in your column regarding information about restringing beads. Recently I ran across an ad for a bead-stringing kit that sells for $2.98. I sent for it inasmuch as I had a box full of beads that needed stringing and the price of this service was prohibitive to me. It has been a source of much pleasure to me, and I have done all of my beads in a professional manner. All the equipment for stringing several strings is contained in the kit together with very simple instructions. I have no interest in this kit except to pass on to others the pleasure and practicality it gives. It would be of great benefit to shut-ins and hospitalized patients. For further information about it, you can write P. O. Box 117, Boonton, N. J., the address of the firm making the kits. P. C.

When sending birth announcements, is it customary to send one to each adult child residing with his parents or would one announcement addressed to the parents be sufficient? S. S.

One announcement addressed to the parents would be sufficient, however, if you wish to include the children, you could write the names of the children, Miss Mary Jones, etc., directly under the parents names if there are not more than two children. If there are more than two and you wish to include them in the announcement, then separate announcements should be sent.

We have a new pressure cooker. What is the best cook book to get? S. U.

"Pressure Cookery" by Leone Rutledge Carroll (pub. by M. Barrows and Co. Inc., N. Y.) is a very complete book on pressure cookery. Included is a discussion of cooking with each type of pressure cooker. Also, charts for vegetable and meat cookery under pressure are given with time and method of preparation.

I feel sure that you have dealt with this question before, but I should be grateful for a repetition. What, if anything, can be done to combat the dampness? Our living room is shaded, and the furniture is mildewing. The vacuum cleaner removes the mildew, but not the odor. What can I do to repair the damage already done, and how can I prevent the same thing happening whenever we have a prolonged humid spell? K. S. M.

Yes, we have dealt with the problem before, but because it is particularly bothersome these days we are glad to repeat the answer.

There is a liquid product on the market sold where housewares are sold which will rid articles of mildew odor and prevent future growth. To use it on upholstered articles, dilute it with two parts water to one part of the liquid and spray over the surface. When applied in this way it will not harm the fabrics and one application is usually enough to protect against mildew for the entire season.

To remove mildew odor and prevent it on other articles such as leather, rugs, etc., follow the directions which come with the product.

Another way to prevent musty odor is to use a dehumidifier in the room. These can be bought in self-contained units. Using a fan in the room to improve air circulation and placing the upholstered cushions in sun on low humidity days would also help.

It is virtually impossible to remove the stains of mildew from upholstered fabrics by home methods. As a matter of fact, they cannot always be removed even by commercial methods because the fungus eats right into the fabric.

Inquiries and contributions to Ask Anne column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address questions to Anne, Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Bishop-Bracken

For a Picnic Supper . . .

Use the backyard for a picnic supper for the family sometimes. For the main course mix up a big bowl of shrimp salad using lots of celery, hard-cooked eggs, green or black olives (chopped), and mayonnaise or creamy salad dressing; serve another bowl of watercress and carrot strips with it. Accompany the salad with hard rolls—but split them and spread them with parsley butter before bringing them out. Dessert might be an eigth-inch square of chocolate cake; frost it right in the pan and serve it from the pan, too. Have plenty of milk for the children and of course iced tea or coffee for the grownups.

If you and your family go on picnics often it is a good idea to keep the things you'll need for picnic lunches together in a handy corner. A basket, of course, will go in the corner along with a vacuum bottle, paper napkins, waxed paper and aluminum foil, salt and pepper shakers, lump sugar.

Cocktail Fork Placement in First Course

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

In the days of our grandparents every respectable family had a parlor. Usually these were used only on special occasions. Most of the time the shades were drawn, the unused furniture was kept carefully dusted, and the whole room had a funeral-parlor atmosphere. Children were rarely allowed inside except on the special occasions when "honored" guests arrived.

The word "parlor" itself is used infrequently nowadays. We speak of the "living room" or the "front room." In some families, though, the idea hasn't changed much. Children are expected to read or play elsewhere and a good deal of fuss is made about keeping the living room spic and span.

Most of us feel that the whole house should be a place in which we can live comfortably. No longer do most people feel that one room should be kept as a special place. If you carry over the "parlor" mentality, ask yourself a few simple questions.

"Do our visitors really like to be 'received' in a special room or be with us in homelike quarters?" "Isn't it better for the family to have plenty of room to spread out, rather than to feel that one place has to be avoided?"

Man's Plan to Marry Wonderful Nurse Turns To Panic When His Wayward Former Mistress Wires She's Coming Back to Recapture Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Two years ago I met Helen, the girl I thought was my one-and-only. We started going together, and I planned and saved so we could be married; but I was weak in the sense that I had an affair with her while waiting for marriage.

Then she walked out on me, saying she was married!—and that she was going back to her husband, who had been with the Navy in Okinawa. I missed her terribly, she left me head-over-heels in debt, and I had a nervous breakdown from shock and strain.

In the hospital I met Lucy, a wonderful young nurse, a small town girl with conservative ideas. She is clean, decent, honest and very understanding. I fell in love with her fine qualities, and though I feared taking another chance, I decided it would be well worthwhile to win her if I could.

Man Anticipates Another Breakdown

WE STARTED dating, I told her all about Helen and my heavy debts, and although she was hurt to hear these things, they were smoothed over and we agreed to get married this summer. Then I got a wire from Helen, saying she isn't happy without me, and no longer cares for her husband, who is unfaithful. First I said nothing to Lucy, then finally, guiltily showed her the wire, and for the first time I saw doubt in her eye, which troubles me.

I wired Helen that I was to be married, and to stay away from me; and she replied that I'm just bitter because she left me, and that I will change as soon as we meet. She is arriving next week and wants me to meet her train. Now I am afraid if Helen comes back to rake over old ashes, and we have what she thinks will be a triangle, that I will lose again, and I don't think I could survive another smash-up.

I figured a quick wedding would settle the matter, but before I got to it, my father died (as if I didn't have enough trouble); and my creditors are closing in. Helen is wealthy and could clear up my debts, but Lucy could straighten out my whole life, for she has done wonders so far. I am in a terrible muddle, facing another breakdown, I fear—and I'll take any advice you give me. J. B.

Man's Recital Seems Confused

DEAR J. B.: In your long letter, here cut in half, first you say you were skimping and saving to marry Helen, and nextly you say she left you broke, and in fact head-over-heels in debt, and this you attribute to her spend-thrift drain on your purse. I ask you, does this make sense?

If you were spending yourself into debt, trying to satisfy a rich girl's (or a gold-digger's tastes, you wenen't skimping and saving, obviously; so maybe the truth is that you don't know how to explain what happens to you.

You refer to your father's death as an ill-timed blow, linked to your creditors' growing impatience, and from this I gather he usually tried to help pay your debts, a little at a time, as best he could. And what of your mother? Where is she? Why doesn't she appear in this story? I ask because you sound like a "mom's" boy to me—and I think that's the basis of your distraction.

Women Aren't Basic Problem

YOUR difficulties aren't romantic or sexual or financial, primarily, but rather psychological or emotional or psychoneurotic. You're trying to make a stab at being a man, but in character you are infantile, and it strikes me that you were either dominated or coddled in formative years to an extent that makes you subject to "nervous breakdown" when you try to face life, on your own, in the adult arena. Therefore you are in a bad way, but Helen versus Lucy isn't the problem, really.

If you had no funds when hospitalized some months ago, presumably you are eligible for cost-free medical care, as much as you need—maybe due to Army service. If so, my advice is to go back to the doctors, throw up your hands and ask for further treatment—and get a psychiatric specialist on your case.

Obviously you aren't in fit condition to undertake marriage, and it is unfair to make yourself a burden to Lucy in your present state. Even an angel-wife, with the strength of 10, couldn't straighten you out, until you clear ground for inner growth of mature attitudes towards life. M. H.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

TOBÉ SAYS—
Casual Trend Is American

Do you know that the important new casual trend in fashions actually stems from our own American way of life? For American life is the casual life—our wonderful suburban living that exists no place else. And because every one in every country wants that sort of life too, it is influencing fashions in living and fashions in clothes all over the world. Yes, even in Paris—as I realize when I see French girls in sweaters and skirts instead of little black dresses!

So this fall, casual clothes — casual coats, casual suits, casual dresses — dominate our daytime fashions, with dressy clothes reserved for after-five and evening activities.

Barter Festival Opening Monday

By Richard L. Coe

MAP-HOPPING: It's a long drive—370 miles—but at the end of it you come to a charming old theater, redolent with that welcome sense of the past and of relaxation . . . This is the Barter Theater's headquarters in Abingdon, Va., a leisurely town which next week will be holding the first Virginia Highlands Festival of Arts and Crafts . . . This opens its five days of life on Monday, on which evening the Barter Theater will begin the first half of its annual two-week Drama Festival . . . The summer, in short, will be at its top in Bob Porterfield's home town and he bids all welcome . . . It's Bob's belief that theater begins at the grass roots and when, each year, he goes before the Virginia Legislature to ask for the $10,000 which the State has been giving the theater each year, Porterfield puts it succinctly: "How to keep the people down on the farm." . . . Virginia sees the sense in this, which accounts for the Barter's winter-long touring through the State's byways . . . But the two weegs each summer which sees nine plays produced on one stage rangs at the summit of the Nation's regional theater.

HERE'S the Barter's Abingdon schedule for the next two weeks: August 22, "The Hasty Heart;" 23, "Angel Street;" 24-25, "Count Your Blessings;" 26-27, "The Imaginary Invalid;" 29, "You Can't Take It With You;" 30, "The Show-Off;" 31, "The Torch-Bearers;" September 1, "For Love or Money;" 2, "Baa-Baa Black Sheep;" 3, "You Can't Take It With You." . . . Matinees are scheduled August 27, 31 and September 3 . . . For further details and reservations, write the Barter at Abingdon or phone Abingdon 445.

THE PALACE schedules a 'Sneak Preview' tonight at 8:25, slipping whatever it is in between showings of "The Great Sinner." . . . If it's "Madame Bovary," which I saw yesterday, it's a good bet . . . "Madame" gets a novel Palace opening day: Sunday.

THE LITTLE hollers, "Stop Press." . . . Turns out that the W. C. Fields "Festival" will be on for a fourth week, "The Bank Dick" and "My Little Chickadee" . . . New York already has a "Fields Festival No. 2—"You Can't Cheat an Honest Man" and "Never Give a Sucker an Even Break."

THE METROPOLITAN, not to be outdone, has decided to go all out for a "Rita Hayworth Festival," being "Cover Girl" and "You Were Never Lovelier," a merry fandango set for a week from tomorrow.

THE OLNEY is now booked through Sunday, October 2, and if things keep on you may even spend Columbus Day country-theatering . . . Next week the busy Vicki Cummings moves out from Meridian Hill to join John Loder in "For Love or Money" . . . Then Susan Peters enters for "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" . . . Top novelty of the summer will be on the boards the week of September 6—Marie Powers in that highly lauded Menotti opera, "The Medium," preceded by "The Telephone" . . . Helen Hayes follows this on her tryout tour in "Good Housekeeping" . . . Moss Hart and Kitty Carlisle in his "The Man Who Came to Dinner," September 20, and England's Sarah Churchill the following stanza in "The Philadelphia Sto— "

THE FAIRLINGTON Players tonight lead off with the first of three Wednesday night one-act plays in the South Fairlington Park, at Arlington's 24th st. . . . It's an open-air spot and, should it rain, Thursday night's the night . . . "Rosalind" is tonight's play, "Overtone" is next Wednesday's and "Will o the Wisp" the last . . . Violinist Mac Page has arranged a musical program from 7:15 till 8 each evening.

THE FALLS CHURCH Community Theater will act Percival Wilde's fantasy, "The Dyspeptic Ogre," as the Friday night feature of the third annual Falls Church festival, whose aim is to raise funds for the community's first public recreation park . . . Mrs. Ollie Smith is directing on an outdoor stage opposite the high school, with Arthur McLean, Constance Moser, John Green, Mary Young and Donald Nearman among those in the cast.

New 'CO' Of MDW

Colonel John T. Cole, Cavalry, former captain of the Olympic Equestrian Team, has been named commanding officer of the Military District of Washington, of which he has been chief of staff since last October.

Col. Cole

He succeeds Major General Hobart R. Gay, who departed August 6 for assignment with the Eighth Army in Japan.

Colonel Cole is a native of West Point, N. Y., and a 1917 graduate of the U. S. Military Academy there. He served with the Third Cavalry after being commissioned second lieutenant and took command of Troop G at Fort Myer in 1919.

He captained the Army Horse Show Team in 1937 and the Cavalry Equestrian Team and the U. S. Olympic Equestrian Team from 1938 to 1940. He participated in the 1948 Olympic Games also.

During World War II, Colonel Cole commanded Combat Command "B" of the 5th Armored Division in Europe.

"PINKEY" titles the film Jeanne Crain's just finished and in its honor her studio, Twentieth Century-Fox promises her a trip to New York—youthful Jeanne's first. Hence this city-shattering suntan prepping

GOT a yen for a Broadway musical? Stop in at the Anchor Room, Annapolis Hotel, and enjoy the variety production of Penny Knight and Frank Day.

Penny, successor to Mary Small's lead role in "Early to Bed," handles herself strictly like big time. Big time stage, that is . . . You may object to having a zestful stage gal practically on your table top, but then again it may be just what you've been looking for.

She's beautiful, in face and figure. Altho her voice, perhaps because of her long hours of singing each day, seems forced. Frank Day has a good voice, plays the piano . . . He's got a homely, good-natured face which were he given more spotlight, should be quite attractive to a feminine audience.

Everything goes into their act—exaggerated stage motions, a touch of the dance, elaborate props, take-offs, etc. For example, The Story of Hamlet. "Quite the mischievous boy," they call him. After they act out the major points of the story, you'll agree.

Or the story of the alley cat who had his profile changed. "I was robbed," he spits, but all ends amid guffaws.

Neither the room nor the entertainment is relaxing—but both are entertaining. It's quite a show. And they're not afraid to work for you. They'll be singing most the time from 5:15 to 7:15, from 9 to 1.

FREDDY LANE, acrobatic tapper at the Lotus, is a veteran of 14 years of show businesss. He faced his first audience at 7, after having danced for some years to overcome a crippled condition.

Last February Arthur Godfrey gave him his big chance. Freddy, a Florida boy, had gone to New York to try his luck. He was sent back for an engagement in a Miami club. And there Godfrey saw him. He wanted to sign him in one of his road companies. But Freddy had other commitments. Later, Godfrey asked him to be on his talent show. And then came other big-time radio spots.

It can be bought for $50,000 on the most attractive terms, and with $20,000 cash, could be financed with a release clause enabling purchaser to pay for it as the parcels were sold. Owner will carry paper for a responsible purchaser and would welcome opportunity for someone who wishes this kind of home, at little or no cost by selling off land enough. Will be shown by appointment, and full cooperation in furthering the sale will be assured.

Pacific Freighter Wins Race With Elephant Stork

San Francisco, Aug. 16 (AP)—The skipper and all hands breathed sighs of relief today as the freighter President Taft docked here with a pregnant elephant to win a Transpacific race with a king-size stork.

Taffy, the Siamese elephant, was patiently expecting as the big freighter warped into the pier.

"This cruise has been a greater strain on us than it was on Taffy," said Skipper W. S. Tyrrell as he turned over further obstetrical duties to a qualified elephant physician waiting at the pier.

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Eleanor Roosevelt will have a Very Important Person as her luncheon guest at Hyde Park next week . . . Mrs. Roosevelt, incidentally, on the day she became a great-grandmother, beat Richard Harriday, the husky author of "Hope Is a Thing With Feathers," and Mrs. Harriday, at deck tennis . . . General "Ma" Cohen, the soldier of fortune who became a legendary figure in China, was in New York yesterday. He's returning to Shanghai and Canton this week.

A recent White House visitor bluntly asked Mr. Truman: "Do you plan to run for reelection in '52?" . . . The President, startled, asked: "Why do you ask?" His visitor said: "Because of some of the things you've been saying, and because of some of your recent actions" . . . The President shrugged, and said: "Frankly, I don't know. I don't know whether or not I'll run again. But a President must always act as if he intends to be a candidate again. Otherwise, he would lose control of his party."

Tony Farrell, the Broadway angel, producer and owner of the Mark Hellinger Theater, invited some member of the cast of "Lend an Ear" to his summer ranch 35 miles from Saratoga. They found that the ranch was a tiny house set in the midst of a large forest. Yvonne Adair studied the miles and miles of timber, and asked Mr. Farrell: "Why did you buy such a small house, when there's so much forest around?" . . . "My son wanted to become a forest ranger, and when he started his studies," said Farrell, "I bought him his own forest to do his homework in."

The last words uttered by Bette Davis at Warner Bros., which she just left after an 18-year reign, were part of the dialogue dubbed in for "Beyond the Forest." The words were: "Let me out of here, I tell you. I've got to get out. Let me go" . . . Clifton Webb returns from Europe on Thursday.

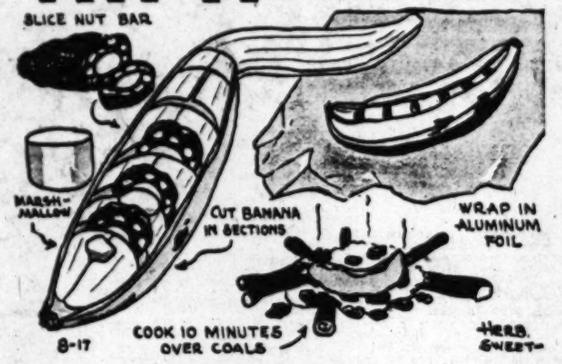
TRY IT — FOIL 'EM — BAKE A BANANA SPLIT



At Sherwood Forest Camp near St. Louis I recently tried baking bananas wrapped in aluminum foil. Before this time I was pretty well convinced that baked bananas would not be one of my favorite desserts. Here, though, is a perfect finish for picnicks or hikes.

To bake this delicious dish all you need is a banana, a nut candy bar and a marshmallow. First peel back one section of the peeling and with a knife cut through the banana "meat" six or eight times and once lengthwise, without removing it from the skin. Now slice the candy bar into quarter-inch sections, and place a piece in each cut of the banana. Cut the marshmallow into bits, and place along the top. Replace the peel, wrap in aluminum foil, and bake about 10 minutes in low burning coals. Open and serve your baked banana split with a spoon.

The blended chocolate, nuts, caramel and marshmallow make a feast fit for a king.

INSURANCE DEAL

Q. Spudd operated a small corner grocery, the stock of which was insured by X Insurance Co. against all forms of loss except those caused by acts of God or of the public enemy. On September 1 the stock on hand was worth $2000, and the insurance was $1500. On that day a truck, negligently driven, crashed into the store, setting it afire and causing the entire stock of groceries to be burned. Spudd collected $2000 from the truck company, and without telling the insurance company about this collection, demanded and collected $1500 from it. The insurance company now tries to collect $1500 from the truck company. What result?

A. Upon payment of a loss an insurance company is "subrogated," or substituted, to the extent of the loss against the one whose negligence caused the loss. Here, however, the truck company has paid its obligation to Spudd, and doesn't have to pay again to the insurance company. Since Spudd has collected $3500 for a $2000 loss, he is subject to disgorge $1500 of "unjust enrichment" to the insurance company.—F. L. D.

Glory of Life

The glory of this life is not . . . The size of any wealth . . . And it is not the happiness . . . Of everlasting health . . . It does not spell the victory . . . Of any single game . . . And it is not the glitter of . . . Extraordinary fame . . . It is not measured by the way . . . We struggle to succeed . . . Except as we attempt to do . . . Some kind and worthy deed . . . Except as we may sing a song . . . To soothe another soul . . . And help another human reach . . . The more important goal . . . The glory of this life is not . . . In anything we make . . . But how we try to use each day . . . For someone else's sake.

BARNABY

Gus is suffering a nervous chill—A sound in the dark frightened him. What kind of a medicine cabinet is this? No asafoetida or hellebore root. No sage to brew a hot tea—
Ohhhh-h-h-
I don't know where Mom keeps stuff like that—
We'll go over and ask her. And I'll need mustard to make Gus a mustard plaster.
Oooo-o-o
The mustard's in the kitchen.
Jack Morley
It's time I go check on Barnaby—
Let's all go. I'd like some fresh air.
Hey! They're going out.
Here's the mustard, Mr. O'Malley.
Fine. I'll have some on this lamb sandwich.

THE DISTRICT LINE, by Bill Gold

No Use Beating Around The Bush, Eh?

United Airlines has taken a survey of its stewardesses, to find out what they think about men.

One question was: "What is the worst quality in a man?" One girl answered:

"Bachelorhood."

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Unintended humor, from a letter asking me to find a home for a Give-Away cat:

"Mother cat, accustomed to children . . ."

MARATHON

Bob Morrow of 1755 P st. nw., and W. P. Campbell of Rockville, Md., suspect that Gene Woodling of the New York Yankees must be one of history's greatest walkers. Just the other day this newspaper reported:

"Both hustled home on Bauer's smash, which followed an international walk to Gene Woodling."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Beautiful tiger-striped kitten, 2 months old; will deliver." (Michigan 1339).

"White mother cat, one year old; two 11-week-old tiger cats, male and female." (Randolph 3644).

"Four cute little month-old kittens; also full-grown tiger kitten, fine mouser." (Sligo 2955).

"Part wire-hair and cocker, black, male, 2 years old, fond of children, needs home in suburbs or country." (Otis 8030).

"Mother cat and three 2-week-old kittens; we're leaving on vacation." (Owens 0840.)

BE PATIENT, BOYS

Several of my friends in blue have asked me to find out "what's happened to the retroactive pay policemen were supposed to get in connection with their recent increase?"

John J. Krohr, District disbursing officer, says that Congress has not yet passed the deficiency bill which will make these funds available.

However, to speed things up, the bookkeeping chores necessary for such a payoff are now almost completed, with the auditors currently checking the figures (about $300 per man).

As a result, checks will probably be distributed soon after Congress okays the deficiency bill.

PERSONAL NOTES

H. A. Stackhouse, 2016 Connecticut ave. nw.: An ingenious alternative solution, and entirely correct. However, the one given in the paper is also right. Try it again and see if it doesn't work.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Wha hoppen to Irwin? And who is Coak, who now draws the cartoons?

Ellen Sincoff,
5500 MacArthur blvd. nw.

Dear Ellen:

Irwin goes years without taking a vacation—then takes a jim dandy.

Coak is Le Baron Coakley, a fellow denizen of our art department and, like all cartoonists, a man of strange working habits.

Coak likes to go four days without illustrating anything for me; then he knocks out four sparkling cartoons in a single afternoon.

Bill.

TWIN BILL

Is there any significance to the Seco Theater's choice of a double attraction? The films are:

"Alimony," "Pennies From Heaven."

SONG OF THE 5 PERCENTER

For Government orders
You're willing to pay?
Okay, let's do business
The 5 per cent way.

I'll fix it with Harry
(His picture's right there)
And charge you as much as
The traffic will bear.

My influence carries
A great deal of weight
(And so does Ole Harry, Especially of late).

CHORUS:
How high the commission?
How deep is the freeze?
Just tell me your mission,
And pay standard fees.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Sawyer Cracks Down on $2 Gift

By Robert S. Allen

(Editor's Note—While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is being written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

Consistency is no jewel in the Truman Administration.

At his most recent press conference, President Truman stanchly defended his old friend and military aide, Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, under headline fire in the Senate's "5-percenter" probe. At the same time the President was doing that, a member of his Cabinet was cracking down on a subordinate accused of accepting insignificant Christmas gifts from business friends.

Robert S. Allen

The Cabinet member is Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer. The subordinate is Charles Lund, chief of the fats and oils branch of the Commerce food section.

Lund is accused of accepting a $2 bottle of a Cuban cordial and a $1.50 necktie from two business friends last Christmas.

Although Lund has a 14-year-record of able and conscientious Government service, he was ordered before a board on the ground of "wrongfully accepting gratuities." He testified he supplied the businessmen merely with routine information that the Commerce Department makes available to all inquirers.

But while Lund faces possible severe disciplinary action, General Vaughan is warmly patted on the back by the President of the United States.

Patronage Grabber

Leading reason for the House's vehement refusal to continue the so-called joint Marshall Plan "watchdog" committee is a lush patronage empire built up by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), committee chairman.

McCarran has 21 staff employes, most of them holdovers from the Eightieth Congress. A number draw five-figure salaries; in one case, as much as members of Congress. That isn't all. McCarran also wants an additional $76,000 for still more patronage padding. He asked for a $334,000 budget on the ground he wants to send a flock of agents to Europe to check on ECA spending.

The House twice flatly refused to continue the "watchdog" committee. McCarran got Senate approval, and the issue is now being battled out in conference, with the House members refusing to budge.

Following is the list of top hands on McCarran's patronage payroll:

Agent General Charles Dewey, $15,000. Former Republican Congressman from Illinois, Dewey is the highest-paid committee employe in history.

Agents Roy J. Bullock, Calvin M. Cory, Robert M. Golding, and Hal Lackey, $12,000. Lackey, whose title is "executive assistant," was upped by McCarran from $8,353 to $12,000.

Gabriel Vogliotti, $10,330 as compared to $8,000 last year; Charles H. Russell, $10,330; Robert F. Miller, $10,330; Francis Johnson; $10,330; Robert Fallow, $8,432; Maurice H. Joyce, $8,342; William F. Littlejohn, $8,342; David Sullivan, $8,342; and Joseph Mannix, $8,037.08.

The above list is only part of McCarran's pap empire. He also has a big patronage retinue as chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and Senate Immigration Subcommittee. The last committee is the one in which he has stymied the House bill to liberalize the "anti-Semitic and anti-Catholic" displaced persons law. McCarran has 21 staff members on this subcommittee, most of them Republican holdovers.

New Television Project

Columbia Broadcasting System is forming a new corporation for a big splash of color television.

The enterprise is based on the research work of Dr. Peter Goldmark. The new corporation will produce colored motion pictures, receivers, film and other equipment. Representatives of the company will testify before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee's forthcoming hearings on color television. Dr. Edward Hugh Condon, director of the Bureau of Standards, is making an impartial study of color television for the committee. His findings will be submitted at the hearings. The Radio Manufacturers Association, with the backing of the left-wing United Electrical Workers, is opposing early introduction of color television.
